THE INDEPENDENT STUDENT NEWSPAPER OF DREW UNIVERSITY

The Acorn

Founded in 1928

VOL. LXVII NO. 6

MADISON, NEW JERSEY

OCTOBER 21, 1994

Proposals restructure off-campus programs

Lead Editorial Still voiceless!

A task force on international study has drafted a proposal that features sweeping decisions that will affect all of Drew's off-campus programs. Although it was ostensibly created to make suggestions, the Strategic Planning Task Force on International Study and Off-Campus Programs met yesterday to finalize plans to increase the emphasis on the "Drew International Seminar," a creation based on the two year old Second-Year Seminar model.

The Task Force's proposals dictate using funds and resources of existing semester-long programs to finance these International Seminars. Drew programs in London, Brussels, Chile, West Africa, New York and Washington, D.C. will be affected.

Although the Task Force has been deliberating for one year, details of the proposed changes have not been released to faculty. A report is scheduled to be released to them Tuesday, and they are expected to vote on the plan in the first week of November—less than one month after receiving the specific proposals. The proposals have also been kept, either by omission or design, from student eyes.

Should the decision become definite, the funds would be drawn from existing semester-long international programs. Though we do not begrudge other programs their share of the off-campus money, the University should not alter programs that are fundamentally successful. The Drew semester in London, for instance, is widely regarded as the best program offered by an American university in London.

It will effectively be cut in half.

Continued, Page 4

John Therkelsen Assistant News Editor

A College of Liberal Arts Task Force met yesterday to put the finishing touches on a set of proposals that would, if approved, effect significant changes in the organization and funding of all of Drew's off-campus programs.

The proposals, which have not yet been made public, reflect an attempt to redistribute funding for off-campus study. Although the details of the proposal are not yet released, they would entail significant cuts to the London semester, alterations to the Brussels semester and the elimination of the Chile semester, as well as the creation of an International Seminar program.

Administrators and members of the Strategic Planning Task Force for International and Off-Campus Programs stated that the Task Force's proposals do not constitute an official decision, "Until [the plan] is approved by the faculty, it will not be implemented," Director of Off-Campus Programs Cathy Messmer said. Task force chair and Professor of Sociology Jonathan Reader said, "People have been told a hundred times that-all we [Task Force members] do is recommend."

Reader will present the recommendations to the Dean's Council for approval Tuesday. "The Dean's Council signs off on this, then we put it out [to the faculty] with any additions, amendments, deletions," he said. They, in turn, will have until the Nov. 4 faculty meeting to discuss the proposals regarding off-campus programs. At that point, "I anticipate that the recommendations will be voted on. The odds are slim that there will be a delay in November," Reader said.

ELEMENTS OF PROPOSAL

Although he would not detail the specifics of the proposal, Reader identified three main elements being considered as parts of the plan. The first is making other colleges' and universities' off-campus programs more accessible to Drew students. The Off-Campus Programs Office would evaluate other schools' programs and approve ones that meet certain criteria. Drew students, could apply through the Off-Campus Programs Office to an approved program, pay Drew's normal tuition and receive full

"We are trying to come up with ways to make financial aid available for students who have need and want to go on these programs," Dean of the CLA Paolo Cucchi said

Second, Reader cited the creation of the "Drew International Seminar." Based on the Second-Year Seminar model, "the International Seminar is in line with general education ... it offers [a] breadth of learning," he said.

The third element of the proposed plan is that of the semester-long programs, instituted at Drew almost 25 years ago. These are expected to continue with some modifications and possible budget cuts.

"The problem is how to find a way of incorporating the International Seminars into the CLA budget," Cucchi said. "We may have to achieve some savings from some of the current semester-long options." He did not offer specifics on which programs would be affected.

CUTS IN PROGRAMS

According to Associate Professor of English Jim Hala, the London semester will be offered only once per year instead of twice. Nevertheless, Hala said, "we want to maintain it as it exists." There has been concern, however, from faculty both at home and abroad that these changes will herald a complete restructuring that would adversely affect the academic integrity of the program.

According to Dr. Stephen Coleman, director of the academic program in London, the Task Force did not notify London faculty concerning possible changes until last week. "There was compromise with no consultation," he said.

Professor of Anthropology and former director of the London Semester Phil Peek said that many people perceive the London program as a financial drain on the University because of lower enrollment rates in recent years.

"Sure, we don't draw as many students from other schools as we used to, but the program has not lost money," he said. "Drew's program is one of the most serious academic programs in Lon-

The reputation of Drew's London program has made the possible restructuring of the London Semester a controversial issue. A London Semester Advisory group, which includes Hala, Peek and other past directors of the semester, has been working to oversee the Task Force's proposals.

The Brussels Semester on the European Community will probably undergo only a few changes, according to Professor of Economics Bernard Smith. "My impression about Brussels is that it ... will be left primarily intact," he said.

Smith said that he made a presentation to the Task Force to emphasize the merits of continuing the Brussels semester. "All See OFF-CAMPUS, Page 3

Campus prepares for parents

David Cennimo Staff Writer

This weekend, Drew will open its gates for the annual Parents' Weekend. According to co-chairs sophomore Brandi Gestri and senior Kevin Kelly, there have been quite a few changes in this year's Parents' Weekend. One of the biggest is the addition of Saturday felt that there should be more to show for it," Gestri said. This change in sentiment resulted in the contracting of a comedian. Mark Curry, the star of the television sitcom Hangin' with Mr. Cooper, will perform at 9 p.m. on Saturday in Baldwin Gym.

The other major event is the Parents' Weekend Auction and Bazaar. A silent auction is being

TRISTA KODEUSKIE

Members of the Committee prepared for Parents' Weekend Thursday.

night entertainment and the auction.

"We wanted to add an activity to keep Parents' Weekend going through Saturday night," Director of Student Activities Kim Sweeney said.

"The parents pay $25, and we run by the Parents' Weekend Committee (PWC) in conjunction with the Development Office. Bidding will take place from12:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the Gym.

Parents, alumni, members of the Drew Community and others have donated prizes ranging from a hot air balloon ride to a chance to conduct the Drew University Chorale. A DUDS subscription, a trip to Vail, Colorado, dinner prepared by Dean of Student Life Denise Alleyne and many other items and services are on the block. The proceeds from the auction will go toward the University's endowment.

In addition, many other activities will be available to parents. A student talent cabaret will take place Friday night, along with the DUDS performance of The Shadow Box by Michael Christofer. Saturday, there will be a women's soccer game and a concert by the Drew chorale.

"I am very pleased with the way things are coming together for the weekend. Everyone is helping out above and beyond their usual responsibilities," Gestri said.

When asked what their biggest wish was for the committee, both co-chairs agreed more funding was necessary because Parents' Weekend operates without a budget from the University. They held fundraisers, including a flower sale, to earn money.

"I hope the University will decide to fund us for next year," Kelly said. "If we only had funding, we could plan an even better

Memories of study abroad

Drew students in London use the Kilb urn Park tube station.

'The Real World' in London

MTV is planning to broad cast a special series of 'The Real World' based in London, England this spring and is looking for University students to be cast members. Any student selected from the Drew London semester program will live with the rest of the MTV cast instead of in Drew housing, but no additional commitment will be necessary.

Interested students must sub mit a sample videotape to MTV as soon as possible.

Contact Cathy Messmer a the Off-Campus Programs Office at x3438 with any ques-

-The Acorn News Service

Career Fair

A New Jersey Career Fair. sponsored by National Career Centers-USA, Inc. (NCC). will be held Dec. 12 and 13 a the Meadowlands Embassy Suites Hotel in Secaucus.

During the fair, potential job applicants will visit suites reserved by individual compa nies for screening and schedul ing of further interviews with company representatives.

Students must register in advance by sending a resume to the NCC, which will then be pre-screened by participating companies' representatives before the fair.

For further information, call -800-326-9111. -The Acorn News Service

Correction

The Acorn ran a transcript of remarks made at a panel discussion during Multicultural Awareness Day in the Oct. 7 issue. The speech was wrongly attributed to Dr. Carlos de la Torre, who was, in fact, the The remarks were actually made by junior Joel Nunez.

The Acom apologizes for any confusion our error may have caused.

-The Acorn News Service

Authors to discuss work

Fiction and Non Fiction, a speaker series sponsored in part by the English department, will present the first of three authors Oct. 27.

Grace Paley, author of five critically acclaimed collections of stories and a volume of poetry, will discuss her work The Collected Stories Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Great Hall.

Professor of English Joan Weimer and Graduate School Alumnus Mark Jacobs are scheduled to speak in Novem-

-The Acorn News Service

DUDS hosts playwrights Oates, Linney Authors praise student performances, speak on profession

Andrew Gerber

Most Drew theatre majors consider the Drew University Dramatic Society opening nights to be special occasions, but rarely has one been more special than that of

Not only did the theatre arts department and DUDS present the first two productions of the year, Can Can and Greensleeves, but two guests sat in the audience. The theatre arts department invited the plays' authors, Romulus Linney and Joyce Carol Oates, to attend.

At 6 p.m., the faculty and students of the theatre arts department had dinner in the faculty dining club in the University Commons with Can Can author Linney and Greensleeves author Oates and her husband, at 'or Ray Smith. Professor of theatre arts Buzz McLaughlin moderated a question-and-answer discussion.

McLaughlin asked Oates and Linney questions including how they became involved in theatre. Oates replied that she had begun as a fiction writer. "I didn't believe that I could be a play wright."

Nevertheless, over the years, Oates has been invited to write for various theatre companies and directors and, "in recent years, I have written only plays." she said.

Linney had a more anecdotal answer to McLaughlin's question. He grew up in a town outside Nashville, Tennessee and recalled that as a boy, when he went to see his mother perform in a production of Our Town, "I brought some cupcakes, and I thought I would be bored." Mrs. Linney's character, the play. During the performance, duction, "assume there's some-Linney thought, "That's my mother up there, not yours,' and I cried all overthe cupcakes." Linney was so moved by the play, he developed an interest in drama.

Linney describes meeting actor-director Charles Laughton as a high point in his theatre work. Laughton gave advice to the people who were working on a production with him. "For me it was a revelathing wrong with it."

self. I was an actor for a long time ... I'm basically performing inside when I'm writing."

Oates said that what she found most interesting about the theatre was "the idea of the theatre, the life, the intensity ... It's all present tense, all right now."

Linney said that what he ad-

Mrs. Linney's character ... died during the course of the play. During the performance, Linney thought, "'That's my mother up there, not yours,' and I cried all over the cupcakes."

— Romulus Linney

tion. It was the first time I saw the generosity of an artist," Linney

When asked how she thought of ideas for plays, Oates replied that her ideas came to her "in a dreamlike dimension." She added, "Novels have a narrative voice my plays

Linney agreed that writing fiction and playwriting were very different. "You don't have a voice as a playwright, the characters have voices." Plays are also "much more action-oriented ... Novels have so much greater canvases ... the stage makes up for it in intensity. There's nothing in a novel that I know of that rivals the emotion when Oedipus comes on stage with his eyes gouged out." Oates considers the actors in a play very important to the play's development, especially when an actor will "bring something to the character I don't even know about."

mired most about his friend Oates was "her love of the theatre ... You have to really love the theatre. It demands a great deal. It gives a great deal, but not all the time."

Linney said he has sometimes had problems working with directors, as was the case with the first play he produced. "I was unfortunate because I started badly ... I just made a choice that I wasn't going to go along with this," and he retracted the production.

When asked to give advice to aspiring thespians, Linney said, "Everyone should go see Ed Wood . The movie is very moving because it explains what everyone goes into theatre for-for what you can't get from your family."

He recalled that in his early experiences in theatre, "I was at home and I felt happy. That is the feeling you must have in your profession.

After the discussion, the participants watched the productions in the Commons Theatre. Senior of first-year students in Can Can. Joe Mihalchick played an Ameri-Linney said, "I write for my- can ex-GI who remembered his love affair with a young French women (Thersya Lukito). Eventually the young woman told her boyfriend to leave because her family had a history of heart disease. Their tale overlapped with a love story between two women

(Amy Marie Hutchins and Sarah

Murphy). Following Can Can, senior Victor Alexander Afanador and junior Courney Kramer starred in junior Elizabeth Klett's production of Greensleeves. The play was a meeting between Leon, a struggling actor, and Tamara, a deeply roubled model.

After Greensleeves, DUDS president senior Trondell Dupree and McLaughlin introduced the playwrights, directors, production staffs and casts of each play to the audience. McLaughlin then led the traditional post-production discussion in which the audience could ask the various artists questions.

Linney said that he was happy that Minogue's production of Can Can captured "the basic values of the play ... It was extremely well

He confessed that the storyline about the ex-GI and the young woman was autobiographical. He has kept in touch with the woman who was the model for the French character in the play and frequently receives letters. She had gotten married and has undergone "a series of many heart operations ..

She studies reincarnation à lot." He has seen numerous productions of Can Can, but told Minogue and her cast, "I like what you did as well as anything I've seen." through to get the skill."

Oates also held high praise for the director and cast of her show. "I was very moved by tonight's production. I thought the acting was superb, and the direction obviously got them there." She cited Kramer and Afanador's performances as evidence that "good acting creates its own sense of being." Like Linney, Oates had seen several productions of her play, but "none were as poignant line, "And he died ... of AIDS?," which set off a round of discushe died?" but the director of the original production convinced her to add on the last two words.

had AIDS.

The participants in the P.P.D. decided that Afanador's character should drop the last two words for the three remaining DUDS performances.

The day ended with a reception in the Commons lobby, at which everyone had an opportunity to speak with the authors in a more casual setting.

Students discuss meal plan

Assistant News Editor

Last Thursday, the Student Government Association held a meeting in University Center 107 to discuss the University's meal plan system. An administrative panel responded to the audience's

Dean of Student Life Denise Alleyne, Director of Purchasing Harry Scarpa and Director of that the contract, which the Uniplans were installed.

Under the 20 meal plan, a student is provided with 20 meals a panel is that the snack bar someweek at the Commons, as well as credit at the snack bar, during in violation of daka's contract. specified Validine hours for meals missed during the day ($2.05 for breakfast and $3.25 each for lunch or dinner)

Under the 14 meal plan, stusnack bar; the 10 meal plan has a

However, students can pay extra money to increase their balance. Each dollar paid, the panel said, will add on $1.05 to the balance.

The contract with daka is based on a 65 percent participation rate. In other words, the contract assumes that the average student is going to miss seven to eight meals

"Thus, while most students think they are actually paying for 20 meals, daka is only charging number of meal plan options so them for approximately 14 meals that students would have more than

ing. Many students consider win-

But as some prepare for ski trips, exotic vacations or a few weeks of relaxation in front of the television, a few students will head back

JanTerm offers the opportunity to study unusual topics and to take regular classes with an unconven-

Participating students can take one intensive class for three and a half weeks, from Jan. 2 to Jan. 27.

Topics range from the traditional.

such as English 5: "Literary Analysis" to the eccentric, such as a class

According to Director of Jan-

Sociology Louise Murray, "Faculty have the wonderful latitude to thing that is of strong personal

not taught during the regular school and students voluntarily choose to come to JanTerm. The small classes of only about 16 students provide ronment for learning," Murray said.

"It presents an ideal opportunity interest to them."

on Hollywood's golden years.

for a month.

to Drew for classes.

tional format.

ter break a time to rest, bond with on-campus classes will probably family and enjoy a stress-free life travel outside Drew more often

Term and Associate Professor of Murray encourages students to be able to offer a course in somethan during the regular semesters.

She said many professors seize sons. Since students take only one

the opportunity to teach classes course, a trip does not force them

the advantage of an intense envi-

This January, Drew will offer one change since the pamphlet campus-wide.

24 courses, four of which will be about the program was mailed for learning because the faculty may be used for travel.

since they know that everyone is just three plans to choose from. not going to eat every meal ... It's essentially a numbers game," Chair of the SGA Food Committee junior Chris Blewett said.

A numbers game that, according to the panel, nets daka a profit margin as low as two to three percent. The average profit margin for comparable service is usually between five and seven percent. The 65 percent participation rate is the reason for the restricted Housing, Conferences and Hos- Validine hours at the snack bar, the pitality Patricia Naylor explained panel also said. With extended hours, the rate could be exceeded versity signed with daka three which would increase prices for years ago, was initially bid for a students. "daka is a business," 20 meal plan system. However, Blewett said, "and like all busistarting this year, 14 and 10 meal nesses, their goal is to make a

Students also complained to the times closes earlier than 11 p.m.,

Violations such as these, the panel said, should be brought to the attention of the administration. According to first-year student

Brendan Blight, this is a good exdents get a $150 balance at the ample of another problem. "We were never told ... who we were [supposed to] talk to about that," he said. He continued to say that students have been told very little about the new meal plan in gen-

Several suggestions were made. One member of the audience suggested that students pay only for 10 or 14 meals, and thus pay less for room and board. This way, they can keep the remaining money and use it to pay for meals at the snack bar in cash.

Another idea was to increase the

Even students who take attend classes during JanTerm.

According to Murray, field trips

are more common for several rea-

Also, since no classes meet on

Fridays, the last day of the week

All course are worth three cred-

There has, however, been at least

Students may travel to Paris or Riker Hall was removed from declined in the past few years.

its, and many count towards major requirements or general distribu-to miss other classes.

Most of the people involved seemed at least content with the meeting, regardless of their opinion of the meal plan itself. "I think we got a very good idea of how students feel, what they want in a board plan and what they are willing to sacrifice," Alleyne said. "The tone of the meeting was very positive. got the feeling that students understood the limitations but were willing to negotiate. Students had several good suggestions."

"It shows that some students have thought a lot about the program and have given suggestions and we have thought about those suggestions and will consider the possibilities," Naylor said. "I wish, though, that more students had attended to voice their concerns, complaints and suggestions," said sophomore Marti

The administration is currently negotiating with daka. It may bring a proposal for a new meal plan but, as Blewett said, "It's a little premature to say if anything really definitive has come out of the meeting, but at least the administration is listening to the

He went on to say that "what' a matter of debate is whether or not we understand or choose to understand the explanation of the meal plan and whether or not they [Alleyne, Scarpa and Naylor] take student suggestions seriously. In my opinion I think they will, although I don't know if they are necessarily in a position to put our suggestions into

"Things [on campus] are quieter to allow time for more intensive study. We are aware that social life is sparse during Jan-

Term, and we are making efforts to offer a few more social activities ... we are asking faculty members if they would be interested in giving a few campus-wide lec-

In addition, the William E. and

Carol G. Simon Forum and Athletic Center will be open to all students and faculty, and the men's and women's varsity basketball teams will play several

"For our student athletes, tak-

Students who receive

ing a class would be an ideal way

need-based financial aid will be notified after the week of Nov.

Registration for JanTerm will end on the first day of classes in January. Applications for on-campus housing, however, are mote community-wide recognition of Drew, a selected number of courses are open to Continuing Education Auditors," Murray

said. CUE students will pay only

20 years ago, participation levels have varied. According to Murray,

the last decade has seen a boom in enrollment which has gradually

Since the first JanTerm nearly $200, but will receive no credit.

This year, "in an effort to proto use their time," Murray said.

tures," Murray said.

games on campus.

due Nov. 15.

Proposal effects changes

OFF-CAMPUS, from Page 1 of the [semester-long] programs were in a sense on the chopping block," he said.

Smith voiced concern over possible competition between the International Seminars and the semester-long programs. "One of the things that becomes clear in any budgeting situation is that ... people start making comparisons and trade-offs," he said.

Smith expressed hope for a plan incorporating many types off-campus programs. "I see the International Seminars as complimentary to semester-long programs," he said.

Another possibility is the cancellation of the Drew Semester in Chile altogether, Messmer said. "The program in Chile will probably be discontinued because we've experienced staffing problems. We need more staff to rotate in the director's position," she said.

When asked about professors' concern over the future of semester-long programs, Reader noted that "every program has its advocates, and there's often sentimental feelings about one's own program." He said that the high quality of Drew's existing off-campus programs has made the Task Force's evaluations difficult. "We have some excellent programs, and we [the Task Force] will come to an agonizing decision on Thursday," he said.

REASONS FOR CHANGES Administrators and faculty cite many reasons for modifying Drew's existing off-campus programs system. University President Tom Kean cited a lack of variety in Drew's off-campus offerings in relation to other schools. "We are still offering those same quality [off-campus] experiences, but other schools have surpassed

Reader specified a necessity to mold Drew's programs to the abilities of professors. "We [the Task Force] are trying to model things within our resources and play to the strengths of our faculty. We're developing programs in areas where our faculty have expertise,"

Regarding the development of the International Seminar, Reader said. "We think the Drew International Seminar has sufficient promise ... A number of different corporations and foundations gave money [to the Second-Year Seminar pilot]. Second, the Off-Campus Programs Office surveyed people demics, including off-campus pro-[who participated in the SYS], and grams. "The faculty is the ultimate those results were positive. Also, in anything having to do with eduthe response from the faculty [who cation. The way universities are taught in the SYS] has been positive.

Reader stated that the combined amount of information available to faculty and students. "My understanding is that we are in an extremely tight time frame right now. Faculty have only two weeks to make this decision," she said. "The message has come down from the vice presidential and Board [of Trustees] level that we have to wrap up the déliberations. We're under this deadline, so we didn't have time to educate positive responses of donors and

participants in the SYS merited pursuing the Drew International

Seminar. When asked whether the Task Force had specifically canvassed participants in Drew's established semester-long programs,

Reader replied, "No ... but whatever decisions will be recommended, even though we didn't do the surveys, have been done with

According to Hala, the International Seminar, a three-week course, should not be a substitute for a semester abroad. "It is my understanding that it is an intro-

The proposal also calls for the compilation of a list of approved non-Drew programs. According to Rea 'r, "This practice will offer more students more opportunities to study off-campus for the dol-

LIMITS ON DISCUSSION

straints have had an impact on the Messmer said that time con-

great care and thought."

duction," he said.

people," Reader said. According to Kean, the time constraints were placed because "the Task Force is probably trying to make the Strategic Plan work. The Plan was commissioned by Kean s Presidential Planning Commission and is due for completion in the spring.

There are currently no plans to acquaint students with the specifics of the proposals, although Reader mentioned the possibility of "[setting] up a meeting or forum for students.' Cucchi, an ex-officio member of the off-campus programs Task Force, said that there is no student on . Task Force because "most of the work was done, the student was not replaced," he said.

"Adding ... a student representative would have taken a lot of work," Reader said. Kean was not aware that the student representative had not been replaced.

Kean said that faculty, rather than student, input takes precedence in choices regarding acastructured, the faculty has the final say," he said.

DREW UNIVERSITY INTERFAITH COMMUNITY FORUM ON

Reverend Dr. Eugene Stockwell Protestant Theological Seminary of Buenos Aires, Argentina Dr. Phyllis Chesler International Committee for Women at the Kotel

Reverend Dr. Victoria Erickson Drew's University Chaplain

Tuesday, October 25, 1994 • 7:00 p.m. The Great Hall, S.W. Bowne Hall of Graduate Studies Madison, New Jersey $10 per person, Students - Free

For more information, call Pat Glucksman at 201/408-3270

Drew University Health Service Presents:

Asthma and Bronchitis— Breathing Freely

"Signs and Symptoms" "Dangers and Warning Signs "Seasonal and Evironmental Issues" "Over the Counter and Prescription Medications"

"Prevention"

Donatella Graffino, M.D., Speaker Drew Allergy Specialist

Tuesday, October 25, 1994 11:45 a.m.—12:45 p.m. Welch-Holloway Lounge Beverages Provided

Everyone welcome! Same-day flu shots available!

JanTerm offers alternatives who was another character's Wheneversheis developing aplay, Most professional productions, acmother, died during the course of she will, in the early stages of pro-Kathleen Minogue directed a cast cording to Linney, "did not quite have the warmth and the sincer-Spain to practice their language the list of residence halls to be Christine Seymour ity" that this production had. used for housing, so students enskills, to Israel to study the interac-Staff Writer Among these four young actors, tion between religion and democrolled in on-campus classes will "the skill isn't there yet, but neilive in either Welch or Holloway racy or to Egypt to experience life As the semester progresses, the ther is the difficulty you have to go holiday season is rapidly approachthere first-hand

as this. In the past I have been somewhat pained watching it Linney suggested that Oates drop the word "AIDS" from Leon's sion. Oates responded that in her original script, the line read, "And

Afanador favored the version of the line that mention AIDS, but several members of the audience said that the words "of AIDS" were unnecessary because Tamara's description of her friend's sickness implied that he

LEAD EDITORIAL

Off-Campus Screw

As a one semester program, it may well prove impossible to retain the current classroom facility or the top-rate British faculty the University employs. Moreover, these faculty have only recently been apprised of the proposed changes that have been taking shape for over a year.

In spite of the fact that the decision to make changes has not yet been finalized, the process has already been set in motion.

Apparently, the reason for the truncation of the program in London is the cost and decline in student interest.

Yet figures reveal that the London semester pays for itself, and the decrease in participation reflects a decrease in University-wide enrollment and an economic recession.

We fail to understand how slashing the size and scope of the program is expected to attract more students or contribute to the University's prestige.

The proposal would eliminate the Chile semester entirely.

The Task Force has done extensive surveys of students who participated in last year's Second-Year Seminars; the programs received well-deserved praise, yet no comparable study has been done of students who took part in the semesters off-campus.

Such a glaring omission can only have skewed the data on which the Task Force has been basing its decisions.

The closest the Task Force came to asking for input from the average student was a survey on international study and offcampus programs released last semester over E-mail. Approximately twenty percent of the CLA students responded.

Significantly, semester-long programs were by far the most

It would seem student opinion has had no effect on the Task Force's deliberations. What is most infuriating is that there is no student representative on the Task Force. The former representative graduated in May and was never replaced.

These plans have progressed and will be finalized this November without any student knowledge or input.

Tuesday, the proposal will be presented to faculty, but as yet there are no plans to release the report to students.

This is outrageous.

Increasing the number of options available to students is important, but we are wary of the costs involved in doing so. The three-week seminars are exceptional programs, but they do not provide a substitute for a semester abroad. They are designed to co-exist. Disabling one to augment the other weakens the program as a whole.

In an effort to hem the torn edges of Drew's international programs, an "approved list" of international programs offered by other universities is being prepared. This is at best poor consolation. Presumably, students elected to attend Drew for the quality of its programs, not to access a handy reference list.

With the transition to the 4-4 credit system and memories of theme houses in our heads, we want to remind the administration that we are concerned with possible changes to our academic

Since no decisions have yet been officially made, we urge faculty to listen to students before voting to imptement changes that will compromise the academic integrity of our international

We refuse to be silent on issues that ultimately affect us; leaving us out of the decision-making process will only serve to create conflict in the future.

We have a voice and we intend to use it.

The Acorn 201-408-3451 Executive Editor Editor-in-Chief Opinions Editor John Siminoff Assistant Reid Fishler Entertainment Editor Andrew Gerber Assistants Richard Masso Sports
Editor Juliette Gaffney Assistants Ron Moss
Erik Slagle Paste-Up Manager Kara Norton Photography ors Darcy Parish Trista Kobluski Copyediting pordinator Emily anforth Business Manager Dominick Esposito
Assistant Megan Wilson The Acorn is the independent student newspaper of Drew University. The above editorial expresses the majority opinion of the Acorn editorial board. All by-lined editorials, Letters to the Editor and editorial cartoons represent solely the opinions of

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to the Editor must be received by 5 p.m. the Tuesday preceding publication. Please include both a signed hard copy and a disk copy saved under WordPerfect 5.1. Under extreme circumstances, The Acorn will print letters anonymously, but, for legal reasons, the Editor-Chica and the surface of the control of the c in-Chief must know the identity of the author.

Letters should either be hand-delivered to The Acorn office. University Center Room 109, or mailed to the above address.

The Acorn reserves the right to edit letters for length, clarity, and/or libelous content Letters withheld because of space constrictions will be printed in a following issue.

READER'S FORUM

No justice for falsely accused students in academic hearing

Have you ever been accused of something that you did not do? It is quite an upsetting situation, especially when you proclaim your innocence and it is virtually ignored. The reason I ask this question is because of an incident which occurred here at Drew within the past few

On September 9, two sophomore students took a quiz for their Math 17 class, a third-level calculus class. They had studied together the night before, and had helped each other with problems they did not understand. When they left the quiz that afternoon they were not overly confident — it had been a hard quiz — but they were not concerned because they could drop the grade if necessary. They got their quizzes back a week later with a note on the top to see the professor. They had no idea what about. You can imagine their shock when the professor accused them of cheating off of each other.

According to the students, the professor - who wishes to remain anonymous - gave them two choices: admit that they cheated and get a zero on the quiz that could not be dropped, or go through an academic integrity hearing to determine their innocence or guilt. The professor had already made a formal complaint in the Dean's

The students were scared; they had just been accused of something that they did not do, and they were afraid of of these things, but he did not have much to say. He did not the consequences of the hearing. They decided to go to see have anything to say. In fact, he seemed rather uncomfortthe head of the Math department to ask him for advice. able with the fact that this article was being written. I wonder They went to Dr. Candiotti, whom they thought was the why — if he feels he was right, why won't he defend it? director. They were wrong, but Dr. Candiotti already I have also wondered why they would cheat on a quiz that knew about the accusation. I guess he had heard it from the professor. It was not until halfway through the meeting accusation: she had him for another math class. It soon a zero? I wonder if Professor Anonymous thought of these became apparant to her that Professor Calculus was aware questions. I don't know, he had no comment. of this and told Dr. Candiotti of the accusation against her.

The hearing took place exactly three weeks from the were informed before the students were. The two students nothing I can do about that except complain they were even informed of the accusation. However, the they told her that they had worked on it together. She said agree with me. that many people in the class had worked on the assignment together, but she was singling them out because they had been accused of cheating by another professor. She later then refused to give one of the students a grade on the homework, feeling that the two should share the grade. And the hearing had not even taken place. It took place on Friday, October 7. They lost.

Why they lost I will never understand. They had many things to prove their innocence. They had been given their quizzes back, and they realized that their answers were not identical, as Professor XYZ had led them to believe. They had their notes to prove that they had studied together. And they lost. guess it was just one of those it's-our-word-against-the-professors-and-there-are-no-students-on-thejudiciary-board-so-I-wonder-who-they-will-believe hear-

There are many aspects about this incident which upset me other than the outcome. Fi of all, I do not understand why so many people were told about the accusation before the students were told themselves. This is unfair, and highly unprofessional. Second, I do not agree with the fact that the professor obviously informed other professors of this case before any judgement had been made. That is damaging to the reputations of the students, and is known as slander outside of this campus. Third, I do not understand the professor's basis for the accusation. I am having a hard problem understanding how a person can cheat on a math test, since math is universal and all the answers should be the same anyway. I attempted to talk to the professor about all they can drop. The grade was not that important. Also, why would they go the time, stress and trouble of a hearing if they that one of the students realized why he knew about the could have admitted that they were guilty and received only

I have asked other people about this professor, and They were advised to speak with Dean Cucchi, which they many seem to feel that he does not have a good handle yet on lid. They decided that the hearing would be their route. how to run a class. He is lacking in experience, and many They did not want to admit to something that they did not students seem to agree. One student commented that, in a do just because they were afraid of the hearing. Dean Statistics class he took last semester, some students would Cucchi advised them to try to settle with the professor get up, get the quiz, and walk or the door with it. Yeah, total outside of a hearing first. They did try, but the professor control over a class. It seems that this whole accusation had no interest in it whatsoever — he wanted them to admit comes down to a power trip. He had to prove that he does to cheating. They would not lie, so they scheduled a have a certain amount of control, and he did it at the expense of two innocent students.

I think that what disturbs me about this case is the total usation; however, in that time, the students had begun lack of professionality that surrounds it. Why the professor to feel the ramifications of the accusation. In the days felt that the Math department had to be informed of the following the accusation, the students became aware that accusation before the hearing took place is beyond me. It is other people had been told of their accusation before they immature, unprofessional, and it not what I would expect themselves were. Professor X had announced to his from a professor who teaches at an institution such as Drew. Statistics classes that two students had been caught cheat- I am also disturbed that the judicial system at Drew did not ing in his Calculus class. Also, the Dean and Dr. Candiotti work. It failed miserably in this case; however, there is felt as though their reputations had been tarnished, before Not that I can do much about this whole cheating thing. But this is just how I feel. I hope that Professor Anonymous is most disturbing incident occurred in a Computer Science enjoying his new found power. It came by tarnishing two class that the two students share. They had worked students' repuations and effectively calling them liars. There ogether on a homework assignment, and received a call is no redemption left for them now, and they can only take from their professor a few days later. It turns out that she comfort in the support that they feel from those who do noticed that their homework assignments were similar; believe them. I am one of those, and I can only hope that you

> Alison Takach Sophomore

Drew University, in conjunction with The BET Foundation, presents former President George Bush speaking on the "World as I See It," Wed., October 26 at 8 p.m. in the William E. and Carol G. Simon Forum and Athletic Center

The Real World

Genetic sciences offer hope and danger

John Siminoff Opinions Editor

Recently, in my sociology class we were discussing the impact of technology. The topics included artificial wombs, genetic testing of unborn fetuses, and other various issues about reproductive technology. As the discussion got a bit more heated (as these type of debates are wont to do), it was said several times that these devices, which are becoming more and more viable, increasing technological sophistication, will end up destroying many important things such as the mother-child bond. These devices could also damage or destroy a child's early socialization, or possibly go so far as to make women "obsolete," should perfect artificial wombs ever be created (no offense intended).

It would seem that this type of confrontation between society and technology is rapidly approaching. Every day on the news we hear about a breakthrough, whether it is that a damaged fetus was healed with a new genetic treatment or that a new chromosome was identified and scientists can now determine trait "X" in the unborn. Although I seriously doubt that women are going to become "obsolete:" however, there are many aspects of genetic/reproductive technology that are both miraculous in their healing possibilities and repellent in the unbridled evil

It would seem that these techniques unhealthy must they be? Where have been sneaking up on society rather quietly. The possibilities of these new technologies promise massive upheavals in the way our world's future will unfold. Take, for example, the possibility of curing almost any inheritable disease before the person is ciety. No diabetes, retardation, hemophilia or any of thousands of possible defects that are caused by genetic malfunction. Birth defects become less and less likely as early detection occasionally allows some currently experimental prenatal cures. Yet, to balance out this wondrous prospect, there is the issue of being able to "program" a child to be born exactly the parents desire. Another issue is the idea of the "custom child abortion," where parents who decide that a boy or girl is more desirable abort the etus if tests show the unwanted sex. This particular issue is becoming an increasing reality as this technology increases in its availability across the nation and the world. Imagine for just a moment a society in which children could be born without fear of birth defects. Parents could have tests done to check for genes that might cause congenital heart defects, predispose a person for towards cancer or any family tendency (breast cancer, obesity, had knee joints, anything). Cures might be found for these, but, if there isn't a cure, will that result in mass abortions of the they could unleash upon the world. potentially unhealthy babies? How would you draw the line? The moral implications are astonishing. As technology plows forward at the astounding pace that it historically has, all of these things, once the realm of science fiction. are rapidly entering the visible scientific horizon. Most major hospiborn, an unimaginable boon to so- tals can perform amniocentesis, ultrasound, high-resolution NMRs, and a battery of other precision tests. In the next ten years, barring the apocalypse of the Clinton health care plan resurfacing and eliminating medical research, who can tell what might become part of the normal routine for prenatal care for women in this nation? What can be done? Should this type of research be stopped? Should an international ban be employed to stop it? Could we simply ban it and thereby ignore the issue? It is naive to believe for even a second that we could do that. So long as the promise of such amazing cures looms in the darkness of the unknown, many will plunge ahead trying to uncover them, and along the way who can predict what they might unearth? It would seem to me that this type of technology promises to be the next "nuclear bomb" for mankind, simultaneously promising both tremendous good and the opportunity for evil. Society must remain painfully aware of what science is finding, and insure that any chance is strictly regulated.

of twisting these reproductive technologies towards undesired goals

A lament for London lost

Jessica Papin Executive Editor

When I returned rom the London emester this sumner, I was convinced it was the the best experience of my Drew career. Countless times I have been tempted to use this column to describe the program, to detail just how fantastic I thought it was-in other words, write a tanding program.

I wish now that I had.

Tuesday a proposal designed by the task force on off-campus study will be presented to the faculty. Under the guise of broadening and diversifying, a highly successful academic program is essentially being dismembered. This is not simply a case of something not broken being fixed, it's about something healthy being taken out and The quality of the London senester has never been questioned. Drew was one of the first to establish such a program, and it has consistently been one of the best. Students work with British faculty whose academic pedigrees and experience are staggering. As an undergraduate, I felt privileged to conduct an independent research seminar under the direction of Steven Coleman, a fellow of Oxford University, and learn the inside machinations of the British Parliament from Kevin McNamara, Member of Parliament and Shadow Secretary for Northern Ireland.

They were subject to no faculty review; they were not even consulted by the off-campus task force at work redesigning the semesters they must instruct. It is unconscionably irresponsible that the University left them so completely in the dark.

It is naive to assume that a halfhearted program could hope to retain the faculty's services. Doubtless they will continue their caprotracted advertisement for an out-

> Obviously, these changes are not being made in an effort to improve the London Semester academically. Could it nevertheless be replaced with something better?

I doubt it. As a half-year program we could not retain our space at Westminster Central Hall, a building at the very heart of London, next to Westminster Abbey and in view of the Houses of Par-

More importantly, there has been discussion of cutting the number of British faculty involved with teaching the courses. This would be a fatal mistake. Students do not opt to study abroad merely for a change of scenery. We want to work with people who have more than a cursory knowledge of the the city and the country in whose culture they are ostensibly educating us. Studying with British faculty marks a profound and enriching change in our mode of learning. If Drew compromises that, than the University is failing.

See Off-Campus, page 6

READER'S FORUM

Acorn column attacking Take Back the Night March out of line; solidarity is demonstration of power

I find Mr. Siminoff's Opinions ar-"Useless symbolism no substitute for people. The universal scope of its thesis and the manner of its defense are he demonstrates no real understanding, let alone a command of the facts). Finally, it offends by being just plain wrong on at least one of the few supposed facts that Mr. Siminoff does mention (his comments on the new litical arena, be it that of global polipolicy towards gays in the military tics, a local government, union negowhich conclude that nothing has tiations or a popular movement. A the opinions and efforts of other people. on people."

Back the Nig1+ march as a powerful symbol and an effective action in and ticle of the Oct. 7 edition of The Acorn, of itself. Mr. Siminoff himself admits that violence against women is a probdirect action" offensive on many lev- lem in our nation (though his tone does els. It is condescending. It trivializes not clearly indicate that he realizes the the efforts and opinions of many magnitude of this problem) yet fails to appreciate that the march is a loud, clear, and unmistakable voice stating both poor journalism and trite (i.e., that violence against women will not Mr. Siminoff's statements regarding be tolerated. He also fails to realize certain "actions" as more effective than that the march is a voice of solidarity "useless symbolism" in areas in which (as are some of his other examples, i.e. Men's Vigil, Blue Jeans Day).

A display of solidarity is not a useless act of symbolism; it is a demonstration of power. I would direct Mr. Siminoff's attention to almost any podisplay of power in these circumstances missal of these acts as ineffectual that Mr. Siminoff is at his most offensive, but when he assumes a position of authority and dictates to the practitioners of "useless symbolism" what it is they ought to be doing. Not only is this condescending, but also it comes from a man who had demonstrated no comprehension of the issues involved in his examples.

ply wrong when he states that the "don't ask, don't tell" policy towards gays in the military "... was simply a codification of the policy that already existed." Parts of the former policy were codified into the defense authorization bill for fiscal year 1994, including the military ban on homosexuality. Also codified, and different from the previous policy, was the prohibition of asking a recruit or enlisted man or woman if he To characterize the Take Back the is often enough to sway the actions of or she were gay. The bill made no clear example of Mr. Siminoff's lack on both sides of the particular issue, the other parts of the compromise into place by executive order. This Many women and men regard the Take However, it is not in his casual dis-includes the "don't pursue" language credible evidence that a man or woman is gay prior to any military investigation. If the new policy is strongly enforced, then the inquisition-like investigations into the private lives of the men and women of the military should cease, and a person can only be discharged for or be investigated for being gay if he or she is openly gay. At the very least, the new policy allows for the possibility of setting new legal precedents in suits brought by gays in the military against the Pentagon if they are investigated. I grant that this is far from an ideal situation, and the struggle for rights of gays in the military is far from realization. However, it is different from the prior policy, and it has challenged what had been a "liberal"), he is forced to resort to such sacred policy of the United States tricks, as "The Real World" is far too Armed Forces. Mr. Siminoff tries to turn the lack of a clear victory for the broad scope in two thousand words or Night march as useless symbolism is a the groups and individuals involved mention of, and therefore left intact, rights of gays in the military into another example of "useless symbolism" of understanding of and disregard for thereby having "... a measurable effect policy the Clinton Administration put in order to support his thesis. This is misinformation, and it is both disturb-

For example, Mr. Siminoff is sim-

which makes it necessary to introduce self a man of action, and perhaps this is why he feels able to offer such strong and sweeping advice to his readers The pose of "action" is often accompanied by the assumption of self-evident validity. Perhaps this is also why he feels that any symbolic act to better the lives of those involved is fair game to be labeled useless. Often people assign labels with great generality to ideas and persons to invalidate them. I find it ironic that Mr. Siminoff uses this technique to justify a large portion of his thesis. It seems more like empty rhetoric than action to me. Of course, by attempting to universalize his the sis the ame way that some conservatives attempt to universalize the label complicated to defend a thesis of such

> Matthew A. Trobaugh Departmental Assistant Physics Department

University's publicity in news media exceeds all expectations; students should publicize Drew as well

National Reputation." I couldn't agree more. In fact, we For the most part, Drew's media 2,000 four-year colleges in the U.S., as 65 percent of higher education me- look at that paper. The Penn State last Spring when Gov. Mario Cuomo to improve its reputation it must get

This is just to add some perspective Other sources have put that figure as articles in 1992-1993 on higher educato a recent column in the Acorn (Oct. high as 75 percent for colleges with big tion. Drew was prominently featured work pretty hard at this every day in coverage is reversed. In other words, many of them competing for space in heads of staff and administrative units highly competitive professional and doing? Since the New York Times was Times is fierce. According to the study, as much mentioned in the Acorn column, let's

Drew.

That's not bad considering there are

University Relations. The problem is 65 percent of our coverage comes from the Times. Or, using the "Fiske Guide" that not everyone sees every article non-sports activities and events. The which identifies only 175 selective that appears. We do circulate many of reasons are easy to understand. Drew colleges in the country, Drew's one them to faculty department heads and competes in Division III sports in a percent share is about double expectations. All things being equal, Drew within Drew, but that still doesn't an- big college media market. We're not could have expected to be in only 10 swer the question of whether we're going to push Giants football or Seton articles in the Times (i.e. 1,835 articles doing a good job or not? And, until Hall basketball off the sports pages. divided by 175 schools). Bear in mind recently, we didn't have a good mea- So the bottom line is that we have that these 175 schools include Harvard, sure to help answer the question. Now to work harder to get press coverage Yale, Stanford, Duke, Williams, etc. we do thanks to a study done at Penn for Drew. Given that, how are we So the competition for space in the dia coverage is devoted to athletics. survey said that the Times ran 1,835 spoke at commencement, through the people talking about the University summer which included visits from We welcome all the help we can get.

Henry Kissinger and Alan Shepard Importantly, we recognize that our very 7), headlined "Drew Must Maximize sports programs. That's not true for in 20 of them, or just over one percent. and three World Cup soccer teams, best ambassadors are our students. So into September with Dick Cheney and when you're at home and have an now George Bush this month, Drew is opportunity to visit your high schools, getting strong local, regional and national press coverage, including ex- something positive about your home tensive TV coverage in Europe and in the forest, please do so. South America from the World Cup. Pogo, a once famous cartoon char-

TV to cover speakers, we do. Alan enemy and they is us." What he meant, Shepard's Drewtalk, for example, was of course is that we are all part of the on C-SPAN for two days after his visit. solutions. Henry Kissinger said "no" to TV and we honored his request. Unfortunately with high-profile speakers a lot of what we can do is dictated by them.

The Acom's columnist is right on Let me end by saying that from the mark when he says if Drew wants

take time to do it and if you can say

By the way, when we can invite acter, used to say, "We've met the

Tom Harris

University Relations

Raritan cursing law violates constitutional right of free speech

John Hwang Assitant News Editor

Everyone should mark October 11. 1994 down on their calendars. On this date, in Raritan, NJ the town council voted to create a law that bans all obscenity. Violators could be both fined and jailed. Now, in this town, the law determines the words you can speak. Controlling language equates to controlling thought and belief. George Orwell's 1984 presents an ultimate version of this scenario, where the people cannot even think of criticizing the government because they have no words to create and express such thoughts. But let's not get ahead of ourselves, certainly one little town banning four-letter words is not on ished universally. In other words, to control thought. Essentially, the same level as the totalitarian murder directly harms other people. establishment in 1984. Unfortu- A law that deals with anything nately the principles behind both else-freedom of speech, religion,

Clearly, what is of primary concern in this issue is a problem of law-a law that, incidentally, en- to make such a law? Its supporters country, we have the right to be-

or her own house.

private? According to this law, a tects the people's right not to hear stitution of our nation proclaims it. person can no longer swear in his such language. Well, along those Certainly, regardless of what we ceiver who has the final interpreta-compasses all cursing, public and claim it is lawful because it pro-

lines, then, why haven't we banned can and cannot do in public, we You can't necessarily make the racism? Though race-related have the right to say and believe argument that the law ends at a crimes—beatings and things of that what we want in our own homes. person's front door; after all, if you nature—have been banned, it is One critic of the law pointed out, murder someone in your house, still legal to profess racism. Cer- for Raritan residents who subscribe it's still illegal. But the difference tainly this offends people. Why is to HBO, the problem gets even

One critic of the law pointed out that for Raritan residents who subscribe to HBO, the problem gets even more complicated. Are they going to arrest HBO subscribers if someone curses in a movie? Will they arrest HBO? Maybe they'll just arrest the actors who curse. Or maybe the script writiers... So what we have is a law that breaks the foundations of psychology, linguistics, basic American societal philosophy, and logic.

between something like murder and there no law to prohibit it? swearing is that murder is more of press, etc.-focuses on philosophical and moral conflicts.

ethics. Is it ethical to create such a with the central question: is it right the thoughts we have, and in this people have the right to be racists. But, as I said before, the obscenity law is trying to suppress free thought. The same applies to any That being said, we must deal the words we speak directly reflect

It is not banned because in that to arrest HBO subscribers if somea universal crime, and is thus puncase, the law would be attempting one curses in a movie? Will they arrest HBO? Maybe they'll just arrest the actors who curses Or maybe the script writers...

Also at issue here is the diversity of our language. Words of instance of language suppression; power are just that, words of power. True, they may or may not be offensive, but they are still-despite what people will say-a part of the language. Many sigh at the ineptitude of people who cannot effectively use English or effectively say what they mean. This certainly is a problem with our society, but prohibiting swear words certainly isn't going to help the problem.

Also, we have to stop and think: particular orifice on our bodies. erase them by simply creating a However, we-as the transmitter law that bans them. and receiver of words-designate

Off-Campus

From Page 5

Until recently these programs

inknown to British faculty as well specifics of the proposal have not with it has been remarkably closemouthed. I am not suggesting that the task force has entered some conspiracy to withhold informa-shut us out, is unacceptable. Ironisemester that makes no mention of change. When were students go-ketable. Seemingly, it allows Drew various corporations that there is less of the cost-but if the London semester, one of Drew University's most respected programs, is ing to be informed?

proposed changes were completely

tion. After all, think about a words in terms of sequence: first a person says something, it travels through a medium (air) and lastly the other person interprets it. This is not to say that the transmitter has no responsibilities of interpretation, just not the final one. Thus, if someone gets offended by swearing, who is ultimately responsible for that occurrence, the speaker or the listener? Obviously, it is the listener.

Yet this law evidently places the responsibility not just primarily on the shoulders of the speaker, but more complicated. Are they going rather totally on the speaker's

So, what we have is a law that breaks the foundations of psychology, linguistics, basic American societal philosophy, and logic. On a happier note, the Raritan Chief of Police said that he would not enforce this new law; which means that the law has no practical value either. But this legislative aberration reflects a typical trend in our society-several, in fact. One obviously has to do with politically correct language and people who are simply too prim and delicate for their own good. More importantly, though, there is a tendency (and perhaps it's not a new trend) for people to believe that what are words exactly? In and of whatever problems or conflicts themselves, they are nothing more exist in this country, you canthan noises that stream out of a instead of dealing with them-

New meal plan has unexpected boon

Reid Fishler Assistant Opinions Editor

I'm set. We are about

int balance on the All Campus Card to me by the ultra-nice photo desuming I am so enticed by these of $232,30, which means I have partment here at The Acom ) that treats that I just shove each one in spent a total of $12.70 of my means I would end up with without parcelling out the ecstasy $245.00 I got with my 10 meal 0.0005775 pounds of dissolved into bites. I wonder how many plan. Assuming I spend the same solids. Darn, still not enough for calories that is? Probably too amount of money in the second me to tell what they are. But to many... I am trying to stay within semester, that would leave me with think what I could do with 21 gal- the 300 pound weight limit for my a balance of $219.60. Since I can't lons of water... heck, I could take a bike. Ugh, and I really wanted roll this money over until second bath! semester, I've decided to see what

I can buy with it. Let's say I'm thirsty — very thirsty. bagels. That's 36 dozen bagels with I think I have come to the realiza-With my $219.60, I can buy 175 seven extra to share with friends. I tion that I can't spend all this money Snapples. That's 2,800 ounces of would need an awfully large myself. Well, I could, but what I the sweet nectar of life. I wonder if bagels though, and the snack bar the U.S. Army, forget just little old you can run a car on Snapple? It's doesn't sell blocks of butter and me. Is there any particular reason I more expensive than gas. At snack cream cheese. I could, however, am required buy these so called bar prices, buying that much make bagel chips. I wonder how 'points' in the first place? I was Snapple would end up costing me much a toaster costs. I don't think told that we needed to give daka $10 a gallon. Last I checked, unthey accept the All Campus Card enough room to make a profit, so leaded was $1.09 for the same at the mall. Maybe I could sell those of us who don't eat three amount. Maybe Snapple is high them as paperweights. octane. Something to look into I Apizza from the snack bar costs thus choose the 10 meal plan are guess; my car only takes 12 gallons $7.15 according to the board of forced to loose over $300 before of gas. All that lemonade or juice, prices they have posted. Amazing we even get to eat our first meal. cents left to buy a large soda. All board look nothing like what you participation rate they say. The

Ok, how about some water? Some cuss, I have $219.60 to spend! the snack bar before the end of the good of H2O. The snack bar's Back to pizza—even though I can semester, you can't spend it at the choice of water, delicious Spa natu- get a pie at Firehouse for $4.99, bookstore, or even at a vending ral spring water, is $1.25 for a pint. let's say I have a craving for snack machine so you could at least get Sound familiar? Again, I could buy bar pizza. As I walk up to the prepackaged food. I am left to de-175 waters. That's 21.875 gallons counter, I am able to order 30 pizza cide which one of the above choices of water, just like the Snapple. A pies! That's 240 pieces of savory I will opt for. quick glance at the 'Nutrition Facts' cheese covered crust that I can label tells me this won't cost me dish out to all my friends. anything in the nutrients depart- I can just see them lining up at tendance at the Thursday, Oct. 13 ment. No calories, no fat, no so- my door for the "All You Can Eat meeting about the meal plan proves dium, no carbohydrates and no pro- Snack Bar Pizza Party." Maybe my point—something needs to be tein. I have to begin to wonder I'll need Public Safety for crowd done for this semester, because what makes this water worth far control. Then again, maybe some of us don't call the loss of

There is an extra bonus in it- most popular in Drew cuisine. according to the label, there are 3.3 After a lot of consideration, I

Next up, there are those won- sharing? derful bagels. At 50 cents a pop, I After another more detailed look Snapple is $1.25 for 16 ounces. could get 439 delicious snack bar at the menu at "Le Baro de Snack," Snapple. That's 21.875 gallons of amount of condiments for those get if you order that same item, but $245 that they so thoughtfully ne-Snapple is too sugary you say? that's not what we are here to dismilligrams of dissolved solids in - realized that I probably should buy each liter of water. Since two $1.25 the best food in the snack bar with bottles of water equals a liter, and my rash of funds: Otis Spunkmeyer six weeks into the se- I could buy 175 bottles, it means I cookies. Chocolate chip—three would have 288.75 milligrams of cookies for a dollar. That's 657 six weeks to go, and I dissolved solids! Using my handy- soft, chewy mouthfuls of that perdandy conversion table (provided fect mix of chips and cookie, asthose too. Anyone interested in > would buy would be too much for meals a day at the Commons and

I don't think that it is fair, and I think the standing-room-only at-

Genetics

From Page 5

In my opinion, if it is not abused, research in this area promises the possibility of several major as Drew students. Even now, the achievements for humanity. The elimination of birth defects, in and been released. Everyone connected of itself, from a perfectly humanitarian viewpoint is a goal worthy of almost any investment. Secondly, imagine the decrease in medical expenses in general if we tion; I am, however, insisting that as a nation no longer faced the cost of maintaining those babies born this process, which has effectively with major defects. Babies are most cally, Drew is still mounting a relikely to recieve massive investcruitment program for the London ments in critical care in our hospitals. This is only logical because if even the slightest whispers of a baby is saved that could be 80 years of potential life, whereas a 76 year old critical care patient It is painful to see the University does not have the same life potenyummie! I would still even have 85 how the pictures of food on that It's all based upon a 65 percent hurt itself. The International Semifunds, is not, and can never be, a debate would be one read about in substitute for a real immersion in history books. Lastly, the societal another culture. It is as glossy as it | cost of assisting those afflicted with is valuable, and immensely mar- inherited diseases would be greatly reduced, if not eliminated. Imag-University to lay claim to a truly "global campus." Doubtless after receiving millions of dollars from with. Every year hundreds of millions of dollars are spent on thouconsiderable pressure to see it sucsands of patients nation wide (and ceed, and succeed wildly, regardstripped of the qualities that make it excellent, then the price is too more im ortantly, scarce medical organs) on diseases that this technology could make completely unneeded. The Health Care debate

ine how many medical resources could be freed if all of these lifelong afflictions could be done away resources like blood and donated would have a very different ring to it if all of these things were to come to pass. But care must be taken to avoid those possibilities that exist for misuse (everything from Hitler's dreams of a race of perfect Aryans to a simple imbalance of male to female babies). We cannot as a society let this slip from our grasp, not for one second. As with many things the price of progress is vigilance.

more than oil, but then I see it. not...it's snack bar pizza, not the $500 dollars too easy to swallow. President Kean's next Open Office Hour will be Thursday, Oct. 27th at 4 p.m.

HOW TO KEEP PEOPLE'S HANDS OFF YOUR MONEY.

- Carry only enough cash to last the day. Anyone who tries to borrow your last five spot isn't a friend, anyway.
- Label your spare-change jar "beetle farm." Then, put your beetle farm in a jar labeled "spare change."
- Mark up every space on checks. Don't leave room for someone to fill in their name and extra zeros.
- Keep your wallet in your front pocket. It discourages pickpockets. So does wearing really tight pants.
- Dut your picture on your credit card. A Citibank Photocard is tough for anyone else to use, unless they look just like you.

WE'RE LOOKING OUT FOR YOU.

$DUDS \bullet DUDS \bullet DUDS$ The Shadow Box: Cristofer's celebration of life

Elizabeth Knee Staff Writer

rest. It's been nearly twenty years voice from within a speaker. since it was heard or seen.

New York City decided to revive it at the same time as Drew University. In 1977, it won a Pulitzer Prize for Drama and the Tony Award for Best Play.

October 21-23 is Parents' Weekend, and your parents are coming to campus, no matter what excuse you fabricate.

Before you leave them in a boring lecture, or run away into the woods, check out what the Drew University Dramatic Society (DUDS) has prepared.

This weekend's DUDS performance is The Shadow Box written by Michael Cristofer and directed by senior Michael Barret Jones. Find one of those new map stands on campus and get your body over to Bowne Theater on October 19-22 at 8 p.m.; there is an additional afternoon show Saturday at 2 p.m. The theme of the play deals with people's reactions to the unfamiliar process of dying.

The play takes place in three separate cottages on the grounds of a hospital in California. Three characters are afflicted with different deadly diseases.

The audience is never told what these diseases are; this mystery allows the audience to place illnesses in the empty spaces and personalize the play.

However, just in case someone in the audience lives near the Fountain of Youth and hasn't personally dealt with someone dying, think of it as a guessing game.

Everyone thought it was laid to winded dialogue with a n weniv

Joe (first-year student Paul worker (first-year student Debbie of his dying. DiNuzzo) is the first character we Koeppel) who is constantly asking She also neglects to tell their son meet. He delivers a some what ong-questions. Joe's struggle involves Steve (first-year student Mike his wife and son. His wife, Maggie, Lonardo) that his father is dying. (first-year student Marsha Harman) Eventually, it becomes evident refuses to enter the cottage be- cursing at the trees and his parents that the voice belongs to a hospital cause it symbolizes her acceptance and then sits for the duration of the play listening to his Walkman, unaware of any pain his father is going through. In cottage two, we have Brian (sophomore Adam Schraft) who has an eccentric ex-wife (senior Nanon Turner) and a new lover (sophomore Justin Steeve).

Steve storms on to the scene,

This love triangle pulls you in every direction. Schraft's makeup is perfect. The tension and fire between Turner and Steeve is elec-

It's a battle between the old and new love, and it has its share of violence. Stand back for the second slap scene.

Thumbs up to Schraft and Steeve for acting out a gay relationship so for junior Elizabeth Klett. She smoothly and effectively.

(sophomore Mary Sawyer) and her daughter Agnes (first-year student Abby Merriam). Felicity is a smart- as a possible disease for one of the mouthed senior citizen who bites characters. back when she remembers where Agnes is kind and quiet and puts and insults. Again, Sawyer's make- experience. up adds fifty years to her young Another thumbs up goes to the set designer, senior Caylin Sanders and stage manager, junior Brenna McCarthy for the play that allows the audi-

At times there was too much action going on in the cottages, and the audience's attention was diverted away from the central action. If it gets to be too much for you, flip a coin and pick a cottage. If your dad starts to fall asleep during the opening music, don't worry-he'll wake up. The play opens with a mix of music and bizarre animal sounds. Then a blast of white light shines from behind a curtain backdrop, illuminating the theater.

This wake up call is courtesy of former Drew student David Albano. The lights, coupled with a set that allows the light to shine through, complement each other

The original play was written in the late 1970s but Jones has updated it for the 1990s.

This made costume design easier dressec the haracters in appropri-Cottage three contains Felicity ate clothing to depict the time.

By pushing the play up in years it also introduces the issue of AIDS

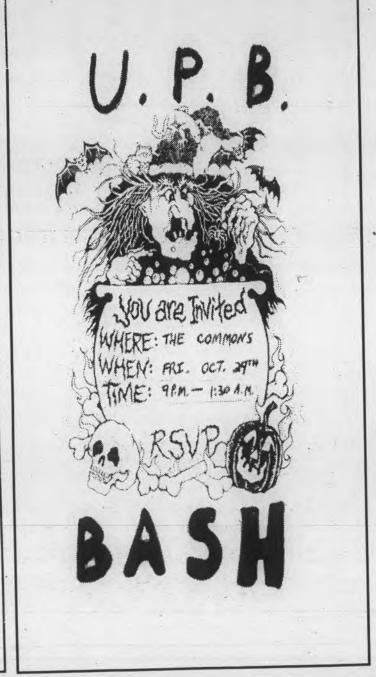

It is a full length play, and Ron 'says to wear a sweater. Beware of seat 105 in the back-it's broken up with her mother's dirty songs and could ruin your theatre-going

Otherwise, Jones does a terrific job of directing and everyone should take a bow for providing some serious entertainment on this "mediocre campus."

If nothing else, it blows two They managed to construct a hours with your parents. You don't beautiful and functional backdrop have to say a word to them, and you can pretend that college has given you a little class.

Sharing moments in Cristopher's The Shadow Box.

$DUDS \bullet DUDS \bullet DUDS \bullet DUDS \bullet DUDS \bullet DUDS \bullet DUDS \bullet DUDS$ Can Can heroes find it better to have loved and lost

ENTERTAINMENT

Alison Takach

"As rays of moonlight stream through a sudden gap in the rain clouds if we could meet even for so brief a moment!"

Love is not as easy as it seems in the movies. Therein lies the point of Romulus Linney's Can Can, the DUDS 1994-1995 season premiere. Starring only first-year students, the play was a powerful study of love and the pain associated with it.

The play explored the relationships of two couples—one heterosexual, the other, lesbian. The play opened with each character speaking separately in monologues, reflecting on past relationships which had affected their lives. As they presented their stories, the relationships of the characters soon Lukito stood out with her heartplayed an ex-GI who meets and place between a housewife and a Mihalchickseemed resigned to the

In the middle of the play, the monologues stopped, and the couples began to interact with each other. It was at this point that the play was most powerful, and the actors were at their best as the plot built in intensity. With the interaction came the doomed. The housewife had been were forced to break up, not be- and Lukito. cause they did not love each other, but because it was the best thing for them. The woman in the other break of witnessing a loved one ence care about what happened to them. While all performed well, woman, played by Thersya Lukito. parent in the scene in which she tic display of emotion. It was very easy to relate to what she was saying and feel the pain of her charac-

Hutchins and Murphy performed well, although the deep emotion was missing. Murphy always seemed too nervous and Hutchins too happy, even during inevitable realization by all of the the break-up. The emotion they characters that their love was displayed never changed throughout the play, and it seemed as carrying on a secret 12 year rela- though their relationship was not tionship with her lover. The two as meaningful as that of Mihalchick

Senior Kathleen Minogue did a fine job in both her positions as director and set designer. The couple was sick, so they broke up simple set added to the feeling of in order to spare the man the heart- the play. Four stools with four separate curtain paths allowed the characters to remain separate, yet The actors brought a life to their all four paths stemmed from a characters, which made the audi-single curtain, allowing them to be connected at the same time.

In terms of the direction, Minogue obviously had a good became apparent. Joe Mihalchick wrenching performance. She gave idea how she wanted this play to her character a different life and come across, and she achieved it. I falls in love with a young French personality, which was most apwho could make this development The other relationship takes and her lover parted. While work. She has a good sense of timing, without which the play country woman, played by Amy
Marie Hutchins and Sarah Murphy
Situation and devoid of emotion,
Lukito touched me with her realissity and emotion.

Talented first-year students abound in Linney's Can-Can.

ered-well-done performances, ing feeling. The characters could design and direction. Minogue had not regret their relationships, which described the play as being about left them with more than they had "lust and love." It was in one regiven. The audience seemed to spect, but it was more about how agree with the validity of this statelust can lead to a much deeper ment, and the applause signified feeling of love. The play explored their satisfaction with the play ithappiness, confusion and heart- self.

On all grounds, the play deliv- break, yet it ended with an uplift-

Courtney Kramer and Victor Afanador are strangers in the park in Oates's Greensleeves.

Greensleeves moves audience

Stephanie Palermo Staff Writer

The Commons Theatre ran Greensleeves by Joyce Carol Elizabeth Klett did an excellent for the story that followed. iob directing this one act play about coping with the loss of a

of its two actors, junior Courtney senior Victor Alexander tumn. Afanador as Leon Collier. The best part of Klett's set was Kramer's portrayal of the mys- that there was no backdrop. The tween comedy and drama. actor down pat; his sincerity came out-of-work actor.

through in his interaction with Tamara. Their chemistry made the play very believable.

The play opened with the song "Greensleeves" playing in the Oates on Oct. 12-15. Junior background, which set the mood Junior Graham Paine's lighting design left the stage dark except for a soft yellow glow on a park The play was carried by the bench. The lights showed shadows powerful, moving performances of the leaves on the floor and other kept when the play was printed. leaves were scattered on the stage Kramer as Tamara Hudson and to give the effect of a park in auterious woman made you want audience was allowed to imagine to find out her story. Her nearly the park anywhere and transport flawless performance was helped the story into their own worlds. by her successful transition be- Sophomore Joy Tomasko's costume design continued this theme Afanador's performance was of anonymity. The costumes told wonderfully honest, real and you exactly what they were supcompassionate. He had the charposed to-Tamara was a well-off them, so it became easy to emacter of the young, struggling chic model, and Leon was a young, pathize with their heartache.

Oates herself spoke to the audience after the Wednesday night performance. She commented on the usage of the word "AIDS" when Leon asked Tamara if her friend died of the disease. According to Oates, "AIDS" was not written in her original version of the play, but the word was subsequently added by a director, and it was

Oates thought that the word wasn't necessary to let the audience know why Tamara's friend had died, but that it was self-evident in the script. For the rest of the performances, the word "AIDS" was left out. Overall, this rendition of Greensleeves was very entertaining, because of the image of the actors as "regular people." Everyone knows people like

U.P.B. Movie of the Week Friday and Saturday Night in LC-28 8 p.m.

Grover Kemble jazz trio deserves loyal Follow...ing "Follow" is a majestic love song Kemble's vocals are emotionally

Erik Greb

Follow ... is a new release from the Grover Kemble jazz trio, featuring Drew's own Stephen Freeman on upright bass. Tom Sayek plays drums, and fronting the trio is Grover Kemble, who sings and plays guitar.

The band has been playing together for quite some time, and it really shows on this recording. The three musicians know each other's styles perfectly. Everyone complements each other and, as a unit, they are smooth and seam-

The musicians sound like they belong together. The band's style is fluid and tasteful. They are never excessive or showy, but prefer to be understated.

Kemble's smoky voice recalls Louis Armstrong and, at times, Richie Havens. His vocals are simple and honest.

His nylon-string guitar has a nice feel to it. Kemble is most impressive on the solo in "No Regrets." Sayek's drumming is extremely subtle and minimal, but nowhere near rudimentary.

One problem of the album is that it is difficult to hear Freeman's bass. He was not given quite the room that the others were given in the mix.

can catch show a very strong and unique presence. Freeman provides a solid and intricate support to the songs.

Ten of the album's 15 songs are interpretations of songs by a variety of other artists. For example, the band performs the Everly Brothers' "Let It Be Me," a humble love song. Grover's vocals suit the appreciation and love in the lyrics and subtle. Descending arpeggios provides an eloquent end to the

15 Central Avenue

The band also transforms Fats Domino's rocking "I'm Walkin" into a smoother but still lively swing. Where Domino's version is a good thing she's missing. It is a driving and giddy, Kemble's is more calm and sophisticated.

The band beer nes more somber for Ray Charles' "You Don't most affecting is the title track.

Student Special

Large $5.99

Small $4.95

German teacher Steve Freeman jams in the Grover Kemble jazz trio. However, the glimpses that you and in his hands the song is mature Know Me." This song is a mournful ballad about a lover's feelings of alienation. The object of his affections is oblivious to his feel-> touching song, and the band handles it adeptly. Of the five original songs, the ings and is seeing someone else.

that she really doesn't know what

Nicky's Firehouse Pizza (201) 765-0565

Those nit-picks aside, WildC.A.T.s was a rush job all the way. Production began as late as June 1994 for this series, which debuted the first week of October. That's roughly four or five months to produce the first episode. The direct without ever becoming that conveys a sense of beauty and wonderment. Kemble sings about maudlin or overdramatic. lovers who follow each other, "And if I don't fill some need/ You will

This album presents a very talented and sophisticated band. The follow me no more." This is the experienced musicians play with closest to a pop ballad as the album such finesse on each song that it is hard to pick a favorite song.

The words are simple and

Cartoon Corner C.A.T.s in space

Augie De Blieck Jr. average animated half-hour re-

Jim Lee's WildC.A.T.s: Covert Action Team, the latest addition to CBS's Saturday morning lineup, is based on a comic book of the same name published by Image

WildC.A.T.s operates on the premise that Earth has been the host for a battle between alien races, the Daemonites and the Kherubim, stranded on the planet after a fierce battle in space some 10,000 years ago.

The Kherubim are the good guys and live here peacefully, mixing with the natives. The Daemonites are the bad guys, bent on world conquest, surviving only by inhabiting human hosts.

One human, a C.E.O. by the name of Jacob Marlowe, encounters the Kherubim super-computer Void and learns of the struggle. Armed with that knowledge and Void's powers, he has assembled a team of covert agents, the Kemble is convincing when he says WildC.A.T.s, to defeat the

That's the premise. It doesn't sound like anything too crazy for Saturday morning, does it?

Some of it has changed from the original comic book. Void is not a computer in the comic, but Jacob Marlowe is part-Kherubim. A character named Reno Bryce is a computer programmer turned superhero in the cartoon. Don't ask me what he is in the comic-I'm not sure, but I know it's not that. In the comic, Maul, another character, gets dumber the bigger he gets; in the cartoon he gets quires six months.

The animation, quite honestly, is sloppy. Colors are inconsistent, even non-existent at some points, between shots. Lips don't move when they should. Characters are frequently off-model. Animation is stiff in some places.

The plots have holes big enough to drive the Starship Enterprise through. The scripts are way too long-winded for a cartoon.

And, of course, there are the ubiquitous lessons to be learned at the end of each episode.

The voice work is one of the more interesting parts of the show if only because, as far as I can determine, the actors are all new-I can't remember hearing any of these voices in any other cartoons. It leads to an interesting sound. Unfortur tely, only a few of them Their lines, as melodramatic as they can be, become even more forced through the mouths of these

Is there anything I missed? Oh, yeah. They used rap music for the title theme. But the animation be-

WildC.A.T.s was originally scheduled to run opposite X-Men. In many ways, these two cartoons are very similar. Not the least of these similarities is the quality involved, or lack thereof. Now, in the same time slot as the exceptional The Adventures of Batman & Robin, WildC.A.T.s has no Decent premise, bad execution.

There is, by the way, a comic book adaptation of the series. Titled WildC.A.T.s Adventures, it makes the best of a bad cartoon. The adaptation adds a little more depth and sports some great art by Ty Templeton and Art Nichols. Skip the show; read the comic book.

DESTRACTION SDESTRACTI

The Shadow Box, tonight and tomorrow at 8 p.m. and tomorrow at 2 p.m., Bowne Theatre for $4.

Special Events

·Monday at 8 p.m.; Dance class in Forum Dance Studio. •Tuesday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Names in Asian languages in U.C. Sponsored by sparts

·Tomorrow at 2 p.m.: Women's soccer vs. Susquahanna. ·Monday at 7 p.m.: Women's soccer vs. Stockton

•Wednesday at 4 p.m.: Women's soccer at ManMavies

AMC Headquarters 10 New Nightmare Shawshank Redemption Quiz Show Love Affair Pulp Fiction Radioland Murders The Specialist Little Giants Puppetmasters Only You Exit to Eden Call 292-0606 for times.

For Madison Cinema 4, call 377-2388.

Today and tomorrow at 8 p.m.: U.P.B. presents Jurassic Park in L.C. 30. Starring Sam Neill, Laura Dern, Jeff Goldblum and Richard Attenworough. Directed by Stephen Spielberg.

Special Showings

Burton wants to be Ed Wood

Robert A. Coakley the same style as in Wood's own movie called Bride of the Mon-

Ed Wood starring Johnny Depp. Martin Landau, Sarah Jessica Parker, Patricia Arquette, Jeffrey Jones and Bill Murray. Written by Larry Karaszewski and Scott Alexander. Directed by Tim

Plan 9 From Outer Space will probably go down in history as the worst movie ever made. By comparison, Ishtar and Heaven's Gate are Oscar schlock movie and has influenced whole generations of z-grade movie makers. Watch almost any "horror ater 3000, and a Plan 9 influence is evident.

Plan 9 was created by Edward D. Wood, Jr., who is portrayed by Johany Depp in Ed Wood, Tim Burton's latest

I've always admired Tim Burton's success: Pee-Wee's Big Adventure and Beetlejuice were two of the oddest and most macabre movies I had ever seen. yet Warner Brothers trusted him enough to make Batman, one of the biggest money makers of all time. Burton's offbeat talent shines in his work, and his theme of alienation and outcast heroes are always a delight to watch.

Meanwhile, the film about the creator of Plan 9, Ed Wood films and it is filled with intense ster. ighting and camera angles that will thrill almost any film student. There is a quick joke about this when one of Wood's cameramen is revealed to be as colorblind as the audience. "I prefer the dark gray outfit," he tells Wood. Ed Wood begins as Ed is suffering from two prime worries: when his big break as film maker is going to come, and how he's going to tell his girlfriend (Sarah Jessica Parker) that he likes to wear her He solves both problems at once digs at Batman leading-lady

There is a quick joke about this when when Angora sweaters.

one of Wood's cameramen is revealed to be as colorblind as the audience. "I prefer the dark gray outfit," he rells Wood. movie on Mystery Science The- when he gets a chance to write, direct and star in Glen or Glenda. a movie about a guy who likes to > friend. Mindless precursor to Paris Is Burning? You be the judge. As Burton accomplished his dream of working with Vincent Price, Wood was able to meet and work with his idol, Bela Lugosi (an dress in Angora sweaters and doesn't know how to tell his girl-astonishing Martin Landau) The friendship between Lugosi and Wood is touching, as Wood shows him there is more to life than moping about faded glory, shooting morphine and calling Boris Karloff a "limey cocksucker."

Ed writes a speech for Lugosi about the pain of estrangement from your peers, which comes off quite well considering it's about conquering the world with a homegrown race of mutant freaks in a

The stress Ed and his friends

have to go through to get their movies made (stealing a giant rubber octopus, giving the talentless relatives of producers lead parts, getting baptized by the First Baptist Church of Beverly Hills) is hilarious, especially when you consider that all of the events really happened.

Some of the huge egos Ed is forced to endure also hint at some of Burton's own prima donna problems (I caught a few Kim Bass> inger and would-be Catwoman-Sean Young) Wood's struggle to gain main stream attention suggests Burton's own early fears. If it wasn't for the popularity of Batman, Edward Scissorhands and The Nightmare Before Christmas, Burton might have been just another messy-haired hack director who liked to wear black In Ed Wood, both Ed and the audience go through a Burtonesque epiphany that shows the strength of being true to personal artistic vision.

While I didn't exactly leave the theater feeling Wood's creation Plan 9 from Outer Space should receive an Academy Award for recognition, I did realize the importance of having pride in your work and having friends who accept you for who you are. Not many films with cardboard cemeteries and flying saucers on fishing poles

Guns, coke & gimps Andrew Gerber

Richard Masso

ENTERTAINMENT

Richard: I was laughing, I couldn'thelp myself. I didn't want to, but I couldn't control myself. Pulp Fiction was a hysterical

I had not yet seen it Saturday night when I was watching John Travolta on Saturday Night Live. There was a skit called "Quentin Tarantino's Welcome Back Kotter." For Welcome Back Kotter fans it was a true delight, but if you were a Tarantino fan it was like having someone go medieval on your ass.

Gerbs: The Kotter skit was definitely one of the funniest skits I've seen in a while. Mike Myers was a great Mr. Kot-ter. And speaking of great performances, Pulp Fiction was full of them.

Richard: Samuel Jackson was perfect in the role of the "born again" hit man. Also, Bruce Willis has always been cool to me. I thought he was perfect in the role of the rebel.

Gerbs: The other star, John Travolta, was likable as always, even playing Jackson's heroinshooting, low-life partner Travolta has never taken himself too seriously—he played a Streisand impersonator on SNL's "Coffee Talk" skit. He and Jackson made a much more believable pair of buddies than Mel Gibson and Danny Glover in the Lethal Weapon movies; but then, Travolta and Jackson's debate over the sexuality of a foot massage is great fun.

Richard: I particularly enjoyed the chemistry between Jackson and Travolta. They first appear to be a couple of losers talking about hash bars in Amsterdam. But as the movie progresses you find yourself caring about them. Jackson disappears in the middle of the movie, and you are worried that he was killed.

Gerbs: Also noteworthy in the cast were Uma Thurman as a emme fatale and Harvey Keitel as. a precisely efficient gangster. Like True Romance, which Tarantino also wrote, Christopher Walken is only in one scene, but it's a great

Richard & Gerbs: Tarantino's screenplay does not play it safe. The story has more surprising twists and turns than The Crying Game, and the language is not exactly P.C. The two hit men (Travolta and Jackson) drive to a white friend's house with a young African-American that Vincent (Travolta) has accidentally shot. The ordinary schmoe, played by Tarantino himself, who owns the house asks Jackson if he sees a sign in his lawn advertising "dead nigger storage." The language is realistic but unsettling. Perhaps the most unsettling thing about it is how many of the lines that toss around ethnic slurs are equally funny and repulsive. Please don't write us any angry letters-of course we know that racism is very bad and not really anything to laugh about.

Gerbs: Pulp Fiction is divided into a prologue and three interconnected episodes. Each episode is centered around a different event over the course of two days. Tarantino has a good time jumping around with the time frame-the three episodes do not happen in

Some of Pulp Fiction is pretty violent, but what else would you expect from the man who brought you Reservoir Dogs? We both had a lot of fun watching it.

You Don't Have to Be a Parent to Enjoy Parents' Weekend!

Schedule of Events:

Tonight (Friday night):

Student Talent Cabaret U.C. Lobby 8-11 p.m. Free

Saturday:

Beginner Aerobics with Dean Alleyne Forum Room 138 10 a.m. Free

Presidential Tennis Match Tom Kean v. Perry Leavell Noon Free

Bazaar and Auction Baldwin Gym 12:30-4 p.m. Free

Women's Soccer Game vs. Susquehanna Stadium 2 p.m. Free with ID

The Shadowbox Matinee Bowne Theatre 2 p.m. $4

Chorale Concert BC Chapel 3 and 3:30 p.m. Free

Catholic Worship Service BC Chapel 5:30 p.m. Free

Protestant Worship Service Craig Chapel 5:30 p.m. Free

Mark Curry Comedy Extravaganza Baldwin Gym 9 p.m. > $5 with ID

Every Tuesday Large $4.99

Full Menu—with Hot and Cold Subs

Hours: Sunday-Thursday open till 11 p.m. Friday-Saturday open till midnight

"Love at first bite!"

D1994 BY MATT GROENING LIFE IN HELL FIRST MOTHRA LIVED IN HE WAS GIGANTIC-THERE WAS A MONSTER NAMED MOTHER WHO LIVES THE HORROR OF MOTHRA VS. THE TERROR OF GODZILLA WITH AN AFTERWORD THE NEXT ONE IS WHERE MEANWHILE GODZILLA CAME OUT OF THE SEA AND ATTACKED ALL THE JAPANESE THE PEOPLE GOT SQUISHED AS A GIANT CATERPILLAR AND STOODED ON A SHORT ONLY TELLING THE STORY. BY HIS FOOT. THEN THERE WAS ANOTHER MOTHRA, AND THE TWO THEN ON THE FINAL DAY, MOTHRATURNED INTO MOTHRA WAS THE MOST HARDEST TO FIND MONSTER I'M THE NARRATOR, YOU'RE THE DRAWER. TO TO AND GODZILLA FELL OFF A THEY SPITTED OUT COCOON JUICE AND THEY COVERED CLIFF WTO THE DEEPS OF THE EARTH, AND THAT'S IT. THAT'S THE END OF DON'T YELL AT DAD HE YIKES TO DRAW BUNNIES. 哥

Any postseason chances the team has will be determined with the remaining few games. Considering their record, three more wins should give them a good chance at ECAC's," Eberhardt said.

"I think we have a shot at

This is from a team that was overlooked in the past. They have grown a great deal this year. This is also a team with a bright future, since they will remaining in the season, all of which are at home. Their next game is against Susquehanna

University tomorrow at 2 p.m.

sity team, but they are not a game

we can viow off," Laudermilch

said. "They took Elizabethtown

into overtime, and [Elizabethtown]

p.m. against Stockton State Col-

They then play Monday at 7

"Susquehanna is a first year var-

The Rangers have four games return all of their starters next a playoff bid.

on the turf.

Women's soccer continues successful season, adds 3 wins

Assistant Sports Editor

The women's soccer team improved their record over the past two weeks by going 3-1-1. The Rangers have four games left, all at home. If Drew finishes the season strong, they may have a chance at a bid in a postseason tournament. The Rangers are now an impressive 11-3-2 on the season.

Wednesday, Drew defeated cross-town rival F.D.U.-Madison 3-1. The Ranger offense ran wild, attempting 35 shots: Junior co-captain Meredith Doll opened the scoring early in the game and later assisted on a goal by junior Kerry

Junior Alyson Eberhardt added another goal, and the Rangers led 3-0 by the half. Drew's three goals were scored during a 12-minute

Doll's goal was her 10th of the season. Doll's 10 goals and 21 already out of reach.

right direction. We need to maintain and even raise our level of play for the remainder of the season," Laudermilch said.

Last Saturday, the Rangers traveled to Kings College for a Middle Once again, Drew controlled the

and the Rangers led 2-0 at the half. ware Valley College. The Ranger defense held strong, securing the 2-1 victory.

has 27 career goals and 60 career Junior co-captain Kate Smith tries to elude a defender in Wednesday's game against F.D.U.-Madison.

allowed only one meaningless sec- of play is very difficult. While school record. ond half goal when the game was the Rangers did play to an even 1-1-1 record to weeks ago, "I think F.D.U. was a step in the the team has come to expect more this season.

"Towards the end of the season, we need to work even harder junior co-captain Shannon to win these games," Eberhardt

Drew dropped a tough home match against Dickinson Col-Atlantic Conference matchup. lege 3-0 just after tying Montclair State College 2-2 a first half with Doll scoring the open- few days earlier. The Rangers ing goal off an assist from Rogers. did begin that week with a 3-0 Eberhardt added another goal win over MAC opponent Dela-

The victory over Delaware Valley was junior goalie co-

PIZZA · CALZONES · STROMBOL WE DELIVER CALL 377-3666 650 SHUNPIKE ROAD CHATHAM MALL

Large Cheese Pizza $5.99 Toppings $1

Free Delivery!!!

Free Liter of Coke with Any Pizza Order

shut down the F.D.U. attack. Drew maintaining a top-notch level of the season, which broke the from Laudermilch and sophomore lege, and again on Wednesday

During any long season, Lesley Morgan's seventh shutout Montclair State game, off assists

Tara Zrinski. Doll, Laudermilch Doll scored both goals in the and first-year student Alissa Drasch 4 p.m.

Equestrian competes with enthusiasm, wins over Pace

Juliette Gaffney Sports Editor

One of the most successful teams in the school is rarely heard of and even more rarely seen. The fact that the equestrian team trains in Morristown and has its one home meet a year in Montville in the

Yet their relative anonymity does not seem to discourage the team. In fact it has grown from seven members at the end of last season to 24 members this year, of whom 13 are first-year students. It is not just the numbers that impress junior captain Liz "They are just so talented,"

Arbittier said. The season "looks Head coach Joan Greenberg, now in her eighth season, said the outlook for the season is "fantastic." With only five veterans and

Their first two meets of the season, which also includes the spring, were successful ones. On Oct. 8, the team traveled to Pace Univer- category.

15 teams in their division, and the Rangers came out with third place.

Classing up also qualified Arbittier for the regional show. Junior Halona Wolfe also qualified for regionals by classing up from advanced walk-trot-canter to the team placed fifth out of the Greenberg said. novice flats.

teammate, junior Ellen Coriell,

Greenberg said the transition to a higher class will be difficult. "[Wolfe] will now start jumping," Greenberg said. "She will be comspring insures they are a well kept peting against people who have been in that class for almost a year." In the walk-trot category, Senior Angela Carolfi placed fifth, followed by first-year student Kori Cowles in second. Sophomore Maren Henry placed are very enthusiastic." first in intermediate flats. Coming in fourth for intermediate flats was first-year student Sharon Recker. For novice flat first-year stu- earned ir ne season can be carried dents Lyndsey Firneno and Sarah

Bray both placed sixth. On the open flat, first-year students Jen Reed and Danielle Paganuzzi both placed fifth.

In the fences categories, the Rangers were strong competitors. after Centenary College. 10 people who have never ridden In maiden fences Firneno placed before, Greenberg said the team fourth, followed by Bray, who placed sixth.

intermediate fences, just behind Reed who won top prize in the sity to compete against the other novice fences.

The week before, the team her collegiate career. Arbittier received second place had traveled to West Point to for novice fences, classing her up compete in the first meet of the Centenary. Centenary and Pace are to intermediate fences in the next season. Despite the fact that more than half the team had not competed on the intercollegiate level before, and, according to Arbittier, the team show. had bad luck picking horses, "I've sot my fingers crossed," 15 competing schools.

Wolfe placed second in walk- Placers for the Rangers included trot-canter, beaten only by her Arbittier, who took fifth in novice flats, Bray who placed third in who placed first in the same cat-maiden fences and Recker, who took first in maiden fences and second in intermediate flat.

Last year the team sent three riders to regionals. Only one has returned this season. Despite the loss of one to graduation and one who transferred, Arbittier, who was the third qualifier, has high hopes for the young team.

"Those who have ridden before are fantastic," Arbittier said. "They

Already two members of the squad have qualified for regionals, due in part to the fact that points

Coriell is expected to place up in the next meet, with only one more point needed to class up.

Greenberg is already preparing to class Coriell up for the next meet

Although most of the team is new to the squad, Arbittier sees many prospective powerhouses in

Among them are Reed, who took one year off from school to ride and compete, and Recker, who could push the limits on classing up early in

Tomorrow the team travels to the only teams to beat Drew this season. With the young and returning riders settling into the season, the team looks for a competitive

The Sports section is always looking for writers who can command a few strong verbs. Call x3451 for more information

Field hockey loses 1-0 battle to Muhlenberg

Derek Zeigler

With the Middle Atlantic Conference playoffs ahead, Drew University field hockey has been winding down its season in an up and down manner.

The Rangers have played well for most of their games, but some erupted. bad luck and questionable officiating have hurt the team. The team suffered their second straight loss and fourth in their last five games last night at the hands Muhlenberg College. Muhlenberg struck first with a goal in the first half of play.

That goal proved to be the deciding tally as the remainder of the game turned into a defensive battle. Neither team scored the rest of the way and Drew went down to a 1-0 defeat. The loss dropped their record to 7-8-1.

Last Saturday Gettysburg College in Pennsylvania hosted Drew in what promised to be a tough

At 9-2-1, Gettysburg offered an opportunity for the Rangers to Gettysburg intercepted a pass and, prove that they could hold their own against difficult competition long shot which managed to con-

Even though Drew was outshot

Assistant Sports Editor

playing together unofficially for

p.m. against New Jersey Institute of Technology.) No classes will be

-High-Speed Automated

-20-Bin Sorting, Auto

-Enlargement/Reduction

day afternoon, if not earlier.

21 Madison Plaza

Main Street

Copies

Channel Home Center

Madison, NJ 07940

TEL 201 765-0777

FAX 201 765-0744

watch them play.

A View from the Field

basketball team

begun prepar-

was a defensive struggle throughout the 70 minutes of regulation

First-year student keeper Andrea Kuzma stopped 19 Gettysburg shots, and heading into the final minute, the game was a 0-0 deadlock. Then chaos

With twenty seconds left in regulation, senior co-captain Cara Williams had ap 'ne scoring opportunity as the Rangers earned a pen-

Her shot, though, was batted down by the hand of one of the Gettysburg defenders.

Ordinarily this would earn Drew a direct penalty stroke, or even a goal if the defender was in the goal cage. Unfortunately for the Rangers, the officials only granted a penalty corner, meaning the Rangers would have to work much harder to score.

This errant call frustrated Drew, and the Rangers were unable to set up their corner alignment. with twelve seconds left, fired a happened often recently.

son. They are invited many prestigious guest conditioning hard, and have been speakers. It's too had they didn't weeks already. They are doing their teams. On that date, every single best to be ready for their season athletic team had an away game.

home opener, which is on Tues., On a day that celebrated the best

Nov. 22 at 8 p.m. against thing to happen to Drew athletics

Gettysburg College. It's a shame in years, not a single spring athlete

Thanks to what is becoming a mittee held a concert by A Tribe disturbing trend, the team's first Called Quest and De La Soul. They game has been scheduled for the scheduled the concert for the Thurs-

evening before Thanksgiving re- day evening before spring break.

cess begins. (The women's home Nearly every athletic team left cam-

opener will be the same day, at 6 pus that Thursday, and lost the majority of people will leave Tues- the game will not be held at night.

5 cent copies!

Drew students and staff must present University ID cards.

that very few people will be here to was able to participate.

When the William E. and Carol

G. Simon Forum and Athletic Center was dedicated last spring, Drew invite any of the spring athletic

Last spring, the concert com-opportunity to see the concert.

This weekend is Parents' Week-

held on Wednesday, and halls close end. There is only one home sport- events as well. When these sched-

at noon. Anyone who has been at ing event, a women's soccer game. ules conflict, it often limits the

Drew in past years knows that the Even with no other teams playing, social activities in which athletes

The cross country team only has

M-F 10-7

Sat 10-4

-- Various Color Paper for

-- Personalized Desk Pads

-- Spinal Binding

-- Laminating

High-Impact Reports or flyers

Hours until Dec. 1

The Rangers went down to a 1-

Sophomore Chandy Lynch sets to drive the ball upfield for the Rangers.

is rough."

According to Assistant Coach Heather Feaster, the Gettysburg aggressive Sacred Heart Univergame was "a very, very disappointsity team last Thursday at home. ing loss. Our team poured its heart into the game, and to lose like that edge of the course, giving them

vir ally no advantage in their only not entirely the University's fault.

enough attention to the other when between athletic and community events. Proper scheduling will en-athletic events but at community

sure better attendance, not only at

Drew University owes an appology to its two senior basketball players. Bill Bogardus and captain Bob Zuppe will be the only two Drew basketball players never to play in the Rose City Classic.

This tournament was a Drew tradition until this year's senior class entered as freshmen, when it was cancelled. The Classic will be reborn next season. This leaves

Bogardus and Zuppe with the dubious distinction of being the only

No matter what anyone says, I had

On behalf of the men's soccer

nothing to do with Gerb's knee injury.

team, I would like to thank everyone who came out to support the team against Muhlenberg College

Wednesday night. The crowd was very into the game, chanting and pounding their feet. And the blue and green faces looked great. Hopefully the face paints will come out again during the basketball season.

Classic-less ballplayers.

Better coordination is needed

making out its schedule.

This problem is not entirely due home meet.

After a scoreless first half, Williams struck first on a penalty stroke with 30:35 remaining in regula-Sacred Heart hung tough,

Prior to the Gettysburg game,

the Rangers faced off against an though, and with 12:33 remaining managed to tie the regula-Schedules need coordination tion, so the game went into

The problem is in the schedul- one home match each year, the another stroke, and the Ranger scoring. Athletic schedules too often Drew Invitational. Their home ing leader connected for her 14th goal of the season to give Drew the do not coordinate properly with the University scheduling. This has Park. However, this year the Invi-Head Coach Julie Clark praised tational was scheduled for the same day as a walkathon, which the team Williams, adding, "This was an imonly found out about a few days portant win for us after the rough before the race. The meet had to be period we have been going held at Morris County Arboretum. The team had little previous knowl-

of difficult losses to Trenton State and Wilkes Colleges.

Against Trenton on Oct. 11, Drew was blanked as the oppoto the athletic department. It also is nents scored twice in the first The problem lies somewhere in between, and both parties are somewhat to blame. Neither side pays

Trenton outshot the Rangers 27-3 during the game as they dominated the offensive action. Before this game, Drew hosted

Wilkes on Oct. 9. After another scoreless first half, the visiting Wilkes squad connected twice within a five minute span midway through the second

Although Williams managed to score with 10:50 left with an assist from junior Alison Goeke, Drew went down to a 2-1 defeat. On Saturday Drew travels to

Scranton in a must-win situa-

As of right now, the Rangers and the University of Scranton are tied for second in the MAC

Freedom League, and the winner f this game will play at Lebanon Valley College next Wednesday in the MAC play-This rough period consisted offs. For the loser, the season will be over.

Clark is optimistic and says, "The team is playing well despite some illnesses, and the non-starters have really five minutes and four times in stepped up their all-around the first half on the way to a 7- contribution. Hopefully, we can rise to the occasion.

Soccer suffers through rough week, loses to Muhlenberg

SOCCER, from page 16 once against Wilkes, ending the game in a 1-1 tie.

"We played really well," "We played well our last first-year midfielder Chris Renner said of the Wilkes game. "We just couldn't put the ball in the net." The turning point in the game was when first-year student J.P. Muller was redcarded in the first half. "Muller's red-card affected us," said Lochli. "We had to play a good part of the game with ten guys." The Rangers' 2-1 loss last Wednesday to New Jersey Tech was unexpected. "We just got outplayed," a big letdown for the team. "We took the game too lightly," said Renner. "They beat us to the ball. We just didn't get up for the game."

Despite losing some ground in the national college rankings this past week, the Rangers are not hanging their heads. The team is keeping a positive outlook.

> two times out. We are feeling very optimistic," said Lochli. It is essential that the Rangers win their next two contests on the road against Lycoming on Saturday and Stevens on Tuesday.

However, the Lycoming game will determine whether or not the ride to the NCAA tournament will be an easy

A win or a tie against Lycoming will give the Rangers the first seed in the playoffs, and more importantly homefield advantage. commented Lochli. "It was

"Getting homefield advantage for the MAC playoffs is very important," said Keane. "It will play a big factor in how far we go."

In addition, the game against Lycoming will be the Rangers' last conference

Erik Robert Slagle Assistant Sports Writer

outs, no subs and no excuses. You just the Fall Festival Tournament for field go flat out until it's over. And if you hockey. She was later named an Acawant to wear the uniform bad enough, it is never over. It takes a little more to to the All-American Second Team as make a champion."

So proclaims a sign on senior Cara Williams' door. As captain of both the women's field hockey and come a regular entry on another lacrosse teams, she is watching her type of roster—the Dean's List. college career slowly wind down Her balancing act of academics as she continues to post impressive and athletics has also garnered her stats in her fourth year of Drew five terms on the MAC honor roll, athletics, particularly in field hockey. She began the season who excel on the field as well as in ranked seventh on Drew's all-time scoring list for total points, eighth in assists and 11th in career goals. She has steadily moved up the ladder with 39 points this season, giving her a career total of 119 as well as 14 goals (45 career) and 11 assists (29 career).

Those stats are only a few highlights of Williams' stay at Drew. She against the boys-and outshining has earned her share of athletic honors. most of them in the process. Her first year, Williams was named the Middle Atlantic Conference's little," she reflects. "I was the only Rookie of the Year for women's basketball. Last year she won the Offen-"At practice there are no time— sive Most Valuable Player Award at demic All-American and was selected well as the MAC All-Star team.

- A resident of East Dennis, Massachusetts, Williams has also bea recognition reserved for those

Her love affair with sports began when she was just six years old. "By my choice." she says, her parents signed her up to play both soccer and Little League baseball. However, in a town where there were no organized sports for girls, Williams found herself competing

"I was teased a lot when I was

You're smart enough to write about Alice Walker's use

And you're still smoking?

William's perserverance and commitment to the team has been an example to her teammates and to even younger players.

little girl playing."

Rather than let the teasing discourage her, she used it to push herself further. She was a starter on every baseball team she played on, right up through her final year in the Babe Ruth League in her first year of high school. Once in high school she turned her attentions to field hockey, basketball and track. When she came to Drew she decided to try her hand at lacrosse.

"I'd never played lacrosse before coming to Drew," she said. Because of her talents people expected her to be able to grab a stick and play the game like a pro. "I had to learn a whole new set of rules," she said. "It was frustrating, but now I absolutely love the sport."

Hard work and perseverance paid off for Williams. After spending three years as a defensive wing for the lacrosse team, she was named captain for this year.

In addition to four years of field hockey and lax at Drew, she spent her first two years on the women's basketball team and racked up 502 points in 43 games. Despite her success on the court, however, she decided concentrate on the two teams she now captains.

Yet no matter how often she is described as a leader or team standout, she would rather give credit to a team as a single unit. For example, when asked if she could think of a specific highlight of her college career, she replied, "It's the times Drew has been the underdog. In my freshman year our unranked] field hockey team made t to the MAC finals by beating two ough nationally-ranked teams."

Similarly, her most disappointing times came during two rough seasons for the basketball team. "We were a really hard-working team. It was really frustrating."

Williams has excelled in the classroom, as well as the playing field.

Amy Cardone, a member of the field hockey team and a teammate of Williams. "Over the last four years she is the most complete player I have seen."

major and business management minor, plans to go to graduate school to earn a masters degree in labor relations. However, she said, "Ican'timagine life without sports."

college level," she continued. "Al- always been big for me."

Her efforts have not gone unappre- though Hove to teach little kids. Teachciated by her teammates. "She's an ing little kids field hockey is hilariinspiration to the team," said senior ous," she said with a laugh. She should know; she spent four years directing sports at a summer camp.

Cara Williams has come a long way since her games at first base Williams, a behavioral science for the East Dennis Little Red Sox, all the way to captaining two of her college's varsity sports teams. And if she has her way, she'll see to it that she can play a role in helping other kids do the same. "I'll prob-"I'd love to get into coaching at the ably stray back to that. Sports has

of African storytelling traditions.

Rangers of the Week Liz Arbittier (with George) Arbittier shows horse "George" who is boarded nearby. Ask anyone involved in the old with many years of riding in

Drew equestrian program about front of him. junior captain Liz Arbittier and they will tell you about her en- has been able to handle anything

Arbittier first taught herself to ride and only formally started lessons four years ago.

Inherthird year riding for Drew, she has made the regional show will point out all the good points twice and is in her second year as of their ride, but never point out captain. Already this season the flaws unless asked to, Wolfe Arbittier has classed up from novice to intermediate fences.

As opposed to most people us," Wolfe said. on the team. Arbittier keeps her own horse in a nearby stable, experience few other riders do. making it possible for her to ride more frequently than the the saddle," coach Joan

Her horse Twice the Charm (or George for short) is ten years

"In the last three seasons she that came her way," junior and fellow rider Halona Wolfe said.

That extends beyond her riding to being captain where she is always by the ring while teammates are riding. Afterwards she

"She's very excited for all of

In the ring, Arbittier shows "She has spent a lot of time in Greenberg said.

-Juliette Gaffney

Tennis season ends prematurely, sends four to playoffs

SPORTS

Juliette Gaffney

The women's tennis team ended their regular season on an uneventful note, with the cancellation of Drew, there was no chance of a the final two matches due to sched- win due to a complete shutout in uling conflicts and rain.

Tuesday's scheduled game against East Stroudsburg Univer- staging her opponent with a 6-1, 6sity was to be played at E.S.U., but 4 score. Moyer came back from a the Rangers found no team there to rough match against Wilkes to win play; their opponent was playing over her foe 6-3, 6-2.

Yesterday their match against Moravian was cancelled because

Even though Drew has indoor courts that have been used previously this season, Moravian refused to play on the indoor courts 2-6, but came back to take control the two schools.

Head coach Tracy Zawacki said the two games could have made an

As it now stands Drew is 7-5, but Zawacki said "it could have the regular season, the four women who qualified to play in Middle Atlantic Conference (MAC) individual tournament still have a chance to make a dramatic end to Senior captain Gale Paff has qualified for the "A" bracket of the first seeded doubles match was singles and possibly a seeding in the tournament as well.

of singles. In the doubles tournament, junior Michelle Moyer and sophomore Miran Yoon look to make their mark on the "A" bracket of doubles play.

Manhattanville College.

When the 5-6 Manhattanville team came to the home courts of both singles and doubles play.

Paff started the beating by up-"[Moyer] is the most competitive person on the team," Zawacki said. Before her match, Moyer had told Zawacki that she would settle for nothing less than a win. Third-seed Varma suffered the only loss of the day, in the first set and cancelled the meeting between of the match and won the second and third sets 6-1,6-3. "[Varma] has been dominating all season," Zawacki said. "She's a impact on the final record the Rang- real standout person on the team. now. She lost the first set easily, but was able to turn it around." Sophomore Erin Kragh defeated her fourth-seeded opponent 6-3,6-Despite the rather abrupt end to 3. Yoon showed no mercy in her straight set defeat (6-0, 6-0) in the fifth seed, and sophomore Tara Stryker rounded out the top six with her win of 6-0, 7-5. When the doubles matches took the court, Dr. ocntinued to show no mercy. The close win of 8-5 in the closest Manhattanville came to a win, but Moyer and Yoon took First-year student Shalina the win for themselves. In second-Varma will play in the "B" bracket seeded doubles, Paff and Stryker showed up their opponents 6-3, as did Kragh and Varma in the third

Wilkes came to Drew on Oct. 9 for what would be a disappointing six singles seeds overpowered the Kragh said.

Romanelli's

Pizza and Italian Eatery

377-9515

42 Lincoln Place,

Madison

Serving the area

for over 20 years

· Lasagna · Chicken Parmigiana ·

Meatballs • Eggplant Parmigiana

Open: Mon.-Sat. 11 a.m. - 11 p.m.

We Deliver Daily

Sun. 12 - 11 p.m.

Calzones & Stromboli • Spaghetti &

season, Drew dominated play over Wilkes team, with all five tramboth Wilkes College and pling their opponents in straight ished their regular season with Zawacki's goal for next year is > Paff won 6-0, 6-2 in the first seed. Both Varma in third seed and Kragh in fourth seed beat their foes in straight love sets.

Stryker won over her opponent 6-0, 6-2, and first-year student Liz Han rounded out the singles winning with a 6-1, 6-0 score.

Moyer lost her singles match in second-seed 3-6, 2-6.

She then went on to her doubles match hoping to make a comeback with the aid of Han. However, the first-seeded Wilkes doubles team, including Moyer's singles adversary, overtook them to claim the win by the score of 8-4.

"[Moyer] just had a bad day, Paff said. "She has been having trouble with her forehand, but that has been corrected

In other doubles matches, Paff and Stryker took the second-seed win 8-3, and Kragh and Varma won third seed 8-0. As a team Kragh and Varma have not lost so much as a set all season.

"[Wilkes] wasn't very strong at all," Paff said. "The lower seeds, three through six, just dominated."

In looking back on the season Kragh seemed satisfied with the team's accomplishments.

"I think the season went really well," she said. "We had lost some of our top players from last year so we were at a disadvantage in the beginning, but we managed to pull

Only Paff will graduate this year, leaving the Rangers with a stockpile of experienced talent. "I have trip for them. Five out of Drew's a good [feeling] for next year, two strong wins, the final 7-5 tom kethe MAC tournament. "We record for the season left them have the talent, there's no way short of making the MAC tour- we're not there."

Football Picks: Week 4

In one moment I will turn my column over to Ron, who remains on top. But before I do I must say that even though I am losing terribly in football picks, I did win the "Ron Pool" this evening. I was the most optimistic of the groups predicting 10p.m. Comeby any Thursday night and be a part of the "Ron Watch" with us.

It is once again my turn to write the introduction to the football picks, which is only fair seeing as I am dominating the rest of the socalled knowledgeable editors. Hey, can anyone give me a little compe-

Oh, and Erik, if you want to play with the big boys you have to show up every week. Yes, I'm talking a lot of crap right now, but I am semi-sober. (What's the occasion?-Erik)

Now, recently my Giants have been having a tough time. Everyone knew that it was going to take Dave Brown some time to get used to the league. He will become a good quarterback, he just needs to cut down on the interceptions.

I will say that the Eagles have been playing well recently. I will also say that it won't last. Well, maybe one more week, they are playing Houston.

The talk of the league is definitely San Diego. They are simply playing great football, even without the old stive uniforms. If they keep playing defense like they are now, they will be a force this year. Hopefully the Chargers can help keep Buffalo out of the Super Bowl this year, and January can be exciting again.

NY GIANTS (-1) v. Pittsburgh Ron (10-6-1) - New York Erik (5-3-1) - New York Jeff (6-10-1) - Pittsburgh Juliette (4-12-1) - New York

N"W ORLEANS (-3 1/2) v. L.A. Rams Ron - New Orleans Erik - New Orleans Jeff - L.A. Rams Juliette - L.A. Rams

DETROIT (-4) v. Chicago Ron - Detroit Erik - Chicago Jeff - Detroit Juliette - Chicago

PHILADELPHIA (-11) v. Houston Ron - Philadelphia Erik - Houston Jeff - Philadelphia Juliette - Philadelphia

Rugby wins over Manhattanville

The Acorn Sports Service

Drew men's rugby evened with an impressive victory over with a score of 33-0. Manhattanville College. The team overcame the two weeks' losses to Marist College and Hofstra University to put tothe team record to 2-2 and tied Drew dominated the game Jayson Liss led the team, break-first half, making the score 40-5. ing through to score with the A confident Drew team went first of his two tries of the day. First-year student Aaron points than any A-side team had Starmer connected on his first scored in recent memory. of five conversions to put Drew ahead 7-0.

Manhattanville by kicking the ball deep onto the opponent's territory and running strong from their backfield. Senior Rich Gallucci scored with a 20 yard run from his wing position, followed by Liss shortly afterwards, and Drew jumped out to an early 19-0 lead without ever looking back.

Senior Nate Tucker continued the scoring as Drew's defense stifled Manhattanville and allowed the backfield to retain possession of the ball for most of the second part of the first benefitted from the strong play and scored within a few minutes of Tucker off a beautifully placed pop kick. Drew continout their season record before a/ ued to connect on their kicks large home crowd last Saturday and had the game well in hand

Starmer scored his own try later on in the half, set up by a well-placed kick. Breslin took the ball at fly-half and connected gether their best performance with Starmer on a pop kick to of the year. The victory brought the other side of the field, catching him on the run to touch them for second in Division 3 down in the try zone. The kick of the Met-Union College made the score 40-0 ending the first half.

Manhattanville managed to from the start. Senior captain score a try before the end of the into the second half with more

In the second half Manhattanville opened playing Drew continued to pressure more aggressively than they had previously. Drew had opportunities to score but could not capitalize on them. Drew's defense did not let up, and Manhattanville was not given any chances to put the ball in Manhattanville's more aggressive play took three of their players off the field because of injuries, and the game had to be called 15 minutes into the second half. The final score remained 40-5.

The squad travels to Hofstra University tomorrow to attempt to avenge their loss from the Senior captain Ian Breslin second week of the season.

Cross Country wins Jersey "9" in home meet

Kenny runs to the finish in the Drew Invitational two weeks ago, continuing to lead the team in every meet this year.

Men's soccer losses drop them out of high national ranking

Tumble from number 13 with 3 winless games

Mike Andujar Staff Writer

For the first time this season, the Drew Rangers have demonstrated that they are not an invincible squad.

The Rangers experienced the "agony of defeat," losing to both New Jersey Institute of Technology and Muhlenberg College in the last week.

They also tied Wilkes College on Saturday, causing the Rangers to lose their national ranking.

Wednesday the Rangers faced a strong Muhlenberg team, who were ranked fourth in the nation. Despite playing well, the Rangers could not score, resulting in a 1-0

They played excellent soccer during the first 45 minutes but collapsed in the second half.

"We dominated the game in the first half. We just lost our composure in the second half," commented first-year student defender Marc Dwyer. "We kicked the ball all over the place for no reason."

Lochli pushes the defense to the limits in Wednesday's game against Muhlenberg.

team felt good about the effort put into the Muhlenberg game. They had many opportunities

"We played really well. It was definitely one of the better games of our season," said senior co-captain Drew Lochli. "We just came up a little bit short."

"We have let down in the Despite the outcome, the last week and a half, but the Muhlenberg game picked us up," said senior co-captain Brian Keane.

"We played hard. We played an outstanding team tonight. They are ranked fourth in the nation. They are a strong team, and we were able to play them

The Rangers could only score

See SOCCER, page 13

Ryan Fraytic Staff Writer

The past two Saturdays, the men's and women's cross-country teams have had meets, first at Drew and then at Allentown College. In the Drew Invitational on Oct. 8, the men finished first out of six teams, and the women finished third out of four teams.

The home course was not the usual Loantaka Park course. Instead, the Rangers ran at nearby Morris County Arboretum.

Despite the loss of a "home course advantage," the Rangers proved strong enough. Senior cocaptain Gordon Kenny once again set the pace for the men's team in this final home meet of his career. His time of 26:56 was good enough for first place overall at Next was first-year student Robert Davis with a time of 28:07 and third place overall. Following him was first-year student Kevin Purcell at 28:25 in fifth place and right behind him was sophomore Jim Robbins with a time of 29:46 and sixth place overall.

Finishing up for the Rangers was first-year student Eric Wolff with a time of 30:07 and 11th place.

The women's team was led by first-year student Kelly Flood with a time of 20:55 and sixth place overall. Flood returned after missing the meet at Franklin and Marshall College.

Less than two minutes later, junior co-captain Lauren Marasia ran by the finish with a time of 22:33 for 13th place. Junior co-captain Michelle Aufiero completed the course in 23:46 which was good for 18th place.

Junior co-captain Lora Tuit finished six seconds behind her at 23:52 in 19th place. Finishing fifth for the Rangers was sophomore Katie Damiano with a time of

At Allentown the men finished 19th out of 30 teams, while the women finished 20th out of 28.

Kenny finished 21st overall with a time of 26:56.

Also placing for the men's team were Purcell with a time of 28:54. Davis at 28:56, sophomore Jay Zampini at 29:58 and senior co-captain David Haiman with a time of 31:21.

Finishing in 67th place overall for the women was Flood with a time of 21:09

Marasia, who had only run the course once before in her threeyear tenure, turned in a 22:30. Aufiero came in with a time of 23:35, Tuit at 24:34 and Damiano at 24:50

Coach Kimberly Keenan said that the Drew meet "was a good meet."

"The coaches and the team enjoyed the new course," Keenan continued. "The men ran a strong race, and the women continued to improve. [Kenny]'s times are improving this year over last, and he continues to be strong, while Rob Davis and Kevin Purcell continue to run very well.'

"Allentown was a good indicator of how we will do in the conference meet. They were most of the teams from our conference [Middle Atlantic Confernce (MAC)] so it should show how we will do," Keenan said.

Next week the cross-country team travels to Lehigh University. Coach Keenan said, "Lehigh will be tough 't is the course nationals is run on, so teams that will be competing in nationals will be running this race to get a chance to run the course. We will be up against some of the top teams in the nation, as well as the top teams from the region. The level of competition will be high. It should be a learning experience for the teams."

After all, you never know when they might be there again.

Rangers of the week

Tara Stryker

Without knowing sophomore Tara Stryker had never played singles in tennis beone fore, might assume that she was just a naturally strong player. Tha strength has not naturally. For Stryker it has taken a lot of Stryker has shown great improvement in her game this season.

season, she had never competitively played a singles match before, preferring to concentrate on her doubles game.

hard work.

Prior to this

After working on her singles game over the summer, Stryker decided to chance it and try for a seed in the singles game. She started off the season at sixth singles. By the end of the season, she had acheive the position of fifth singles.

"She has greatly improved in the season," senior captain Gayle Paff said. "She should move up to fifth [seed] next year, a strong coach Tracev Stryker has en the most eliable person on the eam all sea-

That deermination as showed on the court. Although trykerstarted off on a bad foot, she did not give up and finished the season winning her last four straight singles matches. Stryker credits the team with supporting her during her early losses and keeping her spirit and confidence up.

Throughout the season Stryker continued to dominate doubles, with partner Paff. The duo lost only two matches all

Next year Strykerhopes to "have over a 500 singles record" and move up in the rankings.

By working out four to five times a week in addition to practice, Stryker feels she is physically fit as well as mentally fit.

More Rangers of the week, page 14