

Record Crowd Sees Drew's Open House

by Ellie Selfridge

On Saturday, April 25, Drew will play host to the largest group of prospective students ever to participate in the annual "Day at Drew" program. Paul Abels, President of the Green Key, will act as student chairman.

Two programs will be run simultaneously this year—one for the estimated 300 students planning to attend the open house, and one for the parents who accompany them.

After registering at 9:30 in the lobby of the Baldwin Gymnasium the students will attend an orientation assembly in the front half of the gym. Following this convocation each student will attend three thirty-minute classes.

While students are sampling classes, parents will be participating in a program of their own. At 11:30 a panel discussion will be held on matters relating to college admissions, college counseling, and other matters of interest relating to college life.

Following luncheon in the dining hall there will be a convocation in the gymnasium to acquaint the prospective students with the extra-curricular activities on the Drew campus. Students will then be free to view the numerous activities scheduled for the afternoon.

At Bowne Lecture Hall there will be a choir program at 1:45 followed by an excerpt from last month's theater workshop. Athletic events for the afternoon will include a baseball game between Drew and Oneonta State College at 2:00 and a tennis match with Pace College at 2:30. Students will be given the opportunity to use the pool between 3:00 and 4:00.

To further acquaint the students with the facilities and opportunities on the campus the science laboratories will be open for inspection, student art work will be on display in the University Center, publications will be displayed in the Editorial Room, and the University Book Store will be open from 11:00 to 2:00. Mr. Sawin will be on hand from 2:00 till 4:00 to discuss admission and scholarship information with those who are interested.

Burners Give $$ For House; More Needed

According to a recent announcement by Dr. Schultz, acting Dean of the college, a spokesman for the group involved in the burning of the construction workers' outhouse, met with him on Saturday and volunteered twenty-eight dollars toward the reimbursement of the construction company's and the Madison Fire Department's loss.

The action occurred as a result of Student Council motions made at an open meeting last Thursday evening. At this time it was moved and carried that a forty-eight hour period should be given to the offenders to volunteer their part in the incident, or else the necessary action would be left to the recourse of the Baldwin Hall Disciplinary Committee and the Student Court. The plan was approved by Dr. Schultz on Friday morning. The forty-eight hour time limit ended on Sunday morning at 8:45 a.m.

In an elaboration of Saturday's announcement, Dr. Schultz went on to say that any student contributions would be accepted. He expressed hope that the full sum, including sixty dollars for the construction company, and fifty dollars for the Madison Fire Department, would be received. With the announcement of this statement and the action taken by the persons involved, the accident is considered closed.

Toombs Relates Ancient Findings To Study Group

Dr. Lawrence Toombs, seminary professor, will address the Methodist Study Group Thursday, April 23, concerning his findings in the Holy Land. The meeting will be held at 8:00 p.m. at the Methodist Church Fellowship Hall.

Last summer Dr. Toombs and other authorities of the Old Testament excavated several ancient Hebrew villages. He will show slides which he took during his stay.

Fred Wooters, chairman of the group, states, "Recent talks by Dr. Toombs have already stirred up much interest concerning his findings. We are anxiously awaiting further illumination on his revealing story of the Old Testament past."

Refreshments will be served after the meeting.

On April 6, the group had for their speaker Dr. Charles F. Boss, executive secretary for the World Board of Peace. He spoke on intergovernmental affairs in the United Nations.

Among his extensive world travel, Dr. Boss had visited Russia four times and has personally interviewed Nikita Khrushchev. Stressing the fact that the United States has virtually no alternative, he spoke to the group on the topic, "We Must Cooperate or Perish."

Dr. Boss feels that an exchange of Russian and American non-political leaders will lead to understanding and cooperation.

The Study Group cordially invites interested students to attend the Thursday night meeting.

Flood, Naylor Sorenson Gain Presidencies

On Thursday, April 16, the students of Brothers College went to the polls to vote for the class officers for the 1959-1960 academic year. Ballots were counted under the direction of Barbara Jahreis, vice-president of the Student Council, and Bob Berger, vice-president of next year's senior class.

Dr. Taylor Granted Leave Of Absence

Dean Harry M. Taylor has been granted a leave of absence which will continue until his resignation takes effect on October 1, 1959, President Fred Holloway announced at an Executive Committee meeting of the Student Council.

In explaining this recent development, President Holloway announced that Dr. Taylor's action resulted from an administrative decision, with which he and all persons involved were in full accord. Dr. Robert Schultz will act as Chairman of the Faculty in the absence of a dean.

DEAN HARRY TAYLOR

Born in Tamaqua, Pennsylvania, Dr. Taylor received his A. B. at Lafayette College where he majored in English and minored in psychology. He continued his work in English at Columbia where he received his M. A.

The Dean received his D. T. S. in 1934 and his Th.D. in 1938 at Drew Theological Seminary. He became a visiting professor at the Drew Seminary from 1936 to 1937 and held an associate professorship there from 1937-1943.

Dr. Taylor is the author of

Our Faith in the Holy Spirit and Faith Must Be Lived. He has also written a book in the Advance for Christ and His Church series and several articles.

He has visited 30 European, African, and Near East countries, including the Holy Land.

Before becoming Dean of the College of Liberal Arts in 1958, Dr. Taylor had been minister of the Calvary Methodist Church in East Orange since 1943.

In East Orange he was a member of numerous civic and religious groups including the Commission of Ecumenical Consultation and the East Orange Council of Churches.

Penn Dean Schilling Speaks On "Sonics"

"Sonics, the science of high intensity sounds, has opened up new vistas in physics."

So began Dr. Harold K. Schilling, physics professor and Dean of the Graduate School at the University of Pennsylvania, in an address to members of the university body last Thursday. The topic of Dr. Schilling's lecture was "Adventures With High Intensity Sounds."

"In our research labs at Penn, we have developed a specially-constructed siren which emits high intensity sound waves when blasts of compressed air are forced through it. These waves can be beamed at various objects, with the most astonishing results," Dr. Schilling continued. He pointed out that, using these sound waves, his laboratory was able to ignite wads of cotton and steel wool, boil a flask of coffee, and launder a swatch of cloth immersed in water.

Dr. Schilling illustrated his lecture with slides which were taken at several of the Penn experiments.

Too Many Standouts

At the end of the Fall Term this year, 103 students were on the Dean's List out of a total 480 enrollment. Thus well over one-fifth of the student body is officially recognized as being "outstanding."

When such a high percentage of students are on the Dean's List, the distinction in making Dean's List is not as great as it could be. Besides the many students who made Dean's List, there were many who just missed it.

We're not saying that it is easy to make Dean's List, but we do feel that at present it involves no extra effort on the part of capable students. We feel that such an academic honor should require added effort.

Due to the atmosphere of Drew, good scholarship is the rule rather than the exception. But really excellent work is still the exception, and it is the exceptionally good which ought to be honored by the Dean's List.

We don't propose that it be made more difficult to obtain high grades. General high grades result from good teaching and well-planned exams. It must certainly be easy for a poor teacher to "rig" exams so that the marks are poor. (This is the method of large, state colleges which plan on two-thirds of their students failing.) If a subject matter is well-taught, if students are serious, and if the exams cover what has been taught, high grades naturally result.

The administration, in our opinion, ought to stop evaluating students by some absolute standards and be more relative. Since high grades are the norm, why continue to grant them honors? We would suggest that Dean's List standards be set higher than the present 2.1 average. Perhaps 2.3 would be more realistic and in keeping with the university's high standards.

A Reminder

It looks as though the honor system issue might once again "fade away" unless more students take an interest in it. Most seem to have completely forgotten about the issue over Easter vacation and exhibit no desire to think about such weighty stuff now that warm weather is here.

The honor system has been defended in this column ad nauseum, and we are reluctant to bring up the same subject again, but we feel that some reminder is necessary if the subject is even to come up to a definite vote.

At the present time, the honor system committee of the Student Council is planning a general meeting of the student body to discuss the advantages or disadvantages of an honor system at Drew. If students are at all interested in the future of their university, they should make it a point to attend this meeting. It will be announced either on posters or in the ACORN.

Day At Drew

On behalf of the ACORN editorial board and staff, we should like to extend a welcome to all the students and their parents taking part in the "Day at Drew" program.

We hope that reading this newspaper has helped you add to your knowledge of Drew University, not only the current events on campus, but also of the spirit and atmosphere which permeates everything that happens.

This is a fairly typical issue: if the spirit it conveys is one of friendliness in social relations, seriousness in academic concerns, and diversity in extra-curricular events, then that

Letters To The Editor

"Lowest Depth"

Dear Editor:

In light of the cartoon in the last issue of the Acorn you may be interested in what one "theologian" had to say about journalists.

"Indeed, if the press were to hang a sign out like every other trade, it would have to read: Here men are demoralized in the shortest possible time on the largest possible scale for the smallest possible price."

"The lowest depth to which people can sink before God is defined by the word 'journalist'! If I were a father and had a daughter who was seduced, I should not despair over her; I would hope for her salvation. But if I had a son who became a journalist, and continued to be one for five years, I would give him up. . . ."—Soren Kierkegaard.

After reading the Drew Acorn for several issues, it is not difficult for one to see how Kierkegaard arrived at his conclusions. Respectfully,
Joe Bettis

"Black List"

Dear Editor:

The pages of the Acorn have unfolded many problems of Drew Campus, except the biggest one—dating habits.

It is common knowledge, when many men come to college they are not seeking a mate—a life-time partner—more explicitly, a wife. We come to college to be educated not only academically but socially. Must we seek this social education while being limited by campus opinion to one girl. Is it not more plausible that one's social outlook could be better widened through dates with various co-eds? But this is not the situation at the Drew wood. Here we go out with the same girl for two weeks in a row and hence, stamped—tagged—taken—hands off.

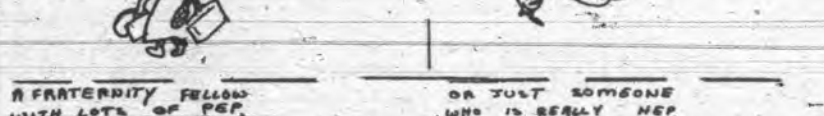

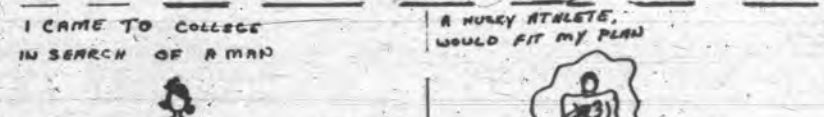

The naive male student who thinks he can take out more than one girl in a short period of time is thus branded—adulterer. As the year progresses, the number of datable, eligible girls decreases, the majority of male students having conformed. Agreed, some men find co-eds who they WANT to be attached to. But many, unfortunately, are stuck by campus protocol. The choice is, either to continue dating one girl, thus assuring oneself of all ways having a date and of social acceptance, or taking the risk of dating another girl and possibly being tagged as a wolf. We suggest that the "couplish" attitude predominating our campus be replaced by a more liberal outlook in regard to the Drew man's desire to broaden his social education. There are TWO many men on the Drew "Black List."

We realize that this problem works both ways and we would be interested in hearing the female viewpoint on this problem via this medium.

Numbers 1 & 2
on the "Black List"

spirit is a real and true one.

Once again we wish you welcome, and hope that your "Day at Drew" will be an informative and rewarding one.

Book Review

Missionaries Work Challenged In Africa

by A. Liddell

The Halting Kingdom: Christianity and the African Revolution. By John and Rena Karefa-Smart. Friendship Press.

That "The Christian Church must honestly and humbly accept the verdict that it has not yet succeeded in becoming an effective instrument for bringing the reconciling influence of the gospel to Africa" is the contention of John and Rena Karefa-Smart in their forthcoming book. The Halting Kingdom offers a brief survey of African tribal life and the effects of its contacts with western technology and politics. A twentieth century revolution in almost every phase of life provides the background for the institutions of the Christian Church in Africa. It is the aim of the authors, by drawing attention to some of the weaknesses of the Church, to create a concern which will lead to new resources, material and spiritual, to renew vigor and create understanding.

A history of missionary movements raises a question regarding the role of the Christian mission today and the difficulties of fulfilling this role. Among the problems of introducing Christianity to a foreign culture has been the difficulty of bringing the faith into acceptable African patterns in language, art, and institutions. Another has been the rather contradictory denominationalism of church groups. Thirdly, the absence of an "inclusive fellowship," transcending tribal, racial, and economic barriers. Unless these problems are somehow resolved it is difficult to see how the faltering Christian community in Africa will survive the pressure of current changes.

Mrs. Rena Weller Karefa-Smart is a Drew graduate and at present is serving with her husband, a medical doctor and Minister of Lands, Mines, and Labour, in Sierra Leone.

If It Isn't One Thing... It's Another

by J. Fischer

"Love is blind, but desire doesn't give a damn." Thurber
Quote of the week: "To feel more comfortable about boasting of my virginity if someone had ever tried to take it from me."

From the Houghton Star: "Houghton need apologize for nothing; let schools whose stadiums clink with whiskey bottles, whose halls are foul with tobacco smoke, whose language is punctuated by generous profanity, whose conversation flows freely to sex, whose materialistic thoughts bar all dogs against God—let them do the apologizing!" Sigh. . . And they talk about ivory towers!

From The Hamilton College Spectator who quotes (in their mixed metaphor department) the Smith Sophian: "On this infamous night the hundred-year tradition of friendly relations which had lasted right onto a century between two great American institutions, Smith and Amherst, was stretched to the very brink of the last straw."

From an article in the Saturday Review about Robert Frost: "While Frost has very little use for any academic regalia, his Yankee practicality has found sensible service for all those multicolored silk hoods heaped on his broad shoulders while he has been acquiring some forty honorary degrees. He has had the hoods cut up into appropriately-sized squares and sewn together as elegant coverings for a pair of patch-work quilts. His explanation is tart: 'It's knowing what to do with things that counts.'"

Overheard: "Hell, you couldn't call that attempted rape. It was merely that after she said no, I sort of held her for further questioning."

From The Story of The Unabashed Wife:

"Sex, that tires of being true, Base and new is brave to you! Like the jungle-cows ye range, Changing food for sake of change."

That's somewhat of a new slant.

"J.B." Company Offers Student Discount Plan

In view of the special interest among students and teachers in Elia Kazan's hit play "J. B.", current at the ANTA Theatre, New York City, and the difficulty students and teachers are having obtaining medium priced tickets, the "J. B." management has instituted a Student Discount Plan for a certain number of orchestra seats.

The student discount seats are being offered to students and teachers at $3.45. They are orchestra seats, normally costing $6.90.

"J. B.", starring Christopher Plummer, Raymond Massey and James Daly, has won extraordinary praise from the New York and national press. In the N. Y. Times, Brooks Atkinson referred to it as "one of the memorable works of the century." In fact, "J. B." has received international critical acclaim.

Archibald MacLeish is a two-time Pulitzer Prize winner, a former Librarian of Congress, and one of America's foremost men of letters. Elia Kazan has achieved stellar status for his direction of "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof", "Tea and Sympathy", and "Skin of Our Teeth". "J. B." is being presented by Alfred de Liagre, Jr., noted for his production of "Voice of the Turtle", "Madwoman of Chaillet", and "Janus".

Special Student Discount Plan blanks, for use either by mail or at the ANTA Theatre box office, have been sent to the Chairman of the English Department and the Director of Public Relations of your school. Additional supplies of these student discount forms may be had by writing Alfred de Liagre, Jr., 55 West 42nd Street, New York 36, New York.

'Day At Drew' Climaxes Visits; Many Attend

The three hundred prospective students and their parents who will participate in the annual Day at Drew program next Saturday comprise the third large group to visit the campus this month.

On April 11, more than one hundred Explorer Scouts from forty-five packs in Newark, Irvington, and Belleville were here for their third annual "Citizens Now" conference. Assemblies, discussion groups, and a Green Key tour were followed by swimming in the late afternoon.

Last Saturday the New Jersey Junior Classical League which represented chapters in high school throughout the state held its annual conference. Approximately 1,000 students attended various workshops and classes after an address by President Holloway.

New Dorms Replace Older Ones

Housing facilities at Drew will undergo several changes next year, as a result of the completion of the new men's and women's dormitories.

The occupancy of Asbury Hall, expanded in 1957, will be reduced to normal size. Rogers House, Madison House, Faulkner House, and Embury Hall will no longer be occupied. Sam Bowne will be used by graduate students.

The new dormitories are expected to be able to accommodate all students, thus eliminating the necessity of off-campus housing.

Drew Registrar Participates In Pittsburgh Panel

Mr. Walter Glass, registrar, will participate in a panel discussion at the 45th Annual Meeting of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers on Tuesday, April 21 in Pittsburgh.

Other panel members are from the University of Colorado, Rutgers University, University of Michigan, and Brandeis University in Waltham, Massachusetts. The panel topic is Advanced Standing and Placement.

The association meets to exchange information on policies and procedures and to work on special projects. Approximately 600 members, or half of the total membership, are expected to attend.

Dr. Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, will present an opening address on Wednesday morning of the convention. Another featured speaker is Dr. T. R. McConnell, whose topic is "Do Students Make The College?"

Two of the recent publications of the association are A Guide to the Admission and Placement of Foreign Students and Manual for Studies of Space Utilization in Colleges and Universities.

Mr. Glass is active in the Middle States Association of Collegiate Registrars and Officers of Admission, and he has attended meetings of the AACRAO for several years.

This year's meeting will be held April 20 through 24 in the Penn-Sheraton Hotel.

Celli Quartet Excels In Rare Performance

by R. Castile

The New York Philharmonic Cello Quartet is rare in many respects as could be seen in last Monday's University Convocation. As a cello quartet it is, in itself, a rarity. This particular quartet boasts outstanding cellists from an outstanding orchestra. One of their number, Laszlo Varga, arranged three of the five selections on the program. His ability at arrangement is excelled only by his virtuosity as a cellist. The members Stutch, Ormandy, and Richman are accomplished musicians each of whom contribute to the excellence of the group.

Opening the program with Bach's Prelude and Fugue from "Well-tempered Clavichord" Vol. I, No. 8, the quartet demonstrated an admirable adaptation for cello. Although the virtuosity of Mr. Varga did not reach peak performance in this selection the exact bowing of Nathan Stutch provided a surety to the piece.

Following Bach was a Beethoven sonata. The arrangement was creditable at this point in spite of the fact that the excellence of the original sonata was not completely achieved in the instrumentation.

Starer's Sonata for four cello provided the first outstanding rendition of the well balanced program. The presentation had depth and the subtlety of the passages was handled with mastery.

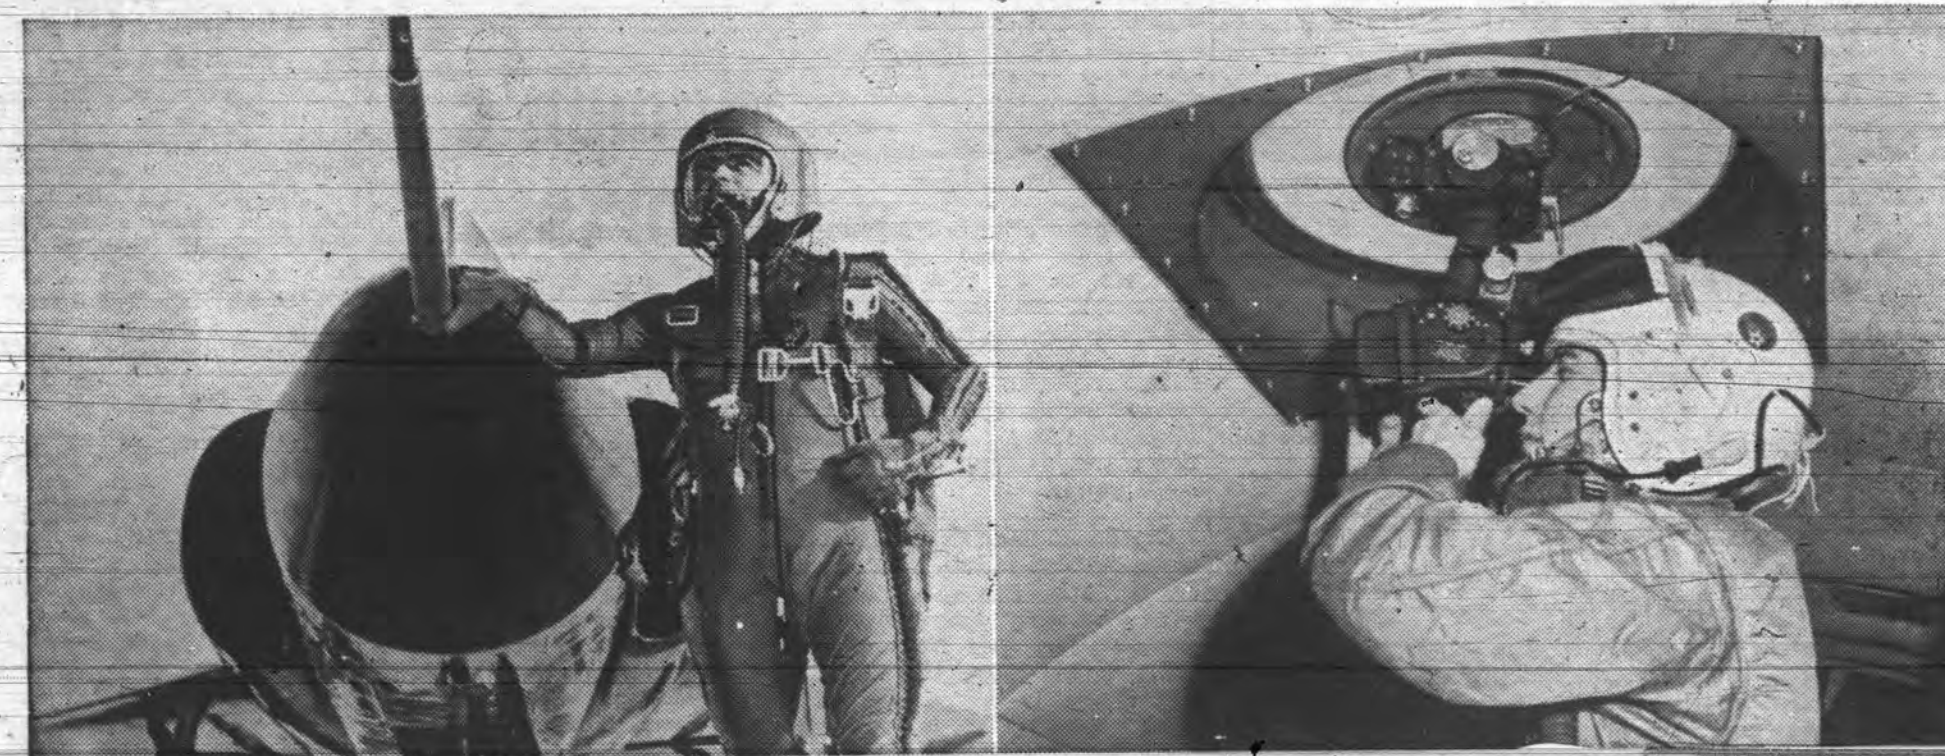

Perhaps the highlight of the evening was the performance of Emmanuel Moor's Suite for four cello. Demonstrating an unusually exciting interpretation of this suite the cellists wove the intricacies of Moor's composition into a pattern that was melodic, balanced, and consistent.

In selecting the "Dances of Galania" by Kodaly, Laszlo Varga faced his most exacting task. An arrangement of a Kodaly selection to four cello is made difficult by the carefully conceived agreement and disagreement between instruments which the composer employs so masterfully. Here the quartet achieved exceptional magnitude. Kodaly demanded a most articulate virtuosity. Mr. Varga and the quartet rose eloquently to the demand.

RANGERS UPSET QUEENS COLLEGE, 7-6

TED WILLIAMS??

Netmen Bow To Howard, 5-4 Trounced By Catholic, 7-2

The Drew Tennis team lost its first two matches, dropping a close one to Howard University, 4-5, and then losing to a tournament-hardened Catholic University team 2-7. In both matches good tennis was played, but the lack of previous match play was a deficit Drew could not overcome.

There were several bright spots in the otherwise gloomy picture. Drew was shown to have good depth. Bo Smit, playing fine tennis in the number six position, won both his singles matches. The number three doubles combination of Pete Modigliani and Dave Poultnery also went undefeated. Ed Chestnut, playing the number one slot against Catholic University, put up a terrific fight before being edged out 4-6, 5-7.

The team was weakened somewhat in their match against Catholic University by the loss of their number two man, Connie Heins, who had to sit out the singles because of blisters. Although this caused a rearrangement in the line-up, the team as a whole played a better brand of tennis than against Howard. It was felt generally that these two matches have done a lot to toughen the Drew team to match play.

There is still a lot of work to be done before this team measures up to its potential. There was a glaring weakness in net play, and the doubles combinations still lacked coordination. Once these difficulties are ironed out, however, Drew, with an 8-2 record from last year and four returning lettermen, is still going to be the team to beat in Northern New Jersey.

NATIONAL SPORTS BRIEFS

BASEBALL — After a week of play, the Milwaukee Braves, Chicago Cubs, and San Francisco Giants are perched at the top of the National League. The Cleveland Indians are pacing the American League, followed by the New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox.

FOOTBALL — Wayne Hardin, backfield coach at Navy for four years, has been named to replace departing head coach Eddie Erdelatz.

And Russia has announced a plan aimed at drawing 50 million Russian citizens into sports programs in the next seven years, in order to correct certain "weaknesses" in swimming, tennis, skiing, track, and soccer, and to improve general physical condition.

Sports Personality . .

by John Clinton

Leading baseball experts generally agree that the importance of a fine lead-off man can not be easily appraised. Such is the case with our sports personality of the week—Rod Spencer.

Hailing from Fanwood, N. J. and Scotch Plains High School, Rod is relatively new to Drew. After receiving his high school letter for three years in baseball as well as participating in the intramural program, he graduated and enrolled at Princeton. Intramural sports occupied Rod's spare time at Princeton.

In 1957, Rod transferred to Drew. His interest for intramural sports still was strong so Rod played football and basketball. Also, last spring Rod established himself on the baseball team and he has been the lead-off man ever since. Playing at second base and center field last year, Rod hit for a .282 average.

This year as a Senior, Rod again is alternating between second base and the outfield. His batting average so far is over the .300 mark and establishes him as one of the team's best hitters. Also, this past winter he was one of the leading scorers in the intramural basketball league.

When asked to compare the athletic programs of Princeton and Drew, Rod said the following: "Naturally, it's tough to compare these two schools because Princeton has so much more to offer through athletics. However, it's somewhat easier to make a varsity sport here as the average guy is given a little better chance."

Keep your eyes on Drew's lead-off man as he could be the key to much success for the team. Good luck, Rod!!

Saturday (April 18) the Drew Rangers won a thriller from the Queens College Baseball team 7-6 by turning defeat into victory. Dick Del Guidice started on the mound for Drew and was relieved in the sixth by Bryan Coffey. Coffey was credited with the win.

The first inning was scoreless for both teams, but in the second Queens pushed across a run on three straight singles. They got two more in the third with a walk, a triple, and an error.

Drew picked up its first score in the fourth on a double by Jack Beckwith, a walk given to Randolph, and Ron Saldarini's single driving across Beckwith.

Queens picked up three more in the sixth on two walks, two singles and an error.

The score being 6-1 against Drew, the air damp and cold with a few scattered raindrops, a few of the spectators left. Those that stayed were richly rewarded. Bryan Coffey was on and he held Queens scoreless for the rest of the game.

Moravian Wins 7-1 But Rangers Rally, Defeat N. Rutgers, 7-4

by Dan Marcus, Dick Madigan

The Ranger baseball team traveled to Moravian Wednesday in dire need for their first win, only to return with the short end of a 7-1 score.

The loss could not be blamed on the pitching for each team was equal with four hits. Looking over the statistics we find some identical figures in the scorebook. Both teams had 23 at bats; both teams had four hits; Moravian had seven runs and one error, but Drew had one run and seven errors. To add to the injury we had a complete lack of clutch hitting, as Drew left thirteen men on the basepaths as compared to Moravian's four.

It is not hard for a potentially good team to couple errors with lack of hitting and come up with a loss. The only spark at all was ignited by George Hayward, who doubled in the first inning and tripled in the fifth, also scoring our only run. Jack Beckwith and Bryan Coffey each added singles to round out Drew's total for the day.

Giants 1st By Hair; Braves To Finish Second

By Clyde Lindsley

The most important National Leaguer in 1959 may be one who plays not a single game. He is Red Schoendienst, the man who rused the Milwaukee Braves into pennant winners in 1957 and 1958. Brave weaknesses at second and short, the bad knees of Wes Covington and Bill Bruton, the questionable longevity of Warren Spahn, and little bench depth may hurt the Braves and open the way for the most exciting team in the majors, the San Francisco Giants.

The Giants have an abundance of youth, power, speed and defense, and supposedly much-improved pitching with the acquisition of Jack Sanford and Sam Jones. Jackie Brandt, Felipe Alou, Andre Rogers, Bob Schmidt, Orlando Cepeda, Willie Kirkland and Leon Wagner form the finest group of young players in either league, and they are aided by the inspirational leadership of Willie Mays and backed up by a strong bench.

Hoping to make this the tightest National League race since 1956 will be the finely-balanced Pittsburgh Pirates. The same good defense, sharp hitting, and pitching depth that carried them from seventh to second place in '58 are all there; but Ted Kluszewski and Dick Stuart are question marks, and the Pirates need more power.

Cincinnati has hitting and defense, but Bob Purkey, Don Newcombe and Brooks Lawrence head a pitching staff that is full of doubts. Los Angeles fell apart all at once in '58, but they have to get better, and should move up a couple notches from last year. The Cubs (need pitching), Phillies (need power) and Cardinals (you name it!) will bring up the rear, and probably in that order.

So here, with considerable uncertainty, is the prediction: Giants, Braves, Pirates, Reds, Dodgers, Cubs, Phillies and Cardinals. Injuries, rookie sensations, a whole host of factors could very easily change the picture overnight but, as it now stands, these are my choices.

On Friday, April 17, the Rangers won their first game of the year by defeating Newark College of Rutgers University 7-4 in an away game played on Young Field. Jack Beckwith was the winning pitcher, going the route while giving up seven hits to Rutgers.

Beckwith started the action in the first with a stand-up triple which scored Rock Smith. The third inning saw Beckwith on first when Walt Lidman laid down a perfect bunt. A series of wild Rutgers overthrows brought Lidman all the way around to score. George Hayward stole second in the fourth and Lidman beat out a throw to get on base. A double steal put both runners in scoring position and Jack Randolph brought them in with a single although he ended up on third via wild throws. One of the bright spots of the game was Dan Marcus' two hits for the Rangers.

The biggest loss to Rutgers was not the game but the services of Harris, their second baseman, who broke his leg while sliding into second base in the sixth.

Women's Sports

by Joyce Samanick

Activities have been sporting a new look these past two weeks as the outdoor courts have been flooded with sunshine, encouraging an onrush of lacrosse, softball and tennis optimists.

On Wednesday, April 15, Miss Jane Belli, President of the New Jersey Lacrosse Association, gave the lacrosse class, meeting at 4:15, some rallying pointers for the beginning class to work on. It's difficult for one instructor to cover this very large class thoroughly, so it is hoped Miss Belli will be able to make several more visits this semester.

It isn't necessary to let the tennis season pass you by, for our courts weren't meant to lay bare. Now they are open all day long and evenings after supper, too. Not being limited to classes, all are invited to play whenever team or class practice is not in session.

A reminder of the free swim schedule: Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5:00 to 6:00.

In Drew's half of the seventh Rod Spencer and Rock Smith singled. Spencer moved to third on an error and scored on Beckwith's sacrifice. Coffey put down Queens one, Two, three in the 8th.

Ron Saldarini led off for Drew in the 8th with a single, moved to second on a walk and scored on an error. Bryan Coffey went to first on the same error. Coffey scored on two walks given to Hayward and Spencer and a single by Smith. With the bases loaded Jack Beckwith singled in two runs. Hayward scored on an error making a total of five runs in the 8th for Drew and making the score 7-6.

Coffey faced four batters in the ninth to end the game and pick up the win.

Commuters, S.W.B. Faulkner Win In Tournament Prep

By Clyde Lindsley

The Commuters, undefeated champions of the Intramural Volleyball league, will meet Sam Bowne in the semi-finals of the playoffs, this afternoon at 4:15. In the other semi-final game, the Off Campus team will meet Baldwin Basement, also at 4:15 today. The winners will meet on Wednesday afternoon for the Finals, and the losers will play a consolation game for third place.

In last Wednesday's action, Same Bowne assured itself of a berth in the finals as they only put three men on the court but managed to defeat Baldwin second floor, 15-5 and 15-3. Baldwin basement won their sixth straight victory by downing Baldwin third floor, 15-3 and 15-13. And Baldwin first floor forfeited to Faulkner House, to preserve their unblemished record.

Climaxing the season was Wednesday's battle between the Commuter and Off Campus teams. Off Campus used solid team play to edge the Commuters 16-14 in the first game, which was the first Commuter loss of any kind all season. Then the Commuters rallied around the spiking of Ed Chestnut, Andy France and Pete Headley, and took the final two games by scores of 15-6 and 15-9 to win the match. These two teams are favored to win today's matches and meet again in Wednesday's finals.
