Dean Clarifies Alcohol Policy at S.C. Mtg.

Several administrative policies were discussed and clarified at the recently held Student Council meeting which took place on Wednesday, October 14, in the University Center. Dispensing with the usual order of business, President Bob Bredin presented Dean Schultz who explained his stand on the question of alcohol and its pertinence to the Drew campus.

In initiating his remarks, Dean Schultz stressed the responsibility of the individual to the college community and in turn, the campus community's ultimate responsibility to the Board of Trustees. He further pointed out that this year is in the transitory stage, and many of the cases of an alcoholic nature have to be dealt with in the light of their seriousness as determined by the administration. He used the university ruling on alcoholic beverages, as stated in the college handbook, as the basis for his policy on the subject. While admitting that off campus activities, in themselves, cannot be grounds for any university action, he emphasized that any carryover of such activities upon the return to the campus would be grounds for severe disciplinary measures.

During the question and answer period that followed, several points were brought up relating to the administrative stand. There was an attempt to clarify the Student Court's position and to ascertain how it would fit into the administering of cases of this nature. Other questions revolved around the co-operation of the different administrative offices and under whose jurisdiction such cases would come.

The E. C. A. C. budget was then discussed and the secretary was authorized to draw up several recommendations to be sent to the Finance Board.

Beckett Chosen As Playwright Of The Semester

Samuel Beckett, Irish novelist and playwright, was chosen by the English Club last week as Author of the Semester.

The project, new to Drew this year, is planned to be campus-wide. It resembles such ideas on other campuses as the Book of the Year chosen by Rutgers.

Beckett's best-known play, WAITING FOR GODOT, was written in French, but translated into English by the author. The story revolves around five characters who are waiting for Godot, who never comes. It is symbolic of man's struggle and his futility.

Several of Beckett's novels and plays, including WAITING FOR GODOT, PROUST, MURPHY, MALONE, WATT, and MOLLOY are available at the Drew Bookstore. These plays and novels will be reviewed at various meetings of the English Club, and students are invited to read these books and discuss them, and to attend meetings of the English Club, where they will be reviewed.

At its organizational meeting, held on Oct. 8, the following officers were elected: Bob Swydan, President; Spencer Eddy, Vice President; Lorelei Philibert, Secretary-Treasurer. Gary Kuehn was appointed publicity chairman.

Sophomores Work On Decorations For Soph Hop: The Decorations Committee for the Sophomore Hop, to be held Saturday night in the Baldwin Gymnasium, began work this week. Above is a group of sophomores planning decorations.

Hoag, Groons Speech Winners

Les Banks, William Barraclough, Jack Brody, John Clinton, A. J. Shipley, and Ed Tenhor will compete on Tuesday, October 20 in the Norman M. Guy Speech Contest to be held in the Multi-purpose Room of the Student Union.

The speeches, which must never have been used in any other contest, must be original and will be between 8 and 10 minutes in length. Contestants will be judged by members of the faculty and will be competing for monetary prizes of $15, $10, and $5.

George Hoag, Rodney Groons, and Mary Ann Zolata copped the top three places in the Freshman Speech Contest held last Tuesday night.

The Reverend Father James W. Kennedy, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension in New York City will preach at the Reformation Day Service on October 25 at 4:00 p.m. at the Grace Episcopal Church.

A mass choir, made up of members of the Presbyterian, Methodist, African Methodist and other local churches, will sing.

Yearbook Date For Write-ups Is Announced

Oak Leaves editors have set an October 30 deadline on senior write-ups, advising students to hand them in as soon as possible.

All write-ups should be in the form of a list of descriptive phrases about the subject. The editors will make selections from these lists. The original lists should be sent to Jodi Della-Cerra through campus mail.

Activity shots will be taken for the '61 Oak Leaves on Thursday and Friday of this week. Students are urged to watch for B. C. Bulletin Board and listen at the University Center for announcements of time and place for each activity.

Senior pictures are being taken today and tomorrow at times previously assigned to each student.

Play Underway

Production is under way for the Foresters presentation of THE CRUCIBLE by Arthur Miller. Lee Bachschmid, Jack Brody, and Jean Rew will be seen in the leading roles. The above scene is from Act II. Dr. Ralph Johnson is directing the play.

Absentee Ballots Planned

Plans have been announced by the Drew Young Republicans to conduct an absentee ballot campaign during the weeks prior to the general election in November. The Club will begin with a work program Wednesday, October 21. All members of the college community are invited.

The purpose of the campaign is to aid students, regardless of political affiliation, in the complicated process of absentee balloting. Information concerning application dates in New Jersey and other states in the area, procedure and absentee ballots may be obtained from members of the club.

All college students of voting age who will not be able to vote at their places of residence are urged to take advantage of this service. Announcements will be placed on bulletin boards in the College Building and the Student Union.

John Klapmuts, social chairman for the class offered a similar comment: "This won't be a traditional Soph Hop. It will be a more original and in every other way superior to all Soph Hops of the past."

Music for the dance will be by the "Blue Notes," a ten-piece band including the sophomores' own musician, Bill Stanford. The dance will begin at 8:30 and according to reliable sources will continue for four thrilling hours.

Under the direction of Dave Samuelson, the entertainment promises to be of a very imaginative and enjoyable nature. It will be presented in a manner most apropos to both the theme of the dance and the talent of the Class of '62.

Other committee chairmen who will aid in this production include Carol Greenway, refreshments; Ginger Gurley, publicity; Bert Webb, favors; Bob Catlin, Clean-up.

"This year's Soph Hop," adds Jane Brown, "will be an outstanding production, typical of the Class of '62. Don't miss this adventure in social excellence!"

BOARD MEETING

There will be a very important meeting of the Editorial Board at the DREW ACORN tomorrow, Chapel period, in Room 205 of the College Building. All members of the board are urged to attend.

Soph Hop To Excel In Gym Sat. Night

by Ellie Selfridge

"Although it may be difficult to imagine, this year's Soph Hop will excel even last year's Frosh Hop," remarked Suzanne Thomas when asked about the dance which the Class of '62 will present in the Baldwin Gymnasium on October 24.

Suzanne and Mary Jean Smith, who will be in charge of decorations, will be aided by an able entourage of financiers, purchasers, artists, craftsmen, and interior decorators who will convert the present gymnasium into the scene of the most outstanding dressy dance to be recorded in Drew's "unexpurgated" memoirs.

Meisner Pres. ACS Chapter; Induction Held

The student chapter of the American Chemical Society of Drew University held its first meeting on Thursday, October 15 for the reception of new members. Those who became full fledged members of the A.C.S. are Pat Gee, Ellie Schupple, Roberta Bussom, Dave Brusco, Roger Binkley, Dave Deutchman, and Edith Reed. Judy Gravel was also accepted into membership but was absent from the induction.

The meeting was presided over by the new officers for 1959-60: Dick Meisner, President; Julie Epstein, Vice-president; Judy Pross, recording secretary-treasurer; Wendy Robinson, corresponding secretary and Intercollegiate A.C.S. Council representative. On Friday, October 23, the Intercollegiate A.C.S. will hold its meeting at Drew. Samuel Gerber from the American Cyanamide Company, Boundbrook, New Jersey, will speak on the American Chemical Society. Each of the 10 A.C.S. chapters of the Intercollegiate Council of Northern New Jersey have been invited. Dick Meisner, president of the Drew Chapter, is president of the Council. The meeting will be held in the Multi-purpose room of the Student Union at 8 o'clock. Anyone interested in learning about the American Chemical Society is invited to attend.

Discord, Deans, Drinking

Discord disrupted the usual serenity within the "Drew Family" last week when an off-campus party was turned into an orgy by stories from unknown sources. Out of the wreckage of rumors and meetings emerged a hero, a heroine, and an indignant student body... indignant not so much because of the ultimate decisions of the administration but because of some of the methods used which most successfully built a mountain out of a molehill.

In the midst of all the excitement several issues were raised, some of which were settled satisfactorily. At last Wednesday's Student Council meeting Dean Schultz clarified his attitude and that of the University toward the use of alcoholic beverages on and off campus. He stated that drinking off-campus was not his official concern providing no one appeared on campus under the influence. After a lengthy discussion, he agreed not to hold the host responsible for recent actions. This agreement seemed to please everyone.

Another issue which appears to have been resolved concerned the persons responsible for the early morning inter-dorm soccer game. It seems that this was not the responsibility of the "community", the counselors, or the house director, but alas, the blame must lay on the shoulders of the contractors who forgot to put a string around the newly planted grass.

But more important than these matters are some questions about the action of the Dean of Women. Although she has prerogative over the Manners and Morals of the young ladies on campus, we do not like her tactics. It is her right and duty to reprimand and punish those under her authority but it seems to us poor taste and judgement to turn a house meeting into a trial and place a counselor in the position of a defendant. This is a private matter and should be handled accordingly.

We also think that there should be a more uniform understanding of policy between the various administrative offices. If the Dean of Men does not consider off-campus drinking to be his concern, we fail to see why the Dean of Women should consider it hers. As long as behavior on campus is not out of order we think that such off-campus activities are of a private nature.

It is not the intention of this newspaper to place all the blame for this incident on the administration. Although we may disapprove of some of its actions we understand its position. It is not our opinion that the whole matter of drinking should be considered lightly. Any person in college today must make certain decisions about it and know when, where, and how much to drink. This is not an issue for the community conscience to resolve, but rather a question of personal responsibility.

New Perspective

The Drew Community builds up an ivory tower by making the classroom the boundary of its perspective. But what is the basis on which students can discuss such extra-collegiate experiences as the reading of extra-classroom books?

We think the English Club has given us one of the best answers to this question: the introduction of an Author of the Semester. Samuel Beckett, contemporary novelist and playwright, was the near unanimous choice of the group.

Beckett is a native of Ireland and one-time secretary of James Joyce. His works are reminiscent of French existentialists Sartre and Camus.

The author's best-known work is Waiting for Godot.

The Political Front

by D. Allen

The question of state intervention in medicine is an issue which will confront us all. In the face of progress in the field of public health throughout the world, this writer questions how, long the United States will be able to hold on to its cherished system of "free" medicine—which, however, doesn't quite seem free to those who are faced with ever-increasing medical bills. Britain recently celebrated the tenth anniversary of its National Health Service. Its success is unquestioned. In this column and the next, I shall attempt to present a brief summary of British progress.

In ten short years health service in England has improved even more than many of its sponsors had hoped, and those who feared dire consequences have been sorely disappointed. Let's take a brief look at how the NHS works.

Under the NHS, complete medical and dental care is assured to all. Every-day medical care is provided by the regular family physician, whose name is registered with the government. That is all—no forms, no petitions. During an emergency, medical care for anyone is promised by any doctor or hospital. No cards have to be presented or statements sworn to. For dental care, even registration is unnecessary—just make an appointment with the dentist of your choice!

This is a very brief summary of how the system works from the citizen's point of view. Next week, I shall go into some detail on the financial aspects of the system, discuss some of its faults, and present some concluding comments.

From The Dean

Dear Editor:

One item in the minutes of the Student Council meeting for Wednesday, September 30th, 1959, is somewhat disturbing to me. I refer to the paragraph devoted to dining hall attire. While I am completely sympathetic with the idea of dignifying the evening meal in the dining hall by the requirement of appropriate dress and am in accord with the suggestions on page 37 of the Handbook, implementation of such matters should be left to the Student Council. There appears to be a misunderstanding in regard to this, for it was the Student Council which proposed a penalty and not I. I have always felt and I still feel that that should be their prerogative.

Dean Schultz

which Beckett describes as a tragic comedy. It became a success with critics and audiences alike upon its presentation in Europe and was the first of Beckett's works published in America.

But if this play and other works by Beckett are read by only a small group, this project will fail. Its extension is planned to be campus-wide, and all students are invited to read Beckett's plays and novels, to discuss them among themselves and to attend meetings of the English Club, where they will be reviewed.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Acorn:

Your ghost is showing! The editorial in the September 28 issue on the "College Bond Issue" is so strictly party line that you really should be embarrassed. The State pitch is the most cannily contrived propaganda that we are likely to encounter in a long time, and from the State standpoint, you, as the official publication of a non-state school, are a choice victim.

The language of that propaganda, in various expensive brochures, has it that over half of the beginning college students residing in New Jersey have to (the deliberate implication is: are forced to) enter college outside the state. This is manifestly false. The fact is that just about the state, New Jersey just does not happen to have within its borders all the Harvards, Notre Dames, Georgia Techs, Dartmouths, Vassars, etc. etc. Such institutions have legitimate appeal to New Jersey students, and they go. Nobody forces them; actually, they compete strenuously for the chance.

Competition Toughens

No one would deny that the competition is growing tougher, and some individuals are finding that they must settle for a lower-echelon school (prestige-wise) than they had dreamed of. The total effect of school (prestige-wise) is an upgrading of the quality of work in all this process, however, is an upgrading of the quality of work in all good institutions. Certain of the top prestige schools are not interested in much expansion, but throughout the length and breadth of the land, in general, there are tremendous expansion projects are under way. New institutions, moreover, are springing up. There will be room for students, even for students from New Jersey. And all good schools, as heretofore, maintain recruitment staffs; they are all keen to attract the best high school and preparatory school graduates—even as Drew.

The disturbing statistic... that by 1965 a minimum of 12,000 qualified New Jersey applicants may be turned down unless increased facilities are made available... is an upgrading of the quality of work in all good to excellent collegiate institutions in nearby New York City and Philadelphia alone could probably accommodate the whole number, except that, second, most of these people would not meet the entrance requirements. The term "qualified", in other words, is very loosely used in this context. And with quality we are really at the heart of the entire matter.

Birthright?

What the educationist hierarchy scrupulously does not share with the voters is its studied attempt to get even higher percentages of high school graduates into institutions termed collegiate. These ever higher percentages, obviously, must come from progressively lower strata of secondary school graduating classes. These even higher percentages, therefore, will not be admitted (because unadmittable) to any save the erstwhile teachers colleges—and, Heaven mittable! to any save even eventuate as teachers of your children. In the help us, they may even eventuate as teachers of your children. In the current catalog of one of these colleges, for example, a course in 7th and 8th grade mathematics is listed as required of all students (except mathematics majors) with full college credit, a sparkling commentary on achievement levels. The Trenton pundits are deliberately taking advantage of a difficult situation, then, to move toward a taking advantage of a difficult situation, then, to move toward a "cheap" college education as the birthright of nearly every New Jersey youngster. Note that it has to be cheap or most could not survive.

This is more like the question that should be put to the people of the state. Do we want to deny ourselves further to bring about this travesty?

High Schools - Parking Lots

When universal high school was introduced a few generations ago, it could not have been envisaged how immensely expensive it would become. Many communities are now gasping under this burden, and wondering vocally about the real value of courses such as Advertising Arts, Ceramics, Basket Weaving—anything to "keep them in school", solve the off-the-street parking problem for teenagers. Nationally, only 12% of high school students take any mathematics beyond algebra, only 25% take any physics at all, only 15%

Honor Fraternities Abound On Campus

by Mike Solomon

Six national honorary fraternities maintain local chapters on campus. They are Kappa Pi, Tau Kappa Alpha, Beta Beta Beta, Pi Gamma Mu, Alpha Psi Omega, and Pi Delta Epsilon.

Kappa Pi, art fraternity, has an extremely active program with local chapter, Beta Sigma, meeting every two weeks. Various aspects of art, such as oils, sculpture, water colors, play an important role in the national Kappa Pi convention. In addition to its other activities, Beta Sigma sponsors a student art exhibition and makes available information for students wishing to continue in the field. Rand Castile is president.

Tau Kappa Alpha, National Honorary Forensic Society, participates in a national debate tournament. Last year the Drew Chapter was represented at Rutgers University and will again be represented at the tournament. President of the fraternity is Sheldon Lerner.

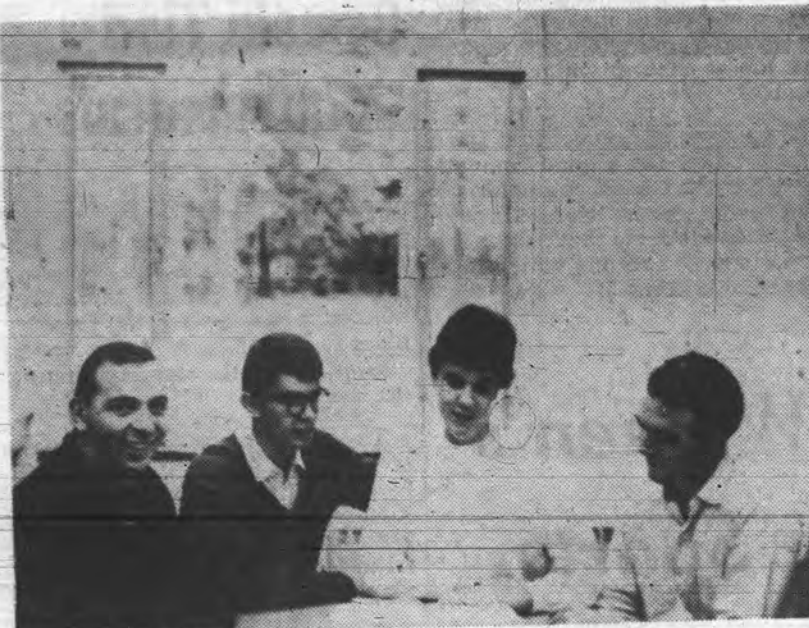

Upsilon Delta is the local Drew chapter of Beta Beta Beta, biological sciences fraternity and includes two types of membership. President Mike Berman conducts monthly meetings. The program for the monthly meetings consists of guest speakers, papers, and general discussion.

The Alpha Chapter of Pi Gamma Mu is restricted to juniors and seniors having a 2.0 average and 20 hours in the social sciences. Pi Gamma Mu meets two times a year to elect and initiate new members. A national newspaper is published containing student articles pertaining to the social sciences. The fraternity is presided over by George Littlejohn.

Alpha Psi Omega, dramatic fraternity, maintains a local chapter Lambda Eta at Drew. Once a year this honor society has a spring tapping ceremony to invite new membership. A formal dinner follows this ceremony. Judy Smith is president of this society.

In the near future, Pi Delta Epsilon, journalism fraternity, will elect its new officers. The present members have been admitted for "distinction in journalism" on either the ACORN, OAK LEAVES, or COLUMNS staff.

Sigma Pi, the academic honor society of Drew University, is a local fraternity with no national affiliation. New senior members will be elected at the end of first semester.

Letter To The Editor

take any foreign language at all. High school in many places has become so successfully de-intellectualized that we have the interesting phenomenon of the snobbery of the non-student vis-a-vis the serious.

The play now is to extend this de-intellectualizing process to the college.

"You" say that all of this does not concern the Drew student directly. Is it not obvious, however, that a State A. B. reads the same as ours, that a total mass cheapening of the degree will hurt everybody? It is ridiculous for the hierarchy to squeak of "undemocratic" forces advocating an intellectual elite when already over half of all high school and preparatory school graduates go on to some form of college; but it is much to the point for some of us who believe in them to speak of maintaining some vestige of standards and quality for the protection of the really able and the really motivated.

Asks Reconsideration

Since the educationists do not ask the public the right questions, but merely launch a bald drive for untold millions, we must reject the pitch and ask them to rethink. Untold millions is literally correct, by the way, $66,800,000, the figure that appears on the ballot, is only the beginning. If we give them that, places will be created for at least 10,000 additional submarginally qualified students. It takes some $800 of public funds per year to support each student in a state institution. Thus we are talking about at least $8,000,000 per year—untold millions—to support the added submarginally (let us speak softly unto eternity—to support the added submarginally). In the fifteen years, that the bond issue has to run, this support factor alone almost amounts to twice as much as we are being asked for. Then, these groups, too, have their scholarships—again out of public funds.

Holloway Mum On Votes; Likes Student's Interest

by Paul Troop

"I believe in any practical measure that will help improve the financial conditions of both our private and state colleges. Unfortunately, in discussing the New Jersey State College Bond Referendum that will be up for a vote in the near future, I am unable to make a general statement. I have not been able to study the matter in the detail that I would need to in order to make a general statement regarding my stand," remarked Drew University President Fred G. Holloway at a press conference October 9.

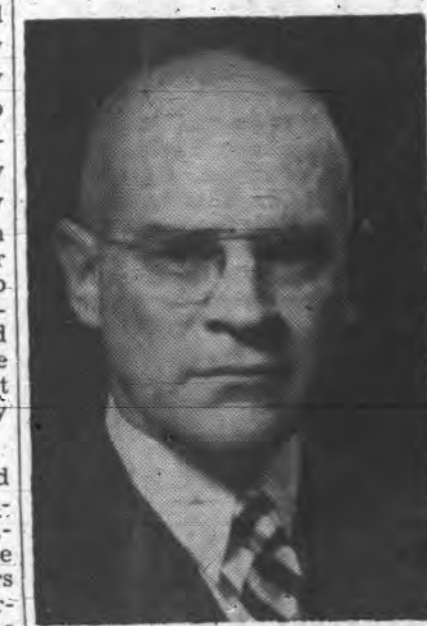

"Let me add, though, that I have been quite impressed with the student interest that has been shown this matter, and I believe that the students should be congratulated for the attention they have expressed in community affairs."

Interest in State Scholarships

President Holloway went on to say, "One of the things that I am also interested in, although here again I can not make a definite statement regarding my stand because I have not adequately studied the proposal deeply enough, is the State Scholarship proposal. I believe that it has already passed the New Jersey State Legislature. Under this plan five percent of New Jersey high school graduates would get four hundred dollar scholarships to be used in any New Jersey college, private or state. This would help all the colleges here in the state financially in an indirect way, as well as help those worthy students to get an education."

The proposed College Bond Referendum which President Holloway spoke of involves $66,800,000 to be used as aid for the different branches of Rutgers University and the six New Jersey State teachers colleges. The money is to be used to buy new science and engineering laboratories, libraries, class rooms, dormitories and other facilities for the state schools. None of the money will be used towards supporting the states private colleges and universities.

FRED G. HOLLOWAY

According to the Citizens Committee for College Opportunities in New Jersey, the bonds will be sold to private groups and individuals and will reach maturity in fifteen years. The money that will be used to pay the interest will come from the state which gets its revenue from corporations, gasoline, alcoholic beverages, horse racing, motor vehicles, insurance and inheritance taxes. The individual's private taxes such as property taxes will not be raised because this is not the way the state gets its money.

All qualified New Jersey voters will have an opportunity to vote on the referendum when it is up to the public on November 9.

Kappa Pi Sets Year's Plans

Drew's Beta Sigma chapter of Kappa Pi announced the society's program for the current academic year. Art collector and dealer Harold Macker will present a lecture on student art collecting as the first open meeting for the year. Mr. Macker will be on campus late in October.

Lecturers from both the Art Students' League and the Cooper Union Art School will present programs on advanced art study and the club is negotiating for representatives of Frank Lloyd Wright Associates to lecture on the newly constructed Wright building in New York, the Guggenheim Museum.

Together with the annual student exhibit, Kappa Pi plans to have programs centered around work done at Drew possibly with a jury award in painting.

The organization plans trips to several openings in New York galleries for the coming season and visits to a number of museums.

Initiation ceremonies are planned for the closing weeks of the Fall and Spring semesters.

Nikita Doomed, Graham Says

Billy Graham announced that Nikita Khrushchev will go to Hell. Graham's judgement came Wednesday, in the second service of his month long "crusade" in Indianapolis.

"Mr. Khrushchev," Graham spoke as though K were present, "despite all you say about not believing in God, some day you and all your kind will call upon Him, but the tragedy is that some day it will be too late to pray. Our prayers are to be prayed this side of the grave."

No comment has been heard from the condemned.

This will be the topic of discussion at the IFAR organizational meeting.

Drew vs. S. Jersey Rutgers

Stevens Downs Drew 2-1; Season Log 4-2.

by Doug Davis

On Wednesday afternoon the Rangers journeyed to Stevens, where they dropped a close 2-1 decision to a strong Engineer squad which had previously beaten highly rated Rutgers. Ed Chestnut scored the lone Drew goal and fullbacks Mike Sherbin and Dan Marcus contributed tough defense to make the game a close one. Up until the final second the Green and Gold still could have pulled it out. During the final minutes they pressed frantically for an equalizer but couldn't come up with the big goal which would have sent the game into overtime.

All the scoring was done in the first half of a game marked by bruising body contact and tough aggressive play. The Rangers took the lead late in the first quarter as Ed Chestnut turned in a scintillating play to put one into the nets. They couldn't make it hold up however, as Stevens came roaring back to tie the game midway through the second period. Then, with four minutes left in the half, the Engineers chalked up what proved to be the deciding goal on a fine shot by their Right Wing.

The third quarter was fairly even and scoreless with Drew fighting hard to even it up. The hustling, hard hitting defense of Andy France and Andy Kaiafas continually stalled Stevens' scoring threats and got us back on the attack.

In the final quarter it became obvious that Stevens' was tiring rapidly. Led by Tony Kaiafas, Drew dominated the game throughout the last ten minutes. Time and again they seemed on the verge of scoring only to have the Engineers hold on doggedly for the win. The loss set the Rangers record back to 4-2 and left them still looking for their first road victory. After returning home against Lycoming and Rutgers, the team must play its final three games away, and this could be a key factor in Green and Gold hopes for a successful season.

NATIONAL SPORTS BRIEFS

Football — Michigan State trounced Notre Dame 19 to 0 behind the quarterbacking of Dean Look and some stout line play by the Spartans forward wall. With a first down and two yards to go for a touchdown the Michigan State line was solid as a rock as it threw back Notre Dame's fullback, Garguilo, three times and quarterback Izzo once.

The University of Pennsylvania remained undefeated as the hard-hitting Quakers thoroughly trounced Brown University, 36-9. In another eastern contest, Bill Carpenter, Army's lonley end snared nine passes from teammate Joe Caldwell to lead the Cadets to a 21-6 victory over Duke.

In other games Princeton downed Colgate, 42 to 7; Syracuse tripped Holy Cross, 42-6; and Yale sent Cornell to its first defeat, 23-0.

Sport Shorts

By Art Binz

Saturday's 4-2 victory over Lycoming was largely due to the revamped lineup which Coach Tappin installed. Versatile Andy Kaiafas, who has played goalie and halfback, was moved up to the line, with the result that he booted his first two goals of the year. Craig Wilkinson, dropped back from the line to the all-important center-half post, performed like a seasoned veteran as he helped keep Drew almost constantly on the offensive. This game was a marked contrast to the Steven's game in which the Rangers were rarely on the offensive and lost 2-1. Maybe that age-old axiom, "The best defense is a good offense," still holds true. Anyway, it looks like the Rutgers game on Young Field Tuesday should be a doozy (a real battle). My guess on the score, Drew 3, Rutgers 2.

Congratulations are due Tony Kaiafas, the man with the "golden toe" who netted four in the Lycoming game. This was just one goal short of the all-time Drew record set by Tony himself against N.C.E.

The intramural football league is quite close this year with a three-way tie for first place existing until last Friday's intramural games. The juniors, behind the strength of their 63-0 win over the freshmen, and also because of the fact that they now seem to have found a pinpoint passer in "Wimpy" Engler, seem to me to be the team to beat.

Drew Rips Lycoming 7-2, 6 Goals By Kaiafas Duo.

by Larry Day

On Saturday afternoon, October 17, the Rangers won a game from Lycoming by the score of 7-2, before a large rabid crowd. The Drew offensive was almost completely dominated by the Kaiafas brothers who scored six goals between them.

Scoring started early in the first quarter when at four minutes and ten seconds Tony Kaiafas booted his first of four. Lycoming tallied also in that quarter, but except for that the Rangers dominated the first half. At fourteen minutes and twenty seconds of that same quarter Andy Kaiafas, moved up to lineman from his usual halfback position, kicked his first goal. Two minutes later Andy booted his second to wrap up the scoring for the first quarter.

In the second quarter Tony Kaiafas scored twice in the first three minutes. His first tally came at one minute and the other at three minutes. Tony scored once more in that quarter before ten minutes had elapsed as his third score of the quarter, and fourth of the game, came at nine minutes and fifty seconds.

SPORTS PERSONALITY...

by Vic Burke

For an individual whose activities vary from acting to being a member of the College Academic Standings Committee, Mike Berman's participation in varsity soccer is just another manner in which he puts his creative talents to work. This season marks his second year on the varsity soccer team, his freshman year being the first.

In any activity that Mike does he puts as much of himself into the task as is possible. In the four years that Mike has been here at Drew, he has achieved an outstanding scholastic record. He is president of the National Honorary Biology Society at Drew, and was Vice-President of that now defunct but then glorious college dorm—Sam Bowne.

Mike went to high school in Baltimore, Maryland, where he was a member of the National Honorary Society and a Varsity wrestler. Thus he came to Drew with no previous soccer experience, gaining his defensive skill in only two years of play.

SOCCER RULES: HALFBACK

By Doug Davis

The basic problem of a soccer halfback's job, according to Ranger Right Half Andy France, is that more than at any other position, he has to play both offense and defense. He must work closely with both the fullbacks on defense and the line on offense. Thus a halfback must cover the entire length of the field and needs to stay in top condition to accomplish this successfully.

On defense, each halfback has a zone he must cover; either the right, left, or center of the field, and he also has an individual opponent to watch. In addition to this, he must also be ready to cover up if one of his teammates is caught out of position. Andy stressed the importance of talking with the fullbacks in order to switch defensive assignments to meet changing situations.

On offense, Andy emphasized the need for the halfback to always keep close enough to receive a pass back from the line. When he gets it, he tries to loft the ball high into the center in front of the goal or to cross it over to an unguarded wing or the other side of the field. If he can do this, even though he may not score all year, he'll make a valuable contribution towards setting up many of the team's goals.

Drew, for Mike, represents "a place of wonderful opportunity." He hopes to go on to graduate school and concentrate on his zoology studies. No matter what Mike does it is obvious from his record at Drew, not only in sports, but also in academic matters, that he will make the greatest possible contribution regardless of the size or importance of the task.

Mike gives of himself that spirit which makes for a good competitor which has been characteristic of Drew's soccer teams through the years. He feels that soccer is a "great sport" and one which he is exceedingly fond of.

If you are interested in playing see your dorm W.A.A. representative immediately.

In the third quarter Lycoming seemed to come alive and took the offensive. However, some fine defensive play by the Rangers held down Lycoming's prolonged scoring bid to only one goal.

In the fourth quarter almost all of the Ranger starting team had been taken out. However Lycoming still was held to their single tally. Near the end of the last quarter Ed Chestnut kicked in the last Ranger tally of the day.

The next Ranger game will be a home contest with Rutgers on Tuesday. This should be the toughest game that the squad will have to play, with another rough one in the away game with Trenton State next Saturday.

Sophs. And Jrs. Remain Tied In Intramurals

by J. J.

The sophs and juniors played to a 6-6 score and the frosh and seniors finished 0-0, on Monday, October 12th. Thus there remained a three-way tie for first place between the three upper classes, with the frosh bringing up the rear.

The sophs scored as their passer, Bob Catlin, threw to Al Swann in the end zone. For the juniors, a pass play also worked well as Bill Engler connected with Neal Mosher on a sleeper play.

On the next field touchdowns were continuously being nullified by penalties as neither the frosh nor the seniors could score. The game was played hard, both on the lines and in the backfields.

The following Friday, however, saw a change in the league standings as the sophs outdid the seniors 13-0 and the juniors swarmed over the frosh 63-0. As a result the sophs and juniors remained in a tie for first place, the seniors dropped down to second, and the frosh stayed in last place. The score for the sophs was a result of passes from Bob Catlin to Al Swann and again from Catlin to Bill Barrowclough. An extra point was added as Catlin hit Tony Christiano over the middle with another pass.

Bill Engler passed for just about all of the juniors' 63 points. He made it a habit of finding either Dave Poultney or Neal Mosher in the end zone, either for touchdowns or extra points. Other scores came as Poultney intercepted a pass and Shelly Steiner threw to Ron Saldarini in the end zone.

Providing that there are no rainouts on Monday or Friday, the league will end next Friday, possibly in a tie. If there is a tie a playoff will be necessary.
