The Acorn

The independent student newspaper of Drew University

VOL. LXVIII NO. 4

MADISON, NEW JERSEY

SEPTEMBER 29, 1995

Campus prepares for Rape Awareness Week

Ulcca Joshi Assistant News Editor

Monday will mark the beginning of Rape Awareness Week on the Drew campus. A wide variety of informational and educational programming will be offered throughout the week by a variety of groups on campus in the hopes of raising campus awareness of

The majority of the programming for Rape Awareness Week is being coordinated by members of Women's Concerns. However, groups such as the Peer Sexual Health Educators and some members of the Residence Life staff will also be providing programs for smaller groups such as residence halls and floors.

On Monday morning the Clothesline Project will be on display on the lawn between the Commons and the University Center. The display consists of a simple clothesline strung with different colored tee-shirts; each tee-shirt was made in honor of a woman who has been victimized, with the color of the shirt specifying the type of sexual crime committed against her.

The Womyn's Concerns House (Hannon House) will be open during the day for people who would like to make a tee-shirt to be added to the clothesline for themselves or for someone they know who has been victimized. Junior Heather Wright, one of the chairs of Women's Concerns said, "I hope people will feel comfortable about coming down and making a shirt for themselves if they've been raped. It helps to know that other women have been dealing with similar issues."

During the evening there will be an informal meeting for people who would like to discuss the clothesline and their reactions to it. "The clothesline should be a very moving experience ... comparable to the AIDS Quilt project," Wright said. She also emphasized that the Clothesline Project represents only a fraction of the women who have actually been sexually

Tuesday, there will be a table set up in the U.C. where informational pamphlets on sexual assault and rape will be available for all students. Tee-shirts donated to Women's Concerns by the New Jersey Coalition on Sexual Assault, an organization for battered women in New Jersey, will also be on sale; all proceeds will benefit the organization.

The Keynote speaker for Rape Awareness Week, Sujata Warrier, will give an address on Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Brothers College Chapel. Warrier is a domestic violence specialist with the N.J. office for the Prevention of Domestic Violence. She has specialized in working with Asian and immigrant women and is a volunteer with Manavi, an organization for South Asian women in the U.S.

On Thursday evening a program with the University's Peer Sexual Health Educators has been planned. The program will begin at 7 p.m. at a location still to be See AWARENESS, page 4

Kean, Isasi-Diaz host discussion on Beijing women's conference

Steven DeLuca Staff Writer

Last night University President Tom Kean and Professor of Religious Ethics Ada Maria Isasi-Diaz addressed about 50 students, alumni, faculty and staff in Learning Center 28 about their experiences at the United Nations Fourth World Conference on Women. The conference was held earlier this month in Beijing, China. Kean and Isasi-Diaz explained the structure of, the initial goals of, and the final document produced at the confer-

Their talk was followed by a discussion period, which allowed listeners to ask questions and express their views, and to give President Kean and Isasi-Diaz a chance to share some humorous anecdotes of their experiences.

According to Kean and Isasi-Diaz, many of the delegates wondered why Beijing was chosen as the host city. China has been accused of having a terrible record with regard to human rights in general, especially the rights of women. Although it has been suggested that China viewed the conference as an opportunity to establish reforms on women's issues, Isasi-Diaz took a different view.

Professor of Religious Ethics Ada Maria Isasi-Diaz addresses the audience as Tom Kean looks on during last night's conference.

She said that China's reasons for hosting this event were purely economical; Beijing had been denied their bid to host the 2000 Olympics, and this conference brought in much needed revenue

See BEIJING, page 5

Campus ejects illegal vendors

Derek Ziegler Assistant News Editor

Recently, several illegal vendors have invaded Drew's residence halls. Since the beginning of the fall semester, at least three unregistered groups have been spotted on campus, including two magazine salesmen and one religious organization calling itself The International Church of Christ.

Rutgers University and Trenton State College have already ejected this religious group from their campuses. The group does not have the approval of either Dean of Students Denise Alleyne or University Chaplain Victoria Erickson, and is therefore prohibited on this

Because of safety concerns caused by these violations of university policy, Manager of Residential Programs Andrew Steiner sent out an e-mail message last week warning students of the hazards of having unregistered groups

'We try to treat residence halls like a student's home," Steiner wrote. "We'd like to think only students go in and out." In addition to Steiner, Director of Student Activities Kim Sweeney, Director of Public Safety Thomas Evans and Erickson also signed the

According to Sweeney, who is responsible for approving off-campus vendors, "We register vendors because this is a student's home, and students have the right not to be approached and live in a safe environment." Sweeney explained that University policy stipulates that two off-campus vendors are allowed per day in appropriate spaces, mainly the University Center. These vendors are carefully screened; drugs, incense, food and candles are among the items prohibited for sale within the Univer-

Apparently, illegal groups have been able to enter residence halls because doors have been propped open. "Propping doors is against residence hall regulations," Steiner said. "If I fee students will be safer, I will fine them [for violations]. Our first concern is safety."

Because of Morris County's low crime rate, Steiner said, students tend to develop a false sense of security. "We are a college campus, which makes us a prime target," he said. "It's very tempting for off-campus groups to come on campus." Steiner also said that some vendors have acted in an

See VENDORS, page 4

Pornography discussed in U.C.

American Civil Liberties Union President Nadine Strossen spoke in U.C. 107 Wednesday night in the first presentation in the Sex 101 Series. Her lecture was entitled "Defending Pornography." Strossen addressed such topics as the definition of the word pornography, the relationship between feminism and the adult entertainment industry, and sexual equality. For full coverage see story on page 3.

Campus begins networking project

Page 2

Fan remembers Jerry Garcia

Page 11

Cross-country picks up the pace Page 15

Correction

The Acorn staff mistakenly altered last week's "Club Speak" article by Meghan LeCates, president of Drew's chapter of Habitat for Humanity. LeCates' original statement said the organization is seeking to eliminate "poverty housing"

Baccalaureate planning

Anyone interested in planning the spring Baccalaureate service should attend a meeting Monday, Oct. 2 at noon in Commons 207. For more information, students should contact University Chaplain Victoria Erickson at x3597.

Influenza vaccinations

Flu vaccines for the 1995-96 season are now available at Health Services. The shots are highly recommended for people with chronic health problems, such as diabetes and heart or lung conditions. They are also recommended for parents of young children, caregivers of the elderly and stressed-out college students, faculty and

The cost for flu shots is $5 for students and $10 for Drew employees. Health Services will give the shots from now until Dec. 1. For an appointment, call Health Services at

USA Today talent search

USA Today is conducting a ets of campus," Larkin said. search for the 1996 All-USA Academic Team. Any full-time discussing possible commenceundergraduate student is eliment speakers. Suggestions will be a alcohol-free evening ingible, and nomination forms ranged from President Bill Clinton volving such activities as a senior are available at Rosa Henneke's and Colin Powell to acclaimed slide show and the "Paper Plate nation must be signed by an even rumors that both the Presi- egories. administrator and a faculty dent and First Lady Hillary member. Rodham Clinton would be invited The talent search committee is especially interested in a "[President] Kean said we could student's outstanding or origihave just about anybody," Arbittier an overnight hiking trip and nal academic or intellectual said. The only constraint is that the paintball wars. product. Interested students speaker may not be offered monmust be able to describe and etary compensation. The seniors explain the product in writing. can, however, present the speaker come from the Student Activities Nomination forms must be with an honorary degree from the Office as well as any money the postmarked by Friday, Nov. 17. University Also discussed were the tradi-

Pub positions

been set for Feb. 10. The final The Pub is now accepting exam schedule has caused a temapplications for several posiporary conflict with Senior Week. tions for the 1995-96 school As it stands now, Senior Week year. In addition to some barwould be two days in length. tender slots, positions are also Dean of Academic Advising open on the Events Coordina-Edve Lawler is currently working That was encouraging."

tion Managerial Staff. with the Registrar to rectify the Applications are available at situation and ensure that all sethe U.C. Desk. Any questions niors will be finished with their class senators. "They really got should be directed to Kim exams by the Tuesday of exam people motivated," she said. "[The Sweeney in the Office of Stuweek to extend senior activities by dent Activities at x3454.

State grants $1.3 M for computer network Money will be used to finance new Internet connection equipment

Richard Gottlieb

The University recently received a $1.3 million grant from the state of New Jersey for a campus-wide computer network. Work has begun on the first phase of the opera-

According to Alan Candiotti, Assistant Vice President for University Technology, a network has many advantages over the current system. "Through a lengthy strategic planning process, installing a campus network has emerged as an important priority," he said.

Daniel, the main computer server at Drew, conducts most of the processing for the Campus Wide Information System (CWIS). The personal computers on the other end are essentially just being used as extended screens. In addition to the fact that only normal phone lines are being used, students now experience relatively slow connections.

"Some other universitities started three to five years ago, in many cases with less than we had, and have installed campus-wide networks," Candiotti said. "Technology does advance quickly and keeping up with it while staying within a budget is very difficult."

While other universities may have interfaces to the Internet, Candiotti said that the Drew technology program has benefits of its own. "[Other colleges] may not provide other things that we provide. For example, few provide each student with a computer

Erik Robert Slagle

Senior Class Senators Liz

Arbittier and Julie Larkin led a this year's senior class. More than representing "many different fac-

One item on the agenda was tional 99 Nites and Senior Week.

to discuss various activities for class.

Seniors gather to discuss traditions

senior class meeting last night in tivities will focus less on alcohol

the University Center rear lounge and more on bonding within the 25 people attended the meeting around alcohol," she said. "We writer Toni Morrison. There were Awards" for various bizarre cat-

99 Nites prior to graduation has Kim Sweeney said she estimates which should serve us for a long time, we want all of our students to be able to use it."

The proposed Local Area Network (LAN) would provide fac- "the network could carry voice, now coming in from various conulty and students superior access video, even building controls." A

As Assistant Vice President for University Technology, Candiotti oversees network improvements. to computer applications. With a network, the actual processing would rely more heavily upon the power of students' P.C.'s rather A network will utilize fiber optic cabling, a much more efficient conduit than regular phone lines for computer data. As a result, ev-ability, according to Candiotti. An improved network would where the senior class tradition-still planned. However, according to Arbittier, this year's senior ac-

"Everything tends to revolve

This year's class is also plan-

Also in the works is a senior class trip. Seniors at the meeting

mentioned Atlantic City as a likely destination. Other options include

These events, however, will all require money. This funding will.

Class of 1996 has remaining in its

Director of Student Activities

the class will have "roughly ten

Arbittier said she was "very pleased" with the student turnout

last night. Larkin agreed, saying,

"There were a lot of new faces.

exceptional turnout to the senior Class of 1996 is] lucky to have

Sweeney attributed much of the thousand dollars" to spend.

budget from last year.

ning a new event called "Class

Night." Arbittier explained that it aim to change that."

eryone will experience a tremendous increase in speed and reliand some charge network access tual interfaces that we now use rest of the residence halls fees. When we have a network, with e-mail and Internet connecenhance many computers applica-> small portion of the network is currently in use in the Hall of Sciences, Brothers College, the library and selected offices. Some of the classrooms with computer monitor projection facilities are also

The process is now underway to expand the network to more University buildings; actual work should begin in the latter part of October on this part of the project.

A key component of this operation is laying the fiber optic cabling underground. Since constructing the trenches is a costly process, the idea is to install more conduit than is even needed at the

There is only minimal extra cost in laying more conduit, and this will allow for flexibility in the future. With computer technology in a constant state of flux, the underground conduits will be ready to be upgraded for future applications and expansion without difficulty.

The initial grant Drew received will be applied toward the first phase, which is networking the front half of campus. This is a rectangular portion of the campus along Rt. 124 from the library to Sitterly House to Madison House. The few residential buildings included in this triangle will be com- through without delays," Candiotti offer much more than just the tex- pleted in the next phase with the concluded.

It is not certain how far the grant tions. It could visually and audibly will go, but there is hope some money will be left from the $1.3 million to be used for work beyond "In the future," Candiotti said, the front half of campus. Bids are tractors with estimates on the re-

"Completion of the full campus project depends on funding, which is a high priority item in the University's strategic plan. We hope to have significant funding in place so that we can continue next year with residential buildings," Candiotti said.

The installation of the underground conduit, interior building wiring, and network electronics for the first phase will begin in October. This portion of the work should be completed by next spring. However it will take a little longer to actually get the network up and running at an acceptable level of

Each individual computer location requires attention, Candiotti said. This attention includes making sure the computer is up to network standards and has the proper network card installed. While the University completes the necessary preparations to install a LAN, Netscape, a popular interface, will be available in the Academic Computer Center. Gradually, this interface will be made available to other

"We are looking at two to three years for full campus implementation if all the funding comes

The annual trip to Hoboken, ally has rented a bar for a night, is

QUALITY SINCE 1969 PIZZA • CALZONES • STROMBOLI WE DELIVER CALL 377-3666

650 SHUNPIKE ROAD CHATHAM MALL

LARGE CHEESE PIZZA ONLY $7.99 ANY SIZE! ANY TOPPINGS!

> FREE DELIVERY!!!

FREE LITER OF COKE WITH ANY PIZZA ORDER!

Sex 101 opens with defense of pornography be sexually arousing."

McKinnon, have urged the sup-

Shannon Sims

Nadine Strossen presented a lecraphy" Wednesday in University Center 107. This was the first lecture in the "Sex 101" series.

Strossen was elected president

Law. Her speech addressed the fears, confusion and current conture entitled "Defending Pornog- troversy surrounding the topic of pornography from the standpoint of the First Amendment and women's rights.

Strossen began by addressing of the American Civil Liberties the perceptions surrounding the

SGA fills committee spots at first meeting

David Cennimo

Student Government Association Vice President junior Pat "animosity towards and ignorance Aylward began a new year of SGA by gavelling the first meeting to

The new Senate was completed site for all SGA meetings, University Center 107, which was ar- fore a University-wide panel. ranged with tables in a large rectangle. Every senator had a designated seat with chairs set behind the table for spectators. Approximately 40 spectators attended the

"I thought it important to arrange the room in a somewhat more structured manner in order to lend legitimacy to the proceedings," Aylward said.

"In my first year, when I represented Brown Hall, I must admit that I was let down by the way the meeting was set up. People were sitting on the floor and not everyone could be seen. It gave the impression that the Senate was a less distinguished place to serve than it truly is," he continued. "Now the senators have their own seats and are identifiable by a name plate. I hope this new format provides a more 'senatorial' atmotroduction to parliamentary procedures and various constitutional questions from the Senate. This discussion clarified that a twothirds majority would be necessary for all votes. Most of the agenda was devoted to appoint-

Senior Kim Harris was unanimously approved as the new elections chair. She acted in this posi-

Junior Miten Patel was nominated by the Cabinet to be the new without a hearing. systems. "I would like to look into absence. the problems of logging on to "I am looking forward to adding unanimously approved.

Heather McMurchie for Joint Af- perspective," he said. firmative Action Committee repcampus as qualifications.

asked McMurchie how she could ahead," Aylward said. connect with SGA after the letter The next meeting will take place The letter charged that members 107.

of SGA and the administration did not fully support multiculturalism

Parker said the letter expressed of SGA." McMurchie then received questions from many senators regarding her ability to adequately represent SGA. Many of last week with the addition of hall the senators said she did not have and first-year senators. One of an adequate understanding of how many changes this year is the new SGA worked and therefore could not adequately represent SGA be-

McMurchie's appointment did not win the required two-thirds majority; it was declined with a 17-15 roll call vote in her favor. McMurchie later commented, "I am not going to make any trouble. I just want to ensure that SGA finds someone to truly represent all of Drew's voices."

Senior Shane Mueller and junior Erin Kragh were then appointed to the University Senate. Senior Jessica Fulginiti was unanimously voted in as the representative to the Presidential Planning Commission. All of the appointees to the Quality of Student Life Committee were also approved. The final appointment was junior Cathy Cerbo to the International Task Force, which Board then occupied a large portion of the two-and-a-half hour meeting. Dean of Student Life The meeting began with an in- Denise Alleyne informed the Senate that she needed to seat a Judicial Board by today. One proposal offered was using the Cabinet and past J-Board members for this one specific case. This motion failed.

The Senate then voted to convene a special meeting Wedensday night to approve the cabinet's nominations. This was later ruled unfeasible because Alleyne pointed out that the new members could tion during the election process not be trained in time with a case currently under review. Ultimately the case in question was resolved co-chair of the Technology Com- Riker Senator junior Brian Nell mittee. Patel, like all other nomi- was unanimously elected to the nees for positions, was questioned position of President Pro Tempore. about his intentions and qualifica- This position gives him a seat in tions. He cited his experience the Cabinet as the Senate's repreteaching computer training courses sentative. Nell will take control of and familiarity with the computer the meetings in the event of an e-mail," Patel said. He was also the Senate's voice to the Cabinet discussions, which as far-reaching Aylward nominated sophomore as they are, can always use another The meeting concluded with reresentative on behalf of the Cabi- quests for action. University Senanet. McMurchie served last year tor senior Reagan Sweeney said an as an interim appointee pending inquiry should be held regarding Senate appointment. She cited her the recent break-in into the suites. personal experiences and involve- There was also a request for help ment in multicultural groups on from the Yearbook Committee. "I thought that the length of the Senior Leah Parker, co-chair of meeting was indicative of the the SGA Public Safety, Health healthy debate and is a precursor Services and Facilities Committee of the productive year that lies that she wrote in last week's Acorn. Sunday, Oct. 8 at 5:30 p.m. in U.C.

Union in 1991 and is a Professor of meaning of "pornography." "The only homosexual literature store in more vulnerable to violence than Law at the New York School of word pornography," she said, "has the city of Toronto, grabbed one of they are now, if pornography is absolutely no legal significance at the magazines from the shelf and made illegal. all and means, according to the brought prosecution against the dictionary, no more nor less than proprietor.'

The proprietor lost the case, and, an expression which is intended to according to Strossen, incidents such as these have not ceased in men's roles in pornography. She explained how the word has intensity or frequency. She also Strossen said she strongly believes become connotatively linked to situations other than those of a said pornography cannot be deemed illegal simply because gal, it can do absolutely no good sexual nature and also with the some people say it should be. No and more than likely will cause idea of obscenity and homosexuality. Many people, including femi- two people will have the same opinion, according to Strossen. nist action society members such as Andrea Dworken and Catharine

From a feminist point of view, Strossen said, the idea that our male-dominated government pression or outright ban of pornogwould have great power to supraphy. Strossen said that such an press women's freedom of expresaction would have disastrous afsion is also a key issue. Nearly fects on women's rights and would anything may be perceived as ofbe a direct violation of the First fensive to someone, and Strossen said she did not see any benefit for Strossen also said that a legal women's rights in giving the govcase headed by McKinnon in ernment "carte blanche" to dictate Canada brought about the banning what is or isn't.

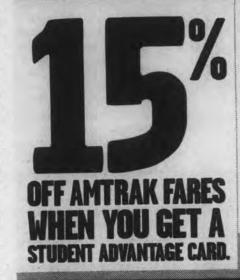

of any material deemed to be of-Strossen said women (and men) fensive to women in that country. who continue to participate in the "No sooner was the ink dry on that document," Strossen said, protection by law and will be even the U.S. Armed Services.' "than a group of people raided the

The remainder of her lecture covered everything from sexual equality and women's rights to First Amendment rights violations and that if pornography is made ille-

She concluded her lecture by saying, "Any law that treats women like children and men like satyrs is hardly a step forward for gender equality." Her lecture ended with hardy applause from the crowd of approximately 50 members of the Drew community.

The Sex 101 series will continue Thursday, Nov. 30 with a lecture by Lieutenant Dirk Selland of the United States Navy. Selland is the only openly gay officer serving in the Atlantic Fleet, and his talk will be called, "Sexuality on pornography industry will have no Trial: Homophobia, Religion and

Like you need another excuse

Hang out with your old friends. Take your laundry home, and eat some real food. Whatever the reason, when you get a Student Advantage Card, you can get away on Amtrak for 15% less. You won't be crammed into a car with five other people. Or stuck on a bus out in the middle of nowhere. Your discount is good for travel on most Amtrak train service. And with your Student Advantage membership, you'll get discounts at a variety of businesses across the country. From movie tickets to computers. To get your Student Advantage Card call 1-800-96-AMTRAK. And to make reservations, call your travel agent or Amtrak at 1-800-USA-RAIL. Now stop to get off campus.

Vendors disturb students, Res Life intimidating manner, which has made students uncomfortable. One student who had to deal with an illegal. vendor first-hand was junior Marti Winer. Recently, Winer, along with five or six friends, was in her suite when she heard a knock on the door. When one of Winer's friends answered the door, she encountered a man who inquired about the upcoming SGA elections.Once the man was allowed into the room, he changed his rou- ResLife ExecutiveAndrew Steiner When shown a tine, claiming to has kept watch for the trespassers. menu from a lobe an exchange student from California who only needed to sell a few more magazines to win a trip to Hawaii. According to Winer, the man struck up a conversation and flirted with the residents, at one point asking, "How did this many beautiful women get to live in one place?"

While this was transpiring, several of Winer's friends left the doors and call Public Safety if they see ested in taking part to contact her at

Murphy were aware that the man was in violation of University policy. Eventually, the man was escorted away.

that scary bewould have nized as such.

not been the only group soliciting TRISTA KOBLUSKIE On campus.

cal deli that was found outside students' doors on the first floor of Baldwin Hall Steiner became angry. "That's exactly what I'm talking about,"he said. "They probably have great intentions, but we don't know that. There is always a chance that they aren't on the level."

room to call Public Safety. Jun- anunregistered vendor. Then, the ven-

Alcohol Awareness Session

David Cennimo

Individuals wishing to receive training on how to host a party while serving alcohol gathered yesterday evening in the Baldwin

Manager of Residential Programs Andrew Steiner and Director of Student Activities Kim Sweeney hosted the program. Ev-

See ALCOHOL, page 5 Happy 91st Birthday George!

The Acorn staff would like to extend a very happy birthday greeting to ninety-one year old George Eberhardt, Director of Audio Facilities and all-around handyman. George, who turns 91 years young today, never fails to inspire students with his quick smile and even quicker wit sometimes they race). Many know him as a man with an anecdote for any occasion. Happy Birthday, George, and may you have many more!

Rape Awareness Week Approaches

announced and will feature a video and discussion on date rape, facilitated by members of the Peer Education group. Peer Educators will also be available to give programs for groups of interested students. Students interested in scheduling a peer program should call the PeerLine at x5454.

Jill Greenbaum, a member of the New Jersey Coalition on Sexual Assault, will speak Friday. She has worked closely with Rutgers University in the past and is eager to work with Drew to raise campus awareness of sexual assault. Rape with only one is a problem on both campuses, she other person, it says, even if it is not yet recog-

The last event being organized by Womyn's Concerns is the Take Magazine Back the Night March, scheduled salespeoplehave for Saturday evening, Oct. 7. The march, a women-only event, will begin at 7 p.m. from the Brothers College Courtyard.

The march will travel through parts of campus which are especially dark and unsafe at night. "It's an empowering experience," Wright said. "[It's] about going to spaces that are not safe ... but as a woman-only thing, it's a bonding

Depending on the amount of interest expressed, a men's vigil may also be planned for Saturday Steinerurged students to close their evening. Wright urges men inter-

"I hope a lot of people go [to the events], not just Women's Concerns people, because it pertains to the entire campus," Wright said.

Although Public Safety records show that there have been no instances of rape on campus in the last few years, Director of Public Safety Tom Evans pointed out that this simply means that there have been no instances of sexual assault reported to him (i.e. the cases have not been treated as crimes). This does not mean that sexual assault should not be an issue of concern.

He said that women's reluctance to report sexual asault is understandable considering the fact that the criminal justice system is often "not set up to deal with women's crimes" in the most effective way. at 540-5045. Students wanting But the thing I like most about his campus is that there are a lot of caring people who reach out and nelp [victims]," he said. Dean of Student Life Denise Alleyne agreed. "Sexual assault is she said. "In most cases, the woman will devo e a few sessions to diswhere she could go, who she could talk to. I hope that by having pro- said O'Hare. "By scheduling grams like the ones scheduled for classes, students get credit so more Rape Awareness Week, we can of them will get involved."

each other." could be helpful in helping people to Counseling and Psychological ashamed, they think they may have widespread. provoked it or led someone on," she said. "There's also the issue of privacy, especially on a campus the size of Drew. It's really difficult. Even if there aren't mass numbers of people attending events we still need to keep putting these programs out in front of people so that they feel they can go talk to someone and get the help and the support that they

Alleyne said there are many sources of aid on campus for victims of sexual assault. Counseling and Psychological Services, located on the second floor of Sycamore Cottage, is one of them. Dr. Marianne O'Hare, Director of Counseling Services, urges rape victims to make use of the various options offered by the de-

Junior Heather Wright currently serves as one of the trichairs of Women's Concerns.

The Peer Assistance and Referral Service (PARS, also known as the GOOD line at x4663) is an anonymous help line that handles phone calls from students. O'Hare assures students that nothing discussed or revealed during a call will be reported to Public Safety unless the caller decides to do so.

One other service available to provide support to victims of sexual assault is Morristown Memorial Hospital's Crisis Hot Line more information on options available for counseling or on sexual assault ir. general can contact the office of Counseling and Psychological Services at x3398.

This semester some new Wellness, Mind and Body classes, s questioning whether something cussing sex, sexuality and rape. programs very few people attend," the first course.'

educate men and women to respect O'Hare estimated that approxi- we feel that this would help premately four or five students who vent some of these [sexual assault] Alleyne also noted that programs have been sexually assaulted come situations." feel less ashamed of being victims Services per year; however she

of sexual assault. "People feel says that the problem is much more

National estimates indicate that about one quarter of all college students have had some type of encounter with sexual assault. "[At Drew] it's generally just a few women who turn out; women who may have been victims years ago [and are just talking about it

Dr. Jack Kurzawski, a counselor in Counseling and Psychological Services, added that although women are generally the victims of sexual assault, men should also be educated about the issue.

"I don't think that when men are engaging in this type of behavior they view it as rape," he said. "But they could pay the price. It could cost them their education here at Drew; they could even be pros-

Alleyne, Evans, Kurzawski and O'Hare agreed that alcohol is a significant contributing factor to the problem of sexual assault. "I would say that of the cases we see, 95-98 percent are drug/alcohol related," O'Hare said.

Evans said that alcohol is often used to reduce a woman's inhibitions and that it often causes both parties to do things they normally wouldn't. "It changes the personality dramatically, and in a different way each time," he said.

He and Alleyne both endorsed the free Rape Aggression Defense (RAD) classes which have been held on campus for the last four years through Public Safety. Evans, along with Public Safety Officers Lisa Maldonado and Jeff Stewart, and Officer Ivan Martinez of the Madison Police Department, will be teaching the first of this year's RAD courses beginning Sunday, Oct. 1. Thus far approximately 60 women have signed up for this first session.

RAD is a basic defense course intended solely for women, which combines physical contact training, discussion and informational sessions, and tips towards basic self-defense. Maldonado expects to offer three more courses during the upcoming spring semester and urges women to take part.

"It's really nice for first-year female students," Maldonado said. During this year's orientation, she tried to "get out and meet as many of the first year female students' as she could and discussed RAD as a program available to them.

"RAD has really taken off," Alleyne said. "They've done a fabulous job building it up from did happen, if she provoked it, "We find that when we put on the 20 people who signed up for teaches women to be more assertive, verbally and physically, and

College Republicans hold first meeting,

begin mapping out goals for new year David Cennimo Staff Writer

Earlier this week approximately 20 College Republicans gathered around a large table in the Founders Room of Mead Hall. The President, Senior Caroline Jacobson, and Secretary, Junior Cathy Cerbo, conducted the meet-

They briefed the new members have been involved in elections,

One of the major goals this year and presidential race. is to expand the service portion of Many other functions are in the the organization. Jacobson pointed works. Tickets for the Rush out that they had just been ap- Limbaugh show have been secured proached by Habitat for Human- so the group will soon be making a ity. They played a part in the cam- trip. They hope to arrange a few paigns of Governor Whitman and major speakers. Republican Con-President Bush.

hoping to present many programs ter. o the wide range of activities in this year. They will be sponsoring The College Republicans' next which the group participates. They a series of fireside chats with promeeting will be held Tuesday, Oct. fessors and alumni. These discus- 10 at 7 p.m. in the Founders Room.

gressman Rodney Frelinghuysen The College Republicans are has agreed to speak every semes-

Kean, Isasi-Diaz reflect on eventful weeks in Beijing

BELJING, from page 1

"The Chinese had a great opportunity with this conference," Kean said. "But, unfortunately, they put their worst foot forward." Delegates were subjected to constant scrutiny from officials, he said, and the blatant surveillance by the Delegates were able to recognize officials watching them because authorities could be seen holding celular phones and cameras with telescopic lenses. To ease

Chinese police was extremely ap-

graphing them. The involvement of the Chinese police was more dramatic— 100,000 police officials watched a convention of 35,000 people. Several delegates had their rooms searched, many people were denied access to events, no accommodations were made for handicapped delegates, and most of the guards were not bilingual, which made communication an enormous

The press corps focused many of their articles on the negative points of the conference, Kean said, even though many of the delegates asked the media to focus on the positive goals and accomplishments of the conference.

The outcome of this conference was a document calling for further advancements in the economic, social and political rights of women. However, it technically carries no legal weight, since the U.N. does not have the power to delegate policy to member nations.

The document was drafted by members of the official government delegations, which, from the United States, consisted of Hillary Rodham Clinton, Kean, former Congressional Representative Geraldine Ferraro, U.N. Ambassador Madeleine Albright, Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala and other State Department officials.

As was the case with other countries, the majority of people in attendance were associated with nongovernmental organizations (NGO's). Kean said one problem the delegates had, which was blamed on the Chinese, was the lack of interaction between the government delegations and the NGO's. Many NGO members felt they were denied the ability to inform official delegates of their views and ideas.

ference were women's roles, spe- to ensure implementation of the cifically in economics, and vio- measures agreed upon.

make up 50 percent of the world's population, do two-thirds of the world's labor [both inside and outside the home], earn five to ten percent of the world's wages, and own one percent of the world's The problem of economics and

He offered the statistic, "Women property is more apparent in non-Western nations, where women are forbidden to inherit any property or money upon the death of their husband. Reproductive rights were also a great concern, according to Kean the situation, Dr. Isasi-Diaz began and Isasi-Diaz. China, which has a one child per family policy, photographing the officials photocharges people tremendous fines for a second child. Parents are often forced to either abort the child or give them up for adoption. Clinton strongly criticized this practice and several other Chinese policies.

Surprisingly, Clinton's comments in turn drew reverse criticism from the Chinese. They explained these stringent policies are necessary to keep the population of China, which numbers well over one billion, at a controlled number. If the population continues to increase, the Chinese say they will run out of food.

Because of her comments and the criticism drawn from Chinese officials and citizens, Hillary Clinton received no media coverage from the Chinese. She never appeared on Chinese television, and never was mentioned in articles in Chinese papers. The Chi nese press eliminated any news of her presence at the conference, leading the Chinese people to believe she had never attended.

Despite the security and the negative publicity, the delegates ironed out a document which recommends changes in the treatment of women all over the world. When asked about the impact it will have on students at Drew, Director of Women's Concerns and Professor of English Wendy Kolmar said:

"I think this document wil affect women everywhere, and it's important for students at an affluent institution like Drew to recognize women's struggle for economic survival all over the world."

The implementation of suggestions are left in the hands of individual governments. Although the impact of this conference remains to be seen, Kean said that the delegates vowed to continue the fight

ALOCHOL, from page 4 serving minors were also reviewed. the problem. If the party was not ery student who attended was The group reviewed a host's re- registered, we must address the given a packet of information. It sponsibilities. Sweeney suggested problem and the fact that there was dures for registering an event.

one of these programs is manda-

The discussion opened with a tory. Steiner illustrated the ben- of fun while still being safe," contained general facts on the use that someone watch the door to and consumption of alcohol in resi- ensure intoxicated people are not dence halls. The ins and outs of admitted or served. It is a sate planning a party were also illus- offense to serve an individual un-

law and enforcement were men- Steiner explained the proce-

This was a small group of pro- Within the next few weeks, a genspective party hosts and conse- eral event registration form will sion in a few weeks. "We want to The policies regarding party reg-

make you aware of your rights, istration are explained in detail in responsibilities and liabilities", Daniel's dictionary. Attendance at true and false quiz pointing out he efits of registering a social gather-

New Jersey state laws as they per- "If a party is registered and there

tain to hosting, drunk driving and is a problem, we will just address trated. Finally, responsibilities, der the influence.

quently, there will be another ses- be in place.

misconceptions about alcohol. The ing.

explained Steiner.

Habitat for Humanity combats homelessness with U.C. sleepout

Airaj Fasiuddin

NEWS

The Drew University chapter of Habitat for Humanity will be hold-international campus chapters of Drew, then built on them by invit-Habitat for more than one year, a ing students, faculty, and staff chapter was officially recognized members of all three schools to at Drew in January 1995.

Junior Meghan Lecates, president of the Drew chapter of Habitat, explained the motivation for bringing such an organization to the University: "We had really learned a lot as a group and we

Meghan LeCates enters her second year in charge of Habitat.

ng its first sleepout fundraiser tonight. Members of the organizaion will be spending the night in front of the University Center in order to increase awareness of nomelessness while raising money for the organization.

The sleepout will be launched by the singing of Drew's female a capella group, On a Different Note, at 11:45 p.m. and will end at 8 a.m. tomorrow morning. Participants have collected pledges from sponsors who will donate a specific amount of money to Habitat for each hour the member sleeps outside.

Proceeds will be used to pronote the organization's Newark affiliate, and to support Drew students who would like to continue the purpose of Habitat in other regions of the country.

Habitat for Humanity International is a social organization that while actively working to diminish the need for decent, affordable housing. After involvement with First alcohol awareness session held

It is a little known fact that common areas can be reserved for parties. You could conceivably throw a registered party for 100 of your closest friends in the Baldwin

The corollary is that the theme houses also have common areas.

Some residents have been surprised to find RD's on rounds in ment where people can have a lot

Steiner said. "Having parties is a good thing ... as long as those people involved understand the rules and their theme houses.

Basement Lounge

possibly build a stronger sense of Student involvement with Habitat began with a work site in Florida during spring break of 1994, and was continued in Newark during the winter of that same year. Since its inception, Drew's chapter has become strongly affiliated with the Newark branch of Habitat. "We wanted to have this connection with Newark because it's interesting to see the development. Unlike our first site in Florida, it is easy to keep ourselves informed here about Habitat - to see the development, not just hear about it," said Lecates. The first work site of the Fall 1995 semester was at Newark on Saturday, September 16. The activity involved nine Drew students led by executive board member Karen Ehinger.

LeCates commented on the strong support of Habitat for Humanity through much interest in the work sites and sleepout, and through the "great turnout at meetings." Upcoming work sites will be located in Newark on Nov. 5, Nov. 11, and Dec. 3.

The sleepout tonight highlights the Habitat Awareness Weekend sponsored by the Drew chapter of Habitat for Humanity. The weekend began last night with the speeches of Reverend Christine Lesley, Executive Director of Habitat for Humanity - Newark, and Jeanette Carroll, Executive Director of the SHARE program in

The other event planned for the weekend is a penny drive beginning at 9 p.m. Sunday. Participants will be visiting residence halls collecting pennies and change from students to raise money for the thought it would be great if we Drew and Newark chapters of brought our experiences back to Habitat for Humanity.

Attention Night Owls!

A disabled student on campus is looking for students who could turn him in bed at 2 a.m. two or three times a week. It a simple task, but one that is well-paid and requires little work. If interested, please call Tom Wilson at x4494.

Alcohol quickly affects your judgment, balance, and coordination. When these faculties \(\sqrt{} \) are impaired, riding becomes more than difficult. It becomes dangerous. Don't drink and ride. Or your last drink might be your last drink. MOTORCYCLE SAFETY FOUNDATION

WHEN YOU RIDE DRUNK, ONE MORE FOR THE ROAD CAN HAVE AN ENTIRELY DIFFERENT MEANING.

LEAD EDITORIAL

Rape awareness

Rape: we've heard it mentioned on television; we see posters about it on city streets; some of us know people who have been forced to experience it. Some of us have been victims ourselves. Drew is supposed to protect us from that. One of the advantages of living in Morris County is the low crime rate, including the occurrence of rape. No one has to worry about rape on campus,

Well, that's only half true.

The problem is that many Drew students have a false sense of security. Unfortunately, some learn that rape can occur anywhere. The Center for Counseling and Psychological Services assists an average of five acquaintance rape victims annually. According to Director Marianne O'Hare, the majority of these cases involve alcohol.

Most of the female students on campus fall within the primary age group for rape victims, 15 to 25 years old. Furthermore, most campus rapes occur within a woman's first six weeks at college. First-year students should be aware that they are still within that six-week window.

In fact, every student on campus should be aware of the potential for and reality of rape. People are too often indifferent To the Editor: about rape, until it occurs to someone they know-or to them. This issue should be on the minds of both women and men. Many men do not want to see themselves as potential victims; even fewer fail to see that they are potential culprits. A variety of women attend the rape awareness programs offered by the Counseling Center, but O'Hare acknowledges that not enough men attend them.

There are, in fact, many programs on campus that try to promote rape awareness. The University should be commended on its prevention efforts. Along with the Counseling Center programs and the annual efforts of Womyn's Concerns in Rape Awareness Week, which begins this Monday, Drew sponsors the Rape Aggression Defense (RAD) program. RAD is a national self-defense program designed to show women that they are not physically helpless. The program emphasizes wide-based selfdefense instruction addressing almost every possible situation. This year, it will be taught by Director of Public Safety Tom Evans, Officer Lisa Maldonado and Officer Morgan McConnell. However, as helpful as awareness and prevention programs are, rape still occurs. When it does, studies have shown that it is always best to cope with the rape by seeking counseling. Drew offers a wide range of options for beginning the healing process. The Counseling Center, the Office of Student Life and Public Safety are always there to offer assistance. Upon request, the discussions will be kept strictly confidential. No one else will be notified, and nothing will go on record.

Another option is to keep the rape offender's name on record. If the victim chooses, no action will be taken against the culprit, but the name will be on file for future reference-to establish a pattern of rape, for instance.

Drew also has a sexual harassment committee that will hear both formal and informal complaints.

Hopefully, no one on campus will ever have to sit down and choose one of these options. Realistically though, about five will be forced to do so each year. It is important to know your options; it is important to be aware that there is indeed rape on campus.

It is so easy to feel safe in our hamlet in the forest. We know nearly everyone by name, and the world seems to end at the outskirts of Quick Chek and A&P. However, we live with one foot in the real world, and the real world includes rapists.

CM L-321 Madison, NJ 07940-0802 201-408-3451

Opinions
Editor John Hwang
Assistants Brian Haskell
Shawn Steinhart Sports Editor Ryan Fraytic Assistant April Adams

Photography Editor Trista Kobluski Assistant Steve Garza Copyediting Coordinator Tyler Sets

Advertising Manager Mike Fisher Leila Kimirhamze Melissa Lalka

The Acorn is the independent student newspaper of Drew University.

The above editorial expresses the majority opinion of The Acorn editorial board. All byned editorials, Letters to the Editor and editorial cartoons represent solely the opinions of

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to the Editor must be received by 5 p.m. the Tuesday preceding publication. Please include both a signed hard copy and a disk copy saved in WordPerfect 5.1 format. Under extreme circumstances, The Acorn will print letters anonymously, but, for legal reasons, the Co-Editors in Chief must know the identity of the author

Co-Editors in Chief must know the identity of the author.

Letters should either be hand-delivered to The Acorn office, University Center Room 109, or mailed to the above address.

The Acorn reserves the right to edit letters for length, clarity and/or libelous content. Letters withheld because of space constrictions will be printed in a following issue.

READER'S FORUM

Cross-country editorial misrepresents Keenan's commitment

As our cross-country team waited in line at the Commons last Friday, many of us were dismayed to read the leading story in Ryan Fraytic's sports editorial. The opinion which Ryan expressed about Coach Kimberly Keenan is not necessarily that of the cross-country team.

Coach Keenan resigned as Drew's athletic business ninistrator to pursue her career in law, but she is certainly retaining her full duties as the cross-country coach (practicing, competing and recruiting). Her dedication to our team will be the same as it has been thus far. Ryan's most distressing comment, though, was his suggestion that Coach Keenan resign.

Cross-country coaches at Drew have come and gonemostly gone-over the years. Coach Keenan is the first coach that any of us have worked with for more than one season. Her commitment to the advancement of the cross-country program has been tremendous. Contrary to Fraytic's suggestion, the worst thing for the cross-country team would be for Coach Keenan to resign

As a responsible writer, Fraytic should have contacted Coach Keenan and our team before expressing his uninformed opinion about what we deserve.

> Jay Zampini Lauren Marasia members of the cross-country team

Editorial neglects resources that immigrants bring to U.S.

In a Sept. 22 Acorn article, Charles E. Toms expresses extremely biased views about the immigration issue in the. United States. He describes immigrants as a drain on the , , the United States. American economy and predicts imminent "catastrophe" if the U.S. does not close its borders completely. He accuses immigrants of causing poverty, unemployment, and overpopulation in America.

I certainly object to his generalization that only 'native-born" Americans can be contributing members of our society, but his article raised ethical questions that go beyond the economic effects of immigration.

Mr. Toms should not have to be reminded that he is most likely the descendant of immigrants. The fact that one's ancestors arrived here a century ago does not entitle him to magical privileges over modern-day immigrants. From the smug tone of the article, it seems as if the author expects to be congratulated on his good sense for having been born in the United States.

Obviously, birthplace is not determined by a merit system, and Mr. Toms no more deserved to be born here than in a war zone. Likewise, someone born in a country with economic or political instability does not earn this

With this in mind, how can a native-born American deny immigrants the possibility of seeking better opportunities in a new country'

The most ignorant view expressed in the article concerns the current war in Yugoslavia. The author states, "The turmoil in Yugoslavia is an example of the effect of having sub-cultures (sic) within a nation. The United States already has too many prob tion to cause any more." The atrocities being committed in

Yugoslavia have nothing to do with immigration; they are the result of nearly a millennium of hatred between ethnic groups. The situation that led to this war cannot be compared to ethnic communities that retain their cultural heritage in

Call me an optimist, but I do not see an armed conflict between Chinatown and Mainstream America taking place anytime soon. Conversely, I believe the majority of Americans enjoy the cultural richness that immigrants bring. The opinions expressed by Mr. Toms reflect intolerance and narrow-mindedness. It is hatred, not ethnic subcultures, that contribute to ethnic conflict and violence.

Finally, I disagree with the insinuation, present throughout the article, that Americans have no moral obligation to assist the disadvantaged of this world. I realize that a small proportion of immigrants to the United States is not prepared to contribute to the economy immediately, and these people probably do require extensive government assistance. However, this should not be regarded as a drain on society. As a citizen, I find it perfectly acceptable that some newcomers may require special help as they adjust to a strange country This is an investment, made with trust that the individual will use it to become a more productive citizen.

Mr. Toms states, "[Americans] value immigration because it has always existed, and they believe that it must continue to exist." However, the institution of immigration has not survived since the beginning of our history because of inertia. Immigration enriches American culture and brings in productive new citizens, and I consider it the moral obligation of a privileged country. To promote its end reflects intolerance and selfishness.

> Jessica Anne Mider Sophomore

'Effects of immigration' sends improper message about immigrants

To the Editor:

All too often, people feel obliged to defend a viewpoint that they simply don't understand. That's my spin on the first sentence of Charles Toms' editorial, entitled "Effects of immigration," in last week's Acorn. Nothing can be more frustrating or dangerous.

"America simply cannot afford to support more immigrants," Toms writes. America simply cannot afford not to welcome immigrants. Of course an increase in population will increase the need for services, such as education. However, immigrants also contribute a great deal to the

Toms claims that "the majority of immigrants who come here are poor." I am very interested where he came across that figure because my brushes with the issue have shown otherwise. A higher rate of poverty does exist among refugees, 10% of all immigrants, who are often fleeing persecution. Yet, immigrants use social welfare services at rates comparable to those of citizens.

Immigration policy in the U.S. already attempts to screen out immigrants who "are likely to become public charges." In fact, this stipulation is the largest factor that unforeseeable circumstances that may warrant financial assistance.

Toms further states that "because of their poverty, [immigrants] do not provide a good tax base to help pay for those

However, a recent Urban Institute study revealed that immigrants pay more in taxes than they receive in services—including costly education—25 to 30 billion dollars more! States and municipalities seem to be feeling the pressure of providing services not because immigrants "don't pay their fair share," but because much of what they pay goes to the federal government, instead of local communities

Also contrary to Toms' perception about immigrants, most do work. The 1990 Census revealed that immigrants, 7.9% of the population, had incomes equal to 8% of all income earned in the U.S.

Toms attempted to link immigrants to a decrease in employment opportunities for other Americans. However, immigrants often fill voids in some sectors of the economy. They frequently take jobs that other Americans are not willing to take.

Additionally, many businesses recruit and sponsor technical workers, particularly in the field of computers, from other countries because of the short supply of qualified such workers they say exists in the U.S. This creates jobs for other prevents people from immigrating to the U.S. However, Americans by keeping some corporations, that may otherjust like anybody else, immigrants may be subject to wise go abroad to meet this shortage, in this country. By spending their incomes here, immigrants also create a greater See IMMIGRANTS, page 8

Ants come marching into Tolley Usually, this column deals with warded message from Jackie tainer. What exactly does this something blatantly political. This Younge, the Residence Director woman mean by my need to "clean week, I want to examine the poli- for the Tolley-Brown complex. In up my act?" Is part of that the tics of running a campus with an the message she said that the exter-cessation of oral hygiene? efficiency level slightly higher than that of socialist Russia.

Frank Forte

The problem I'm specifically referring to is ants in Tolley Resiare marching. In fact, they've been been living on the second floor. In seems many of the residents have run into a brick wall called the Drew Bureaucracy. In other words, we've been given the runaround.

It all started the first day I moved in and my roommate found ants all over his closet. Later in the day, our Resident Assistant put a sheet outside her door for people who was posted in the hall stating that would be here soon.

weeks. I was assured by those who had already done the experiment that it was not as bad as it tating a live chicken embryo could

When the fateful day finally arrived, my stomach was in knots. I chick wouldn't look like anything:

it would be an amorphous pink blob surrounded by yolk.

Satisfied with

tions, I grasped the still-warm egg and prepared to crack

it open. I was not used to feeling

warmth from an

egg. The run-of- - the realm living things.

the bowl. I gasped.

I took a deep breath and smashed cially.

I had been dreading lab for rounded it.

The World as

We Know It

Assistant Opinions Editor

sounded. I didn't see how decapi- Far from being a shapeless blob,

not be a disturbing experience, back and nearly tripped the

but, for the sake of science and a teacher's assistant, who was wan-

good grade in a class that I was in dering around the room to make danger of failing, I put on a happy sure students had been provided

my rationaliza- Proponents of these experiments will say that it teaches they do retain will be taught again later on.

terial." She was right.

minator had been here to investi- Even if I had open food in my gate, and had done nothing. The room, I ask this woman: Has she people "clean up their acts."

of my contact lens case, even be addressed. though I put a tissue between it and the counter. If food is the cause of some people with ants had no open all the problems, why do I see ants food, but the R.D. still has neither floating in my water and crawling a definite answer nor a solution, on the sink many nights?

straw was dropped. It was a for- ants infesting a toothbrush con-

Nestled next to the yolk was the

through a tissue-thin layer of skin.

this creature had clearly developed wings and legs, bulbous eyes, a assured it wouldn't do-it moved!

It squirmed a bit and opened its mouth as if in protest of the suffering I would soon inflict. I stepped with properly developed embryos.

I knew that the next step in the lab partner lifted the bird by the students the skills needed for medical and graduate schools—you need to learn to kill before you can learn to heal. The reality is that most students will forget much of what they learned by the end of the semester, and what

It also did something I had been beak, even feathers.

embryo, its beating heart visible be such a waste to kill dozens of reason? They found open food in ever kept open food in her house, some of the rooms, and determined or does she usually down entire that this food was the cause of all bags of chips and cookies in one the ants in Tolley and stated that sitting? Over this past summer, we she refused to do anything until were renovating our kitchen at home. All the food from our cabinets had to be moved. For most of To begin with, there was no open the summer, we had open packfood here the first night when we ages of food, including chips (the dence Hall. Like the Dave first discovered the ants. There has main accusation of the R.D.) on Matthews Band song says, the ants never been food in the bathroom the floor along the outside wall of where, on several nights, I have the house, and we never had an ant marching since the first day I've found ants swarming along the problem. This seems to indicate counter in front of the mirrors. that open packages of food can trying to rectify this problem, it They have been in my cup I use to exist fine in a place not infested by brush my teeth, they have even ants. Tolley, on the other hand, has been crawling all over the bottom a serious ant problem that needs to

Our R.A. acknowledges that not even for those people without Just last night, I rinsed out my the offending food (or even the had such problems to sign. About a toothbrush container and as I offending toothbrushes) in their weeklater, on September 8, a letter dumped out the water, I saw at rooms. The R.D. could only say least a couple dozen ants in the that she'd consider that maybe due to the problems with ants, an sink which didn't get washed down some people didn't have open food, exterminator had been hired, and by the water. Should I get rid of my and maybe there really was a probtoothbrush? Is it now illegal to lem, and maybe, perhaps an exter-In this case, "soon" meant two keep the materials to brush your minator might possibly be called, full weeks later, Friday, Sept. 22. It teeth at school? Never in my 19 but she's not sure. With that statewas that afternoon that the final years alive have I ever heard of ment, she may be snatched up by chicks for a few pieces of tissue,

the sole purpose of which is to prove a theory we know to be accu-

will say that it teaches students the skills needed for medical and graduate schools-you need to learn to kill before you can learn to heal. The reality is that most students will forget much of what they learned by the end of the semester, and what they do retain will be taught again later on.

Proponents of these experiments

Embryo lab threaten animal rights tested on lab rats and apes, and I wear leather shoes. It just seems to

Musical an important part of DUDS season

James Armstrong Ulcca Joshi

Over lunch the other day, we were sitting with a group of students including both members of the Drew University Dramatic Society (DUDS) and non-members. We began talking about past DUDS seasons and the prospects for this year. Despite the diversity of the group, there was a general air of disappointment at the mention of a significant change currently under consideration for the upcoming

As the theater department and DUDS gear up for this semester's productions, it is already getting ready to choose a new slate of shows for next semester. Although all options are being considered right now, there may be one noticeable absence: the traditional spring musical might be replaced by two student-directed one-act plays. As both a DUDS member and a non-member, we believe we speak for many when we say that this would be a mistake and could prove detrimental to the DUDS

While it is true that musicals are expensive to produce, they also draw in large crowds-sometimes the largest houses of the season. Many students who do not attend DUDS plays regularly attend and enjoy the musicals. They offer a change of pace from the types of plays usually produced during the rest of the year

Without a doubt, DUDS productions have a definite slant towards non-traditional and avant-garde pieces, which hold appeal for a large audience, but not for all of the Drew community. Of course, no form of entertainment is for everyone, and musical theater is no exception. Still, the popularity of musicals in recent years (even rather obscure ones) testifies to the fact that a single musical draws a much larger audience than any set of one-act plays.

The musicals also draw singers, musicians and other artists into the theater who might not otherwise get involved with DUDS. They offer performers something they cannot readily get either from the music department or from the rest of the DUDS season. Drew traditionally performs only one musical per year, and many performers look forward to the spring musical as much as the audiences do. Omitting the musical would eliminate a very important performance venue. It would further widen the gap between the theater and music departments and would eliminate the variety of options open to Drew performers.

One major concern of the theater department is the large number of students who wish to direct. Replacing a student-directed, two-act musical with two one-act plays would open up an additional slot for a student director. However, this would deny a student the added responsibilities and challenges of directing a two-act play.

See DUDS, page 8

The Drew tradition

SGA Cabinet

Rent-A-Rugger, The Drew University Dramatic

If biology is the study of life, why don't biologists teach a reexperiment would be too much for spect for it? By using chicks as kept reassuring myself that the tiny me, but I decided to watch as my experimental tools, we trivialize the value of living organisms.

neck and, with a clean snip, sev- It can be argued that by dissectered its head from its body. We ing and examining animals, we can better appreciate the wonders of design physiology, but we risk presenting these animals as cold. lifeless models

the-mill supermarket variety are quickly descended upon the car- created to be studied, whose organ refrigerated to prevent spoilage cass, teasing bits of skin and muscle systems students must memorize and, I believe, to remove eggs from from the corpse, and digging its in order to get an "A," and whose eyes from its socket. We pulled its spent carcasses can then be tossed They are cold and lifeless only still beating heart from its chest out and forgotten. in the human world, allowing us to and placed it in a sterile petri dish.

The argument over animal testbe comfortable with the idea of The tissue samples were ready to ing will rage on until someone can eating something that comes from be finely minced and blended with come up with practical alternathe reproductive system of an ani- chemicals in the hopes of proving tives. We can, however, attempt to that cells could be cultured artifi- minimize the slaughter of animals by eliminating useless experiments the egg against the side of the bowl. I knew some of my classmates and wasteful practices.

I tried to do it with the same non- were as disturbed as I was, but I If the lab in which I participated chalance that I would have demon-seemed unable to stifle my emo-is truly necessary, it could be perstrated had I been making an omtions. My jaw hang open in disgust formed with many fewer embryos. elet, but I couldn't fool myself. As for much of the lab, and my profes-I pulled apart the broken shell, the sor shook her head as if to say, experiment, if allowed to reach contents of the egg spilled out into "Hmm, that one's not science ma- maturity, would only wind up on the dinner table.

The yolk was not the clean yel- Of course, I have no right to be Whatever their fate in the future low color that I had come to ex- disturbed. I am an admitted carni- (a chicken's life is hard), we pect. It was tinged with red, and vore, eating the flesh of animals wouldn't have wasted their bodies crimson blood vessels sur- born to be killed. I take medicine for frivolous experimentation.

should be fostered whenever pos-We have many traditions here t Drew: Multicultural Awareness Day, First Annual Picnic, the Junior/Senior Semi-formal,

Society Ball. Desk This year marked what we hope will be the beginning of another tradition-Convocation. Convocation serves a dual purpose—to welcome the first-year students and to mark the beginning of the academic year. At many universities, Convocation pated by the entire university.

But traditions do not come easily. They must be actively pursued and encouraged, particularly at their inception. The energy and enthusiasm of the Orientation Tyburski, as well the Convocaderful ceremony.

But one year does not a tradiion make.

It is only through the dynamic can take hold and establish itself. This idea applies not only for Convocation, but for many cus- tive participation in both the deoms at Drew.

ing traditions alive at Drew and out the year. to establishing a unified commuditions. Therefore, traditions mail at sga@drew.edu.

sible. Convocation is a formal practice and an important one. However, the most memorable and fun traditions are often those which grow spontaneously out of student interest.

Last year's First Annual Campin (FAC), which took place the weekend of FAP, is an example of this, as is FAP itself. FAP began 22 years ago in the backyard of Phil and Pat Peek as a gathering of anthropology students and faculty. In a short time it has become the home of the beer garden and sumo wrestling.

We in Student Government Asis an established custom, a beau-sociation support and encourage tiful ceremony eagerly antici- efforts of community building and hope that all members of the Drew community will continue to attend these events as they come

The next time you are sitting around in your room with your Committee co-chairs, seniors friends and someone comes up Anne Zanzucchi and Chris with a great idea, we challenge you to follow through with it. tion Committee, produced a won- This is the only way that we will be able to grow as a community and build a greater sense of school spirit. If you feel unable to follow through with it alone, bring it to participation of the entire student SGA, and we will help you find body that a fledgling tradition the appropriate channels to make your vision a reality.

We look forward to your acvelopment of new traditions and Involvement is the key to keep- in student government through-

If you have a question or concern, please do not hesitate to The concept of community is a contact us. We can be reached at vital one at any university and it the SGA office in University is a concept rooted in strong tra- Center 108, at x3450 or via e-

Senior feels short-changed by Drew services

John Siminoff

Recently I was in the Snack Bar and I wanted to buy a Snapple (for the outrageous price of $1.25) and two bagels. By my watch it was 11:55 a.m., which should have been well before the noon cutoff of the Drew I.D. cards.

But the I.D. machine had been turned off a little early on this particular day, and no more I.D. cards would be accepted. Due to daka's policy, after noon and before 1 p.m. all purchases at the Snack Bar must be made with

The problem is that I needed a dents. meal that could be taken back to my room (which can't be done at I had to buy from the Snack Bar. was forced to put the Snapple and bagels back and go back to my room empty handed (and rather

Regardless of whose fault this particular difficulty was, I and a few other students had to spend more money on meals than we ritations that I find at this school. have already paid for the meal

This is just one example of how many employees of this university have little or no desire to work with students or give them a break. Many of the people at this school have forgotten that they work for the students, not the other way around. We are the customers; we are the people who should be ca-

simply look at you and say, "I am just doing my job.'

fourth year here), I can honestly and faculty are really willing to the possibility of being hit by a car each semester.

tered to. Instead of assitance, more scrounge all over campus for a not reflect the absurd prices we simply don't feel that I am treated often we get pushed aside. They parking space every time I return pay for the meals. Rather, they by this school the way that I should from a car trip. If you have ever overcharge and constantly inconwalked from the Glenwild park- venience the students with all the In my experience (this is my ing lot to Riker or Baldwin with specific scheduled times when we groceries at night, it is both incon- can spend the money we are forced say that only the academic deans venient and leaves you exposed to to give them for the meal plan

The problem is that I needed a meal that could be taken back to my room (which can't be done at the Commons-try it one day). So I had to buy from the Snack Bar. Unfortunately for me, I didn't have any cash just my I.D. card, so I was forced to put the Snapple and bagels back and go back to my room empty handed (and rather hungry).

work with the needs of the stu- unless you walk in the woods to

Many of this school's pay the DMV $100,000 for four years of education.

Drew may have a well-deserved academic reputation, but as far as student treatment goes, Drew should rate very low indeed. I am tired of the constant, pointless ir-

Students pay $75 per year for a parking space, but nine times out of ten end up having to walk ten minutes with their packages from their cars from Glenwild or the

The school spends its money on In many urban areas of the country, immigrants are Divsion I level athletic facilities but does nothing so that I can simply park my car here. As a senior I should not have to which are generally very intense and "modernistic," a musical is a

DUDS without a musical

DUDS, from page 7 Unless a musical is produced, no students will direct two-act plays

breath of fresh air. In past years, even when the this year. In past years at least one musicals haven't been overwhelmfull set-sometimes more-was ingly successful, they have been open to student directors. greeted with enthusiasm as some-Moreover, the musical gives stuthing new and different. This year's dents experience in choreography season looks very exciting, and we and musical direction, things to would hate to see it lose a very which they might not otherwise be exposed. To us, it seems a fair important component. Whether you find them compeltrade-off to make a single student wait a semester to direct a one-act ling drama or corny remnants of in exchange for providing many vaudeville, musicals are an imporstudents such exciting opportuni- tant part of the American stage. Our main concern is that a DUDS an aspect of theater otherwise abseason with no musical would be sent from Drew, and we hope that unbalanced. Amid a season of plays it doesn't disappear.

the side of the road.

In addition, there are the auadminstrative departments behave thoritarian parking regulators the Commons-try it one day). So towards the student the same way we call Public Saftey. They the personnel at the Department serve admirably in the role of a Unfortunately forme, Ididn'thave of Motor Vehicles treat me, the revenue service by giving parkany cash, just my I.D. card, so I only difference being that I don't ing tickets away like candy (of which I believe at least half are absurd and should never have been written).

Daka, the food service, has at best adequate food, and its disposition towards the students does

It is not as if we all agree to the meal plan, we simply must choose which of daka's three methods of robbery we wish to submit to. It is these and several other "minor" facets of student life that I consistently feel that this school ignores its students needs and de-

the "Drew Screw" is alive and over again, I can honestly tell you well. With the exorbitant tuition that I wonder if I would have come that I am charged to attend here, I to Drew.

It is rare that I can look at something that this school does and feel that it was really worth the money spent on it.

The only exception to this rule is the academic deans and faculty who are two of the few things that kept me here. They (not the administration or subsidiary services) deserve congratulations for treating the students with the respect and understanding we should receive in exchange for our collective millions.

I, for one, have had my fill of the threats of fines, inability to get into storage, parking tickets, bad food and life-hindering bureau-

While many of my friends have complaints about their various schools, few can cite as many as I

After spending three years at What it really comes down to this school I can certainly say that for me is this: if I had it to do all

READER'S FORUM

America can build on strengths of immigrant population

IMMIGRANTS, from page 6 demand for goods, creating even more job opportunities.

evitalizing languishing neighborhoods. Finally, Toms asserts that immigration is "tearing Americans apart." However, America was built upon the strength of a diversity of cultures. It thrived, and still does, on people coming with a desire to work hard and improve their lives. Diversity isn't a liability, it is an asset. This is particularly true today, in an era of global trade, when usinesses need a variety of cultural perspectives.

In an unusual coalition, a broad array of individuals have declared their support for immigration. From House Majority Leader Dick Armey (R-TX) and New York's Republican Mayor Rudolph Guiliani to Senators Ted Kennedy (D-MA) and Paul Simon (D-IL), from the AFL-CIO to business leaders, like James Johnson (Chairman and CEO of Fannie Mae) and Malcolm Forbes, Jr., leaders around the country have spoken out against devastating cuts in immigration. They value immigration not "because it has always existed," as Toms claims, but because of the positive economic and social impact immigrants have on our country.

Unfortunately, too many others have been using immigrants as scapegoats for the economic downturn we are experiencing. Spinning the wheel of political fortune, they are exploiting a fear of "foreigners" that is always present, but seems to surface a little more during unfavorable eco-

Toms' article angered me not because his point of view is different than mine is, but because he made brash statements without supporting them. He seemed to blame immigrants for all of America's ills, from cultural discord to poverty and unemployment. I can only hope that he follows his own advice and makes an attempts to understand institutions before attacking them.

Benita Jain

First-year student has no bitterness regarding SGA election error

I'm sure most of you are aware of the unfortunate nistake that occurred in the SGA elections last week that falsely declared myself as first year Senator. Last week, a letter was printed in The Acorn explaining the situation and apologizing for the error. The spring musical reaches out to I would like to take this opportunity to accept their apology and state that I bear no ill will towards the SGA. Pornography exploits women and undermines feminism

I received several personal apologies from SGA members, and I believe they handled the situation with professionalism

Furthermore, I have graciously accepted an appointment to the Quality of Life Committee, and I look forward to working with the SGA in the future.

Tolley overwhelmed by ants

ANTS, from page 7

Clinton to direct his waffle-policy

do not want to spray harmful chemi-vertise the school-have the word cals with open food around; but spread to their high school friends they're dragging their feet. It takes that Drew is infested with ants. It one day to inform people that the sure makes the parents, who are next day, we will be spraying, so the ones shelling out the big money, please store away all food. This rest easy when they see their kids has dragged on now for over three packing Raid and Combat traps so weeks, and it seems no one has any they can return to their dorm. intent of rectifying the situation. My roommate has set traps and you more to be told that the school nearly emptied a can of Raid, but refuses to do anything because to no avail. I keep no open food out people have open food in their in the room.

tive saw the ants and said that this Sound absurd? type of ant is not attracted by food. Open food helps, but this is just a ation has gotten to be absurd. Its breed that infests buildings. This time for the R.D. and the adminismakes sense. After all, there are no tration to clean up their act, beopen bags of chips in the bath- cause my act is already quite clean,

It seems Drew knows how to snatch defeat from the jaws of victory. With the largest first-year I understand that administrators class ever, it's a great way to ad-

And after all that, it only irritates rooms. I can only hope that the ants Not that I don't enjoy eating are exterminated soon. If the school cold cookies, but they have been in insists that they remain in my cup the fridge for weeks now, and the as I brush my teeth, then perhaps ants keep marching. I've even spo- they should be charged room and ken to a friend whose visiting rela- board by the Business Office.

Well, then again this whole situ-

I would like to respond to John Siminoff's opinion i article "Women should have choice over own body." As I began to read, I smirked at his patronizing attitude towards feminism. As I read further, I shook my head at his naive views on women's issues. When I completed the article, I screeched with anger at his unintelligent and misinformed, yet typical opinion about women's portrayals in American

Mr. Siminoff said that a woman who believes that abortion is her right to control her own body must also agree that pornography and the swimsuit competition of the Miss America pageant is also a women's "right" to show off her body as she pleases. Those who pose nude in magazines or are contestants in pageants "choose" to exploit themselves for money and prestige. He implied that this is a pretty good deal and I sensed that he would strut around stage in a bikini if he was offered enough money

What I find so wrong about his argument, besides his blatantly simplistic treatment of a complex issue, is the perpetuation of equating women's success and self-esteem with money they gain purely by using their bodies instead of their minds and talents. Miss America contestants stand on stage in their swimsuits for a good fifteen minutes, but when it is time to display their character in the question round they get fifteen seconds or less to offer their solution to world peace. Does anyone else see something wrong

Mr. Siminoff's statement which made me most angry is, "The argument that women are forced to participate in these activities because of pressure from a male-ruled world is ludicrous." This is a commonly believed statement which reflects people's ignorance and determination to close their eyes to the very real problems of sexism in America. I guess John thought the United Nation's Fourth ence on Women in Beijing was just an unnecessary coffee-clutch gathering of housewives bitching about how unfair life is to them. I'd like to tell him that sexism is alive and well and manifested in America in just the sort of activities that he feels are quite acceptable in society. Women do receive less pay for equal or even better work. There is a glass ceiling for women in corporate America that makes it difficult for women to gain upper-management positions in business.

In an ideal world receipt of scholarships and prizes offered in the Miss America pageant would not be based on swimsuit size, but intelligence, sensitivity and commitment to service. In an ideal world, women would not be granted "fame and fortune" by exposing their naked bodies in magazines and videos. But in our very flawed world we must try to reveal behavior and attitudes that grant obvious rewards but also contain underlying harmful effects.

John Siminoff may be "tired of ... illogical double standard[s] proposed by feminists," but I am tired of unenlightened, simplistic men who offer two-dimensional opinions on subjects they know nothing about. Women do have choices over their own bodies, however women and men also need to be educated in regard to the responsibilities and consequences of their actions. I believe that some women who choose to exploit their bodies believe they will not be considered valuable any other way. It is a great deal more subtle than being forced by gunpoint, but it is forceful all the same. That is the kind of situation that feminists try to

Vita Martino

Contract with special interests threatens wildlife

OPINIONS

Assistant News Editor

Last week, the Republican-controlled Congress completed work gress did it again. Senator Ted on a spending bill which, if en- Stevens (R-AK), with the help of acted, will reverse the positive en- some cronies in the House, tacked vironmentalist trend of the past article published a week ago, the again, the measure passed. bill would reduce protection for reduce the number of lands pro-

When I read this article last Fri-

terms of short-term benefits instead of long-term ramifications. cessful.

However, the issue is more complex than a simple ideological debate about our nation's environ- tively abundant in the United mental policy. Naturally, some States. Then, the pesticide DDT people are always going to have a devastated its numbers, and the different ideological bent than I

Even though I may not agree Act. with these people, I can accept its shady objectives.

For instance, when Congress passed its revision of the Clean moments from childhood was hav-Water Act last spring that loos- ing the opportunity to see bald ened pollution controls and freed eagles in the wild, soaring high up wetlands for development, it above a nearly frozen lake covered tacked these provisions onto an with snow and surrounded by appropriations bill for the Envi- mountains. I would like my chilronmental Protection Agency. The bill only passed by one vote, someday.

blame for shutting down the EPA.

In this past week's debate, Conprovisions which allow oil drilling in the Arctic Wildlife Refuge onto According to a New York Times a budget reconciliation bill. Once

Young conveniently bowed to endangered species, cut funds for pressure from oil interests in his conservation programs and give state instead of thinking of his conbusiness interests more freedom to stituents. The Arctic Refuge is one develop public lands. Add this to of the few remaining places in this proposals to "revise" the Clean Air country that doesn't suffer from and Clean Water Acts, as well as the scar of human development. Obviously, a complex, intricate tected as wetlands, and you have a ecosystem will not coexist too sucwholescale assault on our nation's cessfully with oil rigs. Can we say Exxon Valdez?

I think the main reason these day, my reaction was a mixture of new policies are less than appealanger and bewilderment. I asked ing to me is because they hit close myself, 'Aren't there better ways to home. I live in a rural area in to cut costs than to allow special upstate New York and have had interests to destroy protected the opportunity to enjoy and appreciate a wide variety of wildlife Once again, it appears that the and ecosystems. Two particular Republican majority is thinking in cases stand out as examples of how conservation programs can be suc-

> The bald eagle is our national symbol. Long ago, it was relagovernment was forced to intervene with the Endangered Species

Since that time, the eagle has their views. What I cannot accept rebounded significantly. Without is the way the majority is pursuing government protection the eagle might be near extinction today.

One of my most memorable dren to have the same opportunity see who we're leaving behind? If we acknowledged reality, I doubt we'd be as vain as ignorance al-

At the least, we wouldn't lows us to be.

American conceit

Ali Graham Staff Writer

"NYC, Capital of the world." WHAT? Banners with this sentence are posted throughout the flatter ourselves by inventing city. How far can our vanity go? an international capital and Where do we get off? New York selecting ourselves to host it. I isn't even the capital of America, feel sick when I imagine a forand certainly not the world.

eigner seeing those flags. I find this concept humiliating They're disrespectful, inaccuand unfounded. There are more rate and embarrassing. blindly patriotic Americans than there are oppressed Albanians. What do we have to be so conceited about? Are we proud of the fact that a clumsy coffee drinker can sue McDonalds for having hot coffee? Do we care more about O.J. gossip than we do for peace in the Middle East? If so, then certainly deserve the "capital of the world" title.

Why are we so self-oriented? I'm tempted to blame it on our country's infancy. We are an immature and capitalistic country. We are raised to be individualists. Is this the cause? Perhaps there is nowhere to point a finger.

Realistically, the only fair place to point is toward ourselves. We believe in so many things that we don't even see when our beliefs conflict. I spent years cursing wars before I understood the history behind them. It is this kind of ignorance that leads us to feel that New York is the capital of the world.

Before we go patting ourselves on our backs, why don't we turn to more because it is too polluted. importance transcends state and significant progress has been made factory in Ohio will invariably have be replaced. in cleaning up pollution and mak-negative effects elsewhere, as will ing the river safe again. I would forest depletion in the Pacific hate to see that momentum stopped Northwest. by less stringent regulation and catering to special interests groups. ment should not wash its hands of companies.

Therefore, the federal govern-but President Clinton was forced Just east of my town is the Environmental protection the responsibility of environmento sign it. Otherwise he faced the Hudson River. No one swims or should be at the forefront of the tal protection for the sake of speeats fish out of the Hudson any- national and global agenda. Its cial interest groups and campaign contributions. Once a habitat or a However, in the last 10 or 15 years, local boundaries. Pollution from a species is destroyed, it can never Congress should remember this and work to ensure a clean environment for us all, instead of a quick profit for oil and mining

READER'S FORUM

Health Services offers quality medical attention to students

I am responding to Mr. Haskell's opinion editorial "Health Service, Health Risk." I feel like a student who submitted "A" papers, and then flunked the course because the professor gave 50% credit to class participation without telling anyone. There has been a serious communication problem here.

First let me say that the Health Service appreciates and welcomes feedback from students, both positive and negative. I have a long history of an open door policy with regard to student concerns, suggestions, complaints and onstructive criticism.

Every student evaluation is taken very seriously, is reviewed by our quality assurance committee, and action s taken. Some of our most important changes in policy, personnel and physical plant have resulted from student

Second, let me say that I am troubled by the public arena for discussion of your friends' health care. The Health Service is committed to patient confidentiality and we will not discuss, disclose or release information to anyone without the student's written permission. I am therefore unable to respond to your allegations in any way whatsoever, in case that such a response would lead to the identification of that student.

I will say that I am deeply disturbed by your stories. Suffice it to say that the accounts that you gave have little esemblance to the facts which are documented in our charts. Your version of your friends' encounters reminded me of the old telephone games when the story ends up otally different after it passes through many people.

It is a ridiculous allegation that one of my staff would not know what sciatica is and that your friend had to tell her. We spend a great deal of time explaining the anatomy and pathophysiology of health problems to students, we explain treatment options and we treat those problems using carefully designed protocols that reflect current standards of care. Pain management is always given importance, and to state that we would somehow withhold pain medication when needed is outrageous

You have stated that some of our employees are not ualified to do the job that they are paid to do. Here are the

Are you aware that all of our senior registered nurses are oard certified in College Health, and that we were the only college in New Jersey to have a 100% pass rate on this national examination?

Are you aware that all five of our part-time nurse ractitioners have master's degrees, are board certified, and that they are legally authorized to prescribe medica-Are you aware that the three physicians who come on-site are board certified and that two hold faculty posiions in medical schools? Are you aware that we have written protocols and treatment guidelines and that we regularly do peer-review on our charts for accuracy and protocol compliance? Are you aware that we have a contract with Morristown Memorial Hospital to provide clinical services both in and out of the hospital, and that our physicians are on beeper 24 hours/day for consultation?

Are you aware that the Drew Health Service has been recognized in our state and nationally as a model program for colleges and universities with under 4000 students?.

Some students are under the impression that they have to see a doctor for every visit to get the care that they need. This is not accurate. We urge students to come in immediately for any problem, and the professional nurse or nurse practitioner will either treat the problem, refer the problem to one of our on-site physicians or will refer the student to one of the off-site specialists who are on our referral list.

Upon request, we will contact the student's personal physician at home to update him/her on a problem, or to obtain permission to refer to a specialist locally when the student is insured by an HMO. Even this communication requires the written permission of the student because of our concern for confidentiality.

The advantage of having such a comprehensive health service on campus is that students have immediate access to highly skilled health care professionals who are committed to high quality care. We strive to incorporate the goals of health promotion and disease prevention in our policies and procedures. We are a not-for-profit health center designed to exclusively serve the needs of the Drew community. Consequently, we are not burdened by the bottom line pressures of an outside practice. The Health Services has about 7000 student visits per year. If there is a general feeling of dissatisfaction among students, why would 99% of students who submitted evaluations in 1994-95 give us grades of satisfactory to excellent?

We seek student input as part of our Continuous Quality Improvement (CQI) program. The Health Service has an evaluation form at the front desk, with pen attached, for students to anonymously express opinions. There is also an e-mail category called Health Service Suggestions through which students can anonymously send suggestions or comments to me directly. SGA has a committee on Health and Public Safety where students can bring their concerns or ideas. Students who bring concerns to me directly, or to any staff member, receive support and action when their concern

Mr. Haskell, you have stated that you have not been in the Health Service for two years. I invite you and any other student, staff or faculty to visit the Health Service, ask questions, and review our protocols and policies.

Communication is the foundation of a caring community Students and staff must communicate to build something positive together. Let me assure you that the Health Service shares your goal of having the best health care possible for

> Kathleen E. Nottage Director of Health Services

Student unfairly voted out of SGA | Bush speech reveals

Erik Robert Slagle

WANTED: One student representative for Joint Affirmative Action Committee. Individual should be interested in promoting multiculturalism on campus. Involvement with special interest groups a must. Serious concern for campus climate a plus. Prior experience on JAAC preferred but not necessary. If interested, contact

P.S. If considering position, remember: voicing anti-SGA sentiment is strictly forbidden.

At a Student Government Association meeting Sunday Sept. 24, SGA raised the issue of appointing a student representative to the Joint Affirmative Action Committee. The SGA Cabinet had nominated sophomore Heather McMurchie, who in many people's eyes is more than qualified for the position. Those qualifications include the following:

terest groups on campus including ibility due to an error McMurchie Ariel, Kuumba, ESOL Conversation Partners Program, the Alliance, A.S.i.A, Womyn's Concerns, Alpha Phi Omega and the Diversity Committee.

2. Exposure to other cultures and people with special needs: She has Vietnamese and Latino family members, as well as a physically

3. Previous experience with JAAC: Since May, 1995, she had served as the acting student representative to the JAAC. Over the summer she helped organize a program to interview companies to multicultural issues. Heads of all participate and voice their respective clubs' preferences. Interestingly enough, SGA was the only group in all three schools not to send a representative.

Unfortunately, McMurchie is also not afraid to voice her opinions. In a letter in last week's Acom she chastised SGA for showing minimal support for Multicultural Awareness Day and other cultural events. "I did not see one SGA representative at any of the activities I went to," she wrote.

Upon reading the letter, in which she attacks not only SGA but also the administration, an informed individual should be able to see SGA operated under majority rule on their face from what was meant as McMurchie's intentions. The over- as it did for much of last year, amuch-needed wakeupcall keep them whelming majority of people I have McMurchie would have been given from making a decision that could on her own merit, but the audience But she refused to give credit to spoken with regarding the letter the position. But the vote wound have added quite a bit to the Drew members did not want to recogwas very supportive of her state- up 17-15 in her favor. This fell community. It's like Ross Perot said: nize that. They knew that learning other side, claiming she was not

SGA but because she took a stand.
Put simply, Heather saw a problem which is actually being followed and, unlike most of us, was ready this year. to stop the whining and do some-become too wrapped up in its own bruised ego to see past her fiery remarks, remarks which even she knew would probably draw flak. "I was a little strong," she admitted.

As was stated earlier, the SGA Cabinet specifically nominated McMurchie for the job. "If we didn't feel she could do the job, we wouldn't have nominated her," said SGA Vice President Pat Aylward, "I thought she deserved it."

SGA President Matt Pacello said, "To my understanding she was doing a fine job."

Too bad the Senate thought otherwise. A rather extensive debate ensued at the meeting, fueled by an rigorous attack from Leah Kathleen Parker, co-chair of the Public Safety, Health Servies and Facilities Committee. Parker raised doubts about McMurchie's credhandle the job. She's shown us that by made in her letter; she blamed SGA for something that was actually an ECAB issue involving funding for special interest groups. Parker insisted this error showed McMurchie obviously "does not understand the inner workings of SGA." This was an opinion shared by several members of the Senate. Senior Regan Sweeney commented that Heather's statement about "SGA giving money to sub-boards" reflects "her ignorance." Riker Senator Brian Nell added she "totally doesn't understand the way SGA works." McMurchie demanded SGA do more to support multiculturalism, with the JAAC and report her findings to SGA. Her job was not to "be an SGA vessel," as she put it. Her qualifications were evident; she had even already acted in the position. The Cabinet thought highly enough of her to hand-pick

Many senators were angry for her voicing a negative opinion and pointed to one honest error as an illustration of her hot-headedness. Many, however, voiced support for her and insisted that her opinions do not reflect on her qualifica-

The matter went to a vote. Had

Guess what, guys? You had a good thing going for you. You blew it. It's one thing to reject a candilagging credentials. But there is nothing more deadly in politics than compromising quality to satisfy your own petty vengeances. And it seems to me-and a lot of other people-that this is exactly what the SGA Senate has done Because when you start asking around, you find that many of those who voted against her still turn around and defend her qualifications. Parker, for example, said McMurchie is "very well in touch with a number of groups. She is very well qualified." "She has very strong credentials," Sweeney added, but then said he didn't "know how she was nominated [by the Cabinet]."

Could it maybe be those "very strong credentials?" "Everyone has the right to disagree with SGA," Nell said. "Iknow she can

[serving] as acting rep." Sweeney didn't McMurchie had been serving as the interim rep. "I was not aware of that," he said when asked about it after the meeting. "But I was not on SGA last year.' Parker made the same comment; she, too, was unaware. When informed of this, her exact words were, "Oh really?"

Strangely enough, it was clearly stated at the meeting that McMurchie had held the position for the past four months.

Heather McMurchie wants to make a difference on this campus. Being and she was nominated to work outspoken was her only mistake; had she not written that letter, she would now be serving as student representative to the JAAC. Think I'm wrong? "If she hadn't written that letter she'd be fine." Those words came from SGA President Matt Pacello. "I think personally people voted more on hurt feelings than on my qualifications." McMurchie said in response to the controversy. "I will be there to see who they nominate and to ensure that it is someone who will protect all concerns." body is shaky enough as it is; enough SGA members won't deny it. Now they let wounded pride and a little egg

flaws in GOP policy

Barbara Bush's speech Wednesday, Sept. 20, caused me to wonder about the health of the two-party date due to questionable ethics or system in the United States. You might wonder why Bush, who is naked truths John Therkelsen Co-Editor in Chief

no longer in the political limelight, nade me think about politics. After all, she spoke mostly about her success stories in fighting illiteracy.

However, each of these stories had a message. "All this was done without government involvement," Bush said. In many of the incidents, she had goaded private businesses to help people in a literacy program, the Barbara Bush Foundation for Family Literacy, which was named in her honor. One wondered if she recognized the irony. It's a good question: when a First Lady meddles, is that considered "government involvement?"

Most disturbing is the fact that she advanced a political agenda of non-intervention which she refused to Many success stories were told that night, most focusing on how literacy had helped people find better jobs and improve their lives. One success story was embodied in Gwendolyn Brooks, a graduate of a Newark literacy program whom Bush invited to take the

A mother of two, Brooks told the account of how she was forced at one point to ask the state for money. "I was on public assisance-welfare," she said.

When Brooks told the audience members she was able to leave the welfare system and provide for her family, they applauded loudly. Then Brooks described how her daughters—the next generation were attending school successfully. The proud mother waited a few seconds for applause, got none, and moved on with her speech. Maybe other audience members felt emotionally "spent" after heart-SGA's reputation with the student | ily denouncing welfare, but it seemed to me as if they would rather applaud a political condemnation than the triumphs of the > woman onstage. Gwendolyn Brooks succeeded own-boot-strap capitalism.

fortunately, they only respond to tag lines-welfare bad, no government good—that is what gets

This is why Bush's speech, the audience's mood, and the state of modern politics disappoints me so

Another example of failing to give credit due was Bush's own answer to a question about public television. She said she believed children's public television might work more effectively in the marketplace (Sesame Street with com-

However, of the TV programs and films she denounced earlier in her speech, all were created in deference to the central credo of capitalism, supply and demand. She dropped the names Beavis and Butthead and Dumb and Dumber as if she could prove she was in touch with America's problems. She only proved that Republican ideology is more out of touch than we can imagine.

Networks have made voluntary improvements to commercial television for children in recent years. But television executives, as Bush has proven, do not have the conscience to do away with violent, insipid shows with high ratings. This Saturday morning, children will tune in to Fox's WWF Wrestling, X-Men and Power Rangers.

When it came time to credit a traditionally liberal institution like public television, Bush shrank from the challenge. "I'm not really qualified to speak on that," she said. After emphasizing her commitment to literacy and condemning television as detrimental to reading, she could not say whether publicly-funded Sesame Street teaches good reading skills.

"But I'm not sure ... that public television is the answer," she said. You got the impression that she was afraid to go home and explain her differing views to George. Bush described her successes in promoting literacy, driving home the point that she embraced conservative themes. She invited a newly-baptized believer in the Republican-style Reformation to the podium, knowing that the woman had "converted" from welfare to a new brand of pull-your-

From diary of an editor: a day in the life of body piercing

Garcia's influence goes beyond music

Erik Hendin

Jerry, my friend you've done it again, even in your silence the familiar pressure comes to bear, demanding I pull words from the air with only this morning and part of the afternoon to compose an ode worthy of one so particular about every turn of phrase, demanding it hit home in a thousand ways Now that the singer is gone, where shall I go for the song?

> from An Elegy for Jerry by Robert Hunter

This summer the world lost a huge figure in music and culture: Jerry Garcia dead at the age of 53. Well known for his lead guitar and vocals for the Grateful Dead, there about his personality, which conare many mixed emotions surrounding the loss which ended an era that lasted more than a quarter the years. of a century. Much of the factual history is available in books, and of course in the magazine and newspaper articles that reported his

Rather than rehash this information, I would like to point out a few sion. Each member had his own people have with the band, he was things about Garcia and the Dead that I feel are often overlooked.

Garcia was an individual. An artist with a real capacity to under- Deadheads accept people of all stand the nuances of emotion, he had the ability to evoke these subtleties in his music. He could adapt to the musical ideas of others while maintaining his own voice and creating his own unique style. His playing, like his personality, was understated. He never sounded like you always knew when Jerry the countless guitar licks that he pulled out of a hat at any time. These were his trademarks.

the world, attack society or pro- stage. Garcia focused more on is socially acceptable, and it avoids ate unhappiness. And no matter voke anyone. He simply wanted to do his own thing. He never asked anyone to follow him or live life the way he did. For many, he represented integrity and was more interested in originality than commercialism. In fact, the Dead were known for their ability to play many different versions of the same song and for orchestrating intricate transitions from one song to the next. When they did do cover songs, it was always through the lens of their unique sound. They would give Motown a country blues feel with a smooth edge, or Rolling Stones a mellow rhythmic groove. I am not a "Deadhead." I have not traveled across the country following them on tour. I have, however, spent much time playing guitar to their CD's and bootlegs in my room. I take a lot of my stylistic influences from Garcia, and I have profound respect for him as a human being. There's something tributed a lot to his guitar style, that has been a comfort to me through

For many people who have felt alienated by mainstream role models, the Dead demonstrated an ethic of cooperation and acceptance combined with emotional which made the Dead unique. It is an interesting parallel that many different backgrounds. At the tribute to Garcia in New York's Central Park the weekend after his death, I saw everything from men in business suits to Phishheads. I would also like to add that I have never before seen Central Park as friendly as it was during he was hitting a wrong note, or the tribute. I left my guitar with a person I had just met while I went to dinner. I came back over an Garcia was playing-his style or hour later, and found him right where I left him: playing classic Dead songs on my guitar.

All of this celebration over a

"Allegory" is one of 40 color (digitized) photographs by New York photographer Ryszard Horowitz in the Drew University Photography Gallery (U.C. 104) Oct. 2-20. Horowitz's works bridge the gap between advertising and art photography. The exhibition hours are 12:30-2:00 p.m. and 7:30-10:30 p.m. M-F. On Opening Night the Gallery will open at 7:00 p.m.; at 7:30 Ryszard will present a free slide-talk, "Expanding the Imagination" in U.C. 107. For information, phone x3580 or 377-4379.

A t-shirt, jeans, a pair of sneakers and his guitar were all the gear he needed. Garcia was not a simple man, suggested even in the beard which hid his face for many years. Desensitivity and individual expres- spite the "mellow" associations unique contribution to the sound a very intense person with a need to express himself. After supporting himself since his early teenage years (something many of us are afraid of in our twenties!), he understandably had a lot to say.

than theatrics or superficial attire.

ENTERTAINMENT

It is important to note that Garcia did not achieve stellar musical talent through drugs. He put his heart and soul into his music and his life, and that is something that we can all learn

With an enormous range of emotions and an active inner life, it is easy to understand why music was a home for Garcia. While this is more accepted in the '90s, there is still a lot of pressure today to dis- people who look at his lifestyle in tance ourselves. Often it is many a negative way. Yet it seems there Garcia wasn't trying to change man who rarely spoke a word on people's first reaction, because it are some people that cannot toler-

what he could express in the music the pain of those feelings, not to mention the joy.

Maybe this is why Garcia was more gentle and understanding rather than outspoken. He had a certain compassion for people, rare in artists who often feel the world is against their vision and impose their views on others. He let his musical vision be transformed by other

Garcia also understood the interpersonal nature of life. Whatever people may say about him, he was not in his own world. He seemed to prefer the joy of bonding with others, particularly through music. For many people who have been thrown out of their homes, or suffered abuse, the Dead provided them a home—a place where people tried to be positive about the world and themselves. Finally, Garcia was a spiritual man who went through many changes in his life and was directed toward his own bliss. This seems absurd to many what pain they are experiencing. they look to something that represents joy. Garcia found his joy in music and never questioned that.

Near the end of his life, he was trying to conquer his addictions and make his home a happy place to live. In Rolling Stone magazine, his widow, Deborah Koons Garcia relates that "he had faced his demon," and died with a smile on his face. While that almost sounds too good to be true, I think he did face his demon. Even if he did not, I will always be glad for his existence. I hope this has shed a little light on the life of Garcia. Although far from perfect, he was a man with a rich inner world and a life filled with experiences most of us can only imagine. If there is anything we can learn from his death, it is to follow our hearts, whether that be in music, physics, or whichever field we may wish to pur-It is said that all eras have to end in this experience will encourage one of 115 to start a new one. Do something

Calaloo Cafe provides a colorful display for the palate college student's budget. There is a companion and I tried a standard ach and fresh basil. Bathed in a large selection of sandwiches, priced (nachos) and a more exotic dish bitter blend of romano and provoprices at this slightly "upscale" reslone cheese and mellow mozzarella,

Co-Editor in Chief Calaloo Cafe

Eat at the Calaloo Cafe this win-

John Therkelsen

Route 124, Morristown

ter and you'll feel like you should have worn bermuda shorts. The image of palm trees dominates the scene-murals of vegetation line the walls, palm-fanned chairs ensconce diners in greenery. Even the carpet reflects the riotous color of tropical foliage. Servers' luau shirts complete the impression that you are in some upscale Caribbean tikki Unfortunately, the noise level in the Calaloo Cafe indicates that too many vacationing tourists had found their way to Morristown. The restaurant was as loud as my waitress's shirt. But the noise and prominent bar, raised and enclosed in a central, lattice-work "gazebo," gave Calaloo an aura reminiscent of the "good times" Bennigans/Chilis/Fridays restaurants that have cropped up in recent years. Most of the diners at Calaloo came in pairs and small ciate more privacy for the higher variations on restaurant staples, in-

The Calaloo Cafe—it's not your standard striped-awning bistro.

andouille sausage) and Rasta Pasta each with less than 415 calories. (with "jerk" chicken breast) represent the more exotic fare.

ticing dash of equatorial spice. called "Spa Selections" features Chicken Andouille (with Louisiana dishes low in fat and cholesterol,

Available appetizers included everything from the tried-and-true Fortunately, the menu does con- mozzarella sticks to Fiery the center, bursts with a compelling which opens Friday and Saturday tain some dishes that would suit a Deep-Fried Coconut Shrimp. My from $7.95-$10.95, and the pasta called Shrimp Florentine Wontons. dishes are also reasonable The nachos were plentiful and ricluding gourmet pizza with an en- ($7.95-$8.95). A section of the menu valed those at The Other End. The shrimp dish consisted of a ened Swordfish with an orange and shrimp and spinach paste wrapped onion relish, a $13.95 daily special.

server recommended the dish, it did wonton was too oily, and the filling masked, rather than complemented the wontons' flavor.

I ordered one alcoholic drink, a Rum Swizzle that cost $3.95 for one a departure from standard portion but can be ordered for $7.95 in a small pitcher for two. The drink was weak and could have been blended better, but the fruity flavor was in keeping with the tropical decor. The staff seemed to cooperate to keep the patrons sober—the could have been more carefully prehartender made the drink too weak and the hostess urged us to "drive the Calaloo Cafe will please both save" when we left. Kudos to the the bold and cautious among culihostess and Calaloo management for discouraging drunk driving.

menu as "a staff favorite" ($13.95). combination of mushrooms, spin-

the dish was excellent. Losing the battle, I ordered Black in fried wonton skins. Although the I had planned to scrape off the unusual topping, but found the sweetnot live up to my expectations. The ness of the oranges to contrast nicely with the onions. The meat was a lacked flavor. The sweet sauce little watery and lacked the crispy coating you would expect from a "blackened" dish. Overall, the Calaloo Cafe proves striped-awning American bistros. With its tropical decor and a varied menu that truly reflects its theme, it's a sure bet for the indoor Indiana Jones or diners who dig Gilligan's Island. Although some of the dishes pared, and the jungle din dampened, nary explorers. No reservations, open seven days

We fought over who would order a week, major credit cards accepted. the Chicken Marco, described in the Call (201) 993-1100 for hours of operation. You will need reserva-A hefty breast of chicken, sliced at tions for the Calaloo Comedy Club, Kean's next open office hour will be Tuesday, Oct. 3, at 4 p.m.

Okay, so this is going to be terized our generation in a hun- a lot of time to finish my home- ricular responsibilities, I got sucked dehabilitated in a hospital bedanother meaningless rant by me, dred years. Or maybe I'm lying, work for my 1:15 seminar, which into getting my eyebrow pierced. I although he did turn out to be relaabout me, and interesting to no but you'll have to keep on reading was handy, since I hadn't done it mean, Herb was on campus, and I tively fine. But I didn't know that one but myself. And it even sort of to find out. bores me. But bear with me, this So let me tell you a little bit Frankenstein yet, everybody dies, so ... about my day. I got paid to go to and the monster is not called Fran- Anyway, after paying, it then

Forum you can say that? Of course, since up. a course hour costs far more than So in the two hours I have be- time I discovered that one of my fill." And he did, and you (if any-Brian Haskell the six bucks I got for going, I tween the end of class and my 6 close friends had collapsed in class one actually continued reading to suppose in the end I lost money. p.m. meeting, I was going to write the day before and had been taken this point, through all this garbage) But I'm gaining an education, this article, which would have in to the hospital, and visiting hours are currently reading the results of might turn into exactly the kind of which is valuable beyond words. that case have been significantly ended at 8 p.m. It was now nearly my labors. Well, maybe labors is

yet. And in case you haven't read had an eyebrow that wasn't busy, before I left. Anarchist's class this morning; how many of kenstein. Just wanted to clear that took quite a long time until Herb walk into the office, I say to John, anthropologists will say charac- shows up to be tutored, so I have applying myself to my extra-cur- very painful and I nearly passed accurate, actually. out. Not that it wasn't my own So, for those of you who were stupid idea, so I know who to blame. looking for some serious message Everyone else.

job and my friend was lying this.

So I get back to campus, hours past the deadline for this article. I was ready to skewer me, and in this "Tell me how much space I have to scathing social commentary that So then I go to work and no one different. But, instead of diligently 6. The piercing went slowly, was too strong a word. Babbling is more > in this article or for me to come to So I rush directly from the pierc- a point at some time, I am truly ing van to the hospital, and in the sorry. But I have learned from process forgot to call my boss and experience that I get a lot of negatell her that I was going to miss my tive feedback whenever I state my 6 p.m. meeting. I mean, a job is a actual opinions, so I'll stick to

Murder, mystery and adventure in 1995 season

Robert Coakley Asst. Entertainment Editor

How many ways can you rip off Friends? Well, the various networks did in about a dozen different ways. And Friends itself was a rip-off of Seinfeld!

In case you are tired of white people with no discernible source of income whining about how they can't get laid, I suggest some more sophisticated fare on the television.

Law and Order, NBC Wednesday, 10 p.m. ****

Created by New York Undercover's Dick Wolf, Law & Order is one of the most under- rect. rated but critically acclaimed dramas on TV right now. The show, now into its sixth season, shows the New York City criminal justice system from the perspective of both the cops and prosecuting attorneys.

A commonality about the show is that every season, a cast member is dropped or leaves and a new one is added on. Last year Chris Noth was dropped, surprising many long-time fans of the show. He is replaced this year by Benjamin Bratt, from the movies Demolition to homicide.

Jerry Orbach co-stars as Detecmore cynical cop who is not crazy Bochco's attention when he played about having a rookie partner.

Calvin and Hobbes

SIZES OF FIVE BRANDS OF FOUR CHOOSING PEANUT BUTTER!

CONSISTENCIES! WHO DEMANDS IS "CHUNKY" CHUNKY ENOUGH,

OR DO I NEED EXTRA CHUNKY?

and the more modern methods of capturing suspects should impress cop-show fans young and old. Unlike NYPD Blue, these detectives actually do detecting to solve homicides, instead of getting a suspect to sign a confession.

On the "order" side of the show are Sam Watterston and Jill Hennesy as Assistant D.A.s Jack McCoy and Claire Kincaid.

While the first half of the show deals with capturing suspects, the second half deals with the legal, and often moral, problems with prosecuting them. The well-written show does not shy away from subjects considered politically incor-

Murder One, ABC Tuesday, 10 p.m.

of TV Dramas was overthrown last year by the success of Michael Crighton's ER. Bochco hopes to get it back this year with the new high-profile L.A. murder trial throughout its 22 episode season.

The star of the show is Daniel

SO MUCH SELECTION AND

The friction between the charsodes of NYPD Blue. He plays a past to angst over, in this case, his Griffith Show. acters helps move the show along, high-profile L.A. lawyer named various misdemeanors charges. found dead, Hoffman must defend a well-known entrepreneur his dad's old friends. (Stanley Tucci, from the film Kiss of Death).

The innocence of the defendant Parker. Pike is a hard-as-nails incomes into question throughout the vestigator who has difficulty exseason. This should be perfect for those who wonder what to watch now that the O.J. Simpson trial is winding down.

Even though Murder One has two strikes against it with an unknown in the lead, and a time slot opposite ER, I think Murder One will be sentenced to a long run on prime time TV.

JAG, NBC Saturday, 8 p.m.

The creator of the popular series Magnum P.I. and Quantum Leap, Donald P. Bellisario, brings us another new action/adventure show, JAG. The series revolves around members of the Judge Advocate General's Corps, who serve as investigators/lawyers for crimes committed within the boundaries of the

David James Elliot, who appeared on Melrose Place last season, stars as Lt. Harmon Rabb Jr. "Harm" is a talented pilot, but is teen star Shaun Cassidy, not David tive Lenny Briscoe, an older and Benzali, an unknown who caught more suited for the duties JAG Lynch or Chris Carter. The series stars Gary Cole, who offers him. As with most Bellisario a hard nosed lawyer on a few epi-heroes, Harm has something in his

The minor problem is that Buck is evilincarnate, committing various acts television docket is shaping up to of murder and mayhem, all while be rather dramatic. It's definitely whistling the theme to the Andy one to begin tuning to.

the film Crimson Tide for the sub-

ously, with a well-placed Tom Cruise comparison. I think JAG should sat-

ward, intelligent action on TV.

American Gothic, CBS

Even though all the above shows

involve investigating murders, none of them qualify to be shut off

The only show that qualifies for with the infamous V-chip.

the scariest shows out this fall.

Friday, 10 p.m.

ously be considered heroic.

father was MIA in Vietnam. In the Even though Sheriff Buck pos-

Ted Hoffman who is tired of deseason opener, Harm is able to live sesses supernatural power, there fending spoiled movie-stars from up to his father's reputation by are good guys in Trinity: a little flying a reconnaissance mission boy (Lucas Black) whose sister When a fifteen-year-old girl is over an "undisclosed" European Buck brutally murdered, and a recountry, saving the life of one of porter (Paige Turco) who hopes to expose the little town's sinister Rabb's sidekick in the series is secrets.

Be warned—this show is scary. Lt. Kate Pike, played by Andrea Trinity makes Twin Peaks look like Mayberry! American Gothic is not for the weak of heart, and pressing her opinions in a tactful should be a good thrill for horror fans looking for something to watch JAG, while using Top Gun footafter The X-Files. age for the airplanes and sets from

A few other dramas out of marines, is a very exciting show the box aren't really worth your with a main character that can seri-

Courthouse is a pretty trashy law It also doesn't take itself too seridrama more in the vein of Models Inc. joke to stave off the Few Good Men than L.A. Law. You know a show is in trouble when an upcoming subplot isfy people looking for straight for- about a lesbian judge is the only inter-

Strange Luck is yet another attempt from Fox to find a good "weird" show to lead in The

D.B. Sweeny stars a Chance Harper, a photographer whose (you guessed it) strange luck gets him into various misadventures. What's strange is why Fox would drop the that honor is American Gothic, one of satiracal TV Nation to start this

Finally, there is John Grisham's The series that takes a new look at good vs. evil is the creation of former The Client, based on the popular novel and movie. JoBeth Williams stars as a family lawyer who hopes to get her own family back played all-American dad Mike Brady together someday. The show is in The Brady Bunch Movie, this time only mildly interesting, and havas Lucas Buck, sheriff of the sleepy ing read some Grisham novels myself, I'm not surprised.

All in all, however, the 1995

Steven Bochco's reign as King drama Murder One. The series follows a single Bochco says he came up with the Man and The River Wild. Bratt concept of this series years before plays Detective Reynaldo Curtis, a white Broncos, DNA tests and young and untried cop who is new tapes that say Mark Furhman is a by Bill Watterson little town of Trinity.

Take it off—the silver screen

Showgirls, rated NC-17

Such is the case with Showgirls.

Academy Award winner. But I

Nomi Malone, played by Elizabeth tential. Berkley of Saved By the Bell fame. Nomi hitches a ride to Vegas and movie(trustme, you had to search for loverpoured champagne overher body arrives with a majorchip on her shoul- it), was that money and fame do and proceeded to lick it off—that was

der. Three months later, she is dancing not make you happy. Nomi was so pretty good. However, the mood died in a strip club on the Vegas strip. Her caught up in the glamour and when Nomi proceeded to perform major aspiration is to be a showgirl in wealth of her job that her personal-fellatio under water. Now, as anyone the make-believe show "Goddess." ity altered. She realized she was can figure out, this is technically im-It's a classy show—challenging chovengeful and obsessive in her ambipossible. It's a medical fact that lungs reography, a half-naked cast. She tion to reach the top of stardom and fill with water when you open your gets an in at the show through her this realization prompted her to dismouth at the bottom of a pool. She roommate, who is a costume de- continue that lifestyle altogether. It's a must've had a snorkel. tions her way to the chorus line. message. her way to the top and hurts all centrated too much on shock value. going absolutely nowhere.

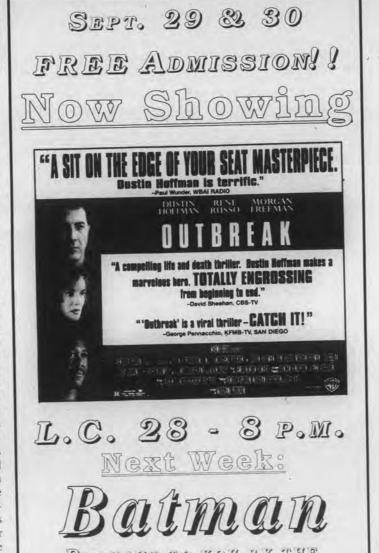

Pooh Corner no plot, and even less dialogue. in the least. The dialogue that was present was Alison Takach long at a time, generally contain- "leave your inhibitions at the door", didn't expect it to suck as much as wide display of tits and ass, but my turn on. One was a lap dance, which The so-called plot revolves around that the original premise had real popurpose. The other bit of eroticism those in her way. After this, she It was as if the director asked, decides that it's not worth it and "where is the line, and how can I she isn't happy, so she picks up cross it?" But, truthfully, there is Hype, hype, hype—that's all it and leaves. Oh, and in between only so many times you can see omes down to. The greater the there's a lot of sex and nudity someone take off their clothes behype, the larger the disappointment. thrown in as cheap attention ploys. fore it becomes boring. It's kind of It wasn't even the amount of sex like sex-after you do it a few It's not that I expected it to be an and nudity which made the movie times, you have to start being creso horrible. There was absolutely ative. This movie was not creative

> Not only that, but in a movie with usually no more than four words advertising slogans that ask you to ing no more than one syllable each. you would expect it to be even slightly What did I expect? The movie is erotic. Not so. There were only one or obviously a poor excuse for a nation- two scenes which qualified as a disappointment is due to the fact was performed well and achieved its occurred in the beginning of a scene The basic, underlying point of the which took place in the pool. Nomi's signer for the show, and she audi- good premise and an ultimately good That is just one example of the stupidity of Showgirls. The movie tries Once there, she proceeds to claw Instead of plot, the movie conto go too many places and winds up

University Program Board

(UPB)

UPB Movie Night

Rock compilation falls short

Erik Slagle

ENTERTAINMENT

The Fall of American Various Artists

and far between.

"People are gonna come break

were just very hard to sit through.

The opening track, Dan Baird's

"Younger Face," is a pretty decent slab of bluesy, Black Crowes-style rock. If you think the riffs and gravelly, whining vocals are reminiscent of '80s greats The Georgia

Satellites, you're right. A little piece of rock trivia shows Baird as the one who assembled and fronted the boys of "Keep Your Hands to Yourself' fame 10 years ago. Not a bad opening cut, and it gets the compilation off to a pretty nice album is The Freewheelers'

"Mother Nature Lady." Some

funky piano playing, a lot of cool

If you like Tag Team, you'll like bass hits like a bomb and the beat is infectious, but the lyrics leave something to be desired: "Watchin"

One of the best picks from this

Call 377-2388 Fall of American." Actually, I did for showtimes most of the reviewing. He was there to throw in his two cents and do a little dance to the good tunes. Those tunes turned out to be few

L.C. 28, 8 p.m.

Fri. - Grasshoppers - They're quickly becoming the campus house band. If you haven't gotten a chance to see them, yet,

make sure you get down to TOE

early, grab some nachos and be

Sat. - Arts & Crafts Nite - Who

said that arts and crafts had to

Sun.-Study - Ah, what the hell?

What else is there to do on a stop in kindergarden?

ready to rock.

Sunday, right?

Habitat for Humanity

in front of U.C. Friday, 12 a.m. - 8 p.m.

Habitat will also be holding a Penny Drive on Sunday to raise additional funds for the program. So, dig out that extra change from the bookstore if AMC Headquarters 10 Steal Big, Steal Little Showgirls

Big Screen

Devil In a Blue Dress

Moonlight and Vanlentino

The Brothers McMullen

Seven Unstrung Heroes Devil in a Blue Dress Usual Suspects Halloween 6 To Wong Foo, Thanks for Everything, Julie Newmar

Call (201)-292-0606 for showtimes

Desparado

9519 Sunday Picnic Oct. 1

Looking at things in a different way

Myles Helfand Asst. Entertainment Editor

Our lives are defined by awkward moments.

You will never forget the day you accidentally burped in English class, the day when you walked over to the girl you had a crush on to ask her out, but tripped over your untied shoelace and landed the day you tossed your sock across grandfather's soup (hey, I was young, leave me alone).

Actually, no, that's not quite are not simply defined by those we deal with them.

You may have burped in English class, but you said, "good book," right afterwards, and everyone laughed. You even met this girl through the ordeal who you veloped a crush on.

all you could see was-OOF-the manner.

You brushed yourself off, turning completely red in the face and stood up to find her standing one contact from afar, then look straight foot in front of you. She smiled as ahead, avoiding eye contact until you blushed even more furiously they pass by. (as if it was possible), then looked feet. Bad feet!" And the rest was chicken quesadilla. history.

Anyway, I don't know if any of you agree with me, but perhaps the eye contact dilemma.

percussion, and background gos-Because Drew is such a small pel singers mix nicely with the school, especially for its size, the singer's Joe Cocker-esque vocals. paths are pretty much devoid of This one's a keeper. Unless you're traffic for most of the day. So you my roommate, who remarked, "The may be walking down a path, on rhythm section's rockin' ass, but your way to class or dinner or he's gotta sing?" wherever you feel like going, when a person appears walking down Lindsey's "Got It Goin' On." If the path towards you. you don't, then keep moving. The

Now, you and the other person will inevitably pass by each other quite awkwardly on your face, or if you continue on your current route ... What do you do? The way the dinner table and into your you deal with this awkward moment is an action which defines the very essence of who you are.

Thus, I present Myles' Eye Conright. Let me rephrase: our lives tact Personality (ECP) test. I guarantee that you fit one of these perawkward moments, but rather how sonalities. I will now offer each of these possible methods for dealing with imminent eye-contact situations, and their obvious psycho-

ECP #1:

Immediately turn your head to Towards the end of the semes- one side and pretend to look at ter, you saw her in the supermarket something really interesting, or the and decided you wanted to ask her trees in general, until the person

ECP #2: You look at them or make eye

Analysis: You are horribly suat her, shrugged, and said, "I was perficial. If they were good lookso busy looking at you, I didn't ing, you wouldn't have looked notice my feet weren't paying at- away, and you know it. You are are also very stupid. What if that tention." You looked down. "Bad scum. I hope you choke on your kid was carrying a gun? What if he

You avoid eye contact until you one of the most frequently-occur- are just a few feet away from them, ring awkward moments I person- then shoot your eyes over to look at ally have faced here on campus is them just as they walk by, never saying a word.

The Fall of American falls short of being worth more than a quick listen.

you make me dizzy/Take me home you will be skipping quite a bit. so we can get busy/Till the break of dawn/Cuz you got it goin' on." If this line has ever worked for anyone, please let me know.

Track eight says "Saturday Nite Fever," but I doubt it's going to inspire John Travolta to pull that white suit out of his wardrobe. It's the Lordz of Brooklyn and it is flat-out cool; the best song on the disc as far as my roommate and I are concerned. It's hard-core rap, with a lyricist a la the guest vocalist on Cypress Hill's "Cock the Hammer." We did the White Boy Bounce around the suite.

Guys, if you are looking for a musical retort to Alanis Morissette's bitch session, also known as "You Oughta Know," might I recommend The Mother Hips' "Shut the Door." It's a groovy mix of rock and funk with a refrain that just can't just get any simpler: "I don't want you anymore/When you leave please shut the door."

As for the other twelve cuts, well, have your remote handy as Bounce all around the suite.

The leftovers range from the light and mellow, like Love & Rockets' "Sweet FA," to the truly bizarre (and bad), such as Long Fin Killie's "Heads of Dead Surfers." This is not to say the rest were a total waste of space. Some of them can be fun if you're in the right

Other stuff off the compilation includes Julian Cope's "Try Try Try"; The Jesus and Mary Chain's "I Hate Rock & Roll"; Stiffs Inc.'s "Chelsea"; and some generally disappointing cuts from God Lives Underwater, Medicine, Johnny Polonsky, Ruth Ruth, Supherb, and Thomas Jefferson Slave Apartments. This last group closes the album with "My Mysterious Death (Turn It Up)." The title had promise, but all I heard was a bad impersonation of Soul Asylum.

So we'll have 16 bands angry us after this. That's okay. The Lordz of Brooklyn will like us. Now if you'll excuse me. I'm going to put "The Fall of American" in, skip to track 8, and do the White Boy

BY GARRY TRUDEAU

Analysis: You are overly shy. eye contact. If you do, you smile formed, mentally ill as well), and ready sweating and the sound of Analysis: You are antisocial and You'll probably never amount to and say, "Hi." If not, you simply have a hard time being yourself your heart drowning out the clamor fear human contact. You will be anything, because you're too afraid look ahead and walk on. of your surroundings. All you could killed before you graduate by one to say something to someone until Analysis: You are logical and group. Rip off your clothes and run think of was what you would say, of the people you snubbed in this the opportunity has passed. You resourceful. You probably think naked through the U.C. Eat more are worthless. Go crawl back un- everything through before you act. school food. Transfer to another less of whether they make eye con- like you. tact with you or not.

ECP #4:

Analysis: You are very bold. You or she thought you were challeng- eye contact, i.e. walking back- then your view of yourself and ing him or her? Don't ever do that wards, swinging your backpack, the world should be much again; now go to your room.

ECP #5:

Youlet your eyes wander around tures, etc. until the person is perhaps 5 or 10 feet from you, then attempt to make (and, depending on the act you per- come a Psych major ...

der the rock from which you You probably do all of your assigned readings and get all of your homework in on time. You are also quite social, enjoy the company of You look at them and continue others and want others to like you direction. to do so until they walk by, regard- for who you are. I detest people

ECP #6:

tossing a pen up and down, sing- clearer now. ing, humming, dancing, having sex I certainly hope that, by reading

ECP #7: You bolt in the opposite

Analysis: You are me.

If you do not fit one of these personalities, please let me You do something to attract at- know, and I will categorically tention to yourself, but never make deny your existence. If you do, with small furry woodland crea- this article, I have driven at least half a dozen of you to self-hatred. Analysis: You are very vain Damn, I'm good. I think I'll be-

Bledsoe hurt

New England Patriots quar-terback Drew Bledsoe suffered a third-degree shoulder seperation two weeks ago in the game against San Francisco and will not be able to play this

Fifth-year player Scott Zolak will start in his place even though he hasn't started a game since 1992.

Head coach Bill Parcells has said that he has confidence in Zolak.

As for when Bledsoe will be ready to return, no one knows for sure. "Will he be able to play next week? I don't know the answer to that." Parcells

Boston Garden

The Boston Bruins and a sell out crowd were winners Tuesday night in the final sporting event ever at the legendary Boston Garden. [first-year students]."

The Bruins and the Boston Celtics will be moving into the new $160 million Fleet Center this season.

The Boston Garden is sched uled to be torn down later thi

Wild, wild cards

The New York Yankees are atop the American League wildcard race with the second place California Angles behind by a game-and-a-half.

In the National League, Colorado leads Houston by a game The season ends this weekend with any necessary one-game playoffs to be played Monday

Mathematically, California could still catch Seattle in the divisional race, since they trail by two games. The Angels were up by as much as 12-and-a-half games earlier in the season.

Colorado and Los Angeles are competing in the only real divisional race, with the Dodgers holding a half-game lead over the Rockies. L.A. has the day off, though, and with a win today the Rockies could tie the Dodgers.

AP top ten

Here are the top ten college ootball teams from NCAA Di vision I schools:

- 1. Florida State (42)
- 2. Nebraska (18)
- 3. Florida (2) 4. Colorado
- 5. Southern California
- 6. Penn State
- 7. Ohio State 8. Michigan
- 9. Texas A&M 10. Oklahoma

Numbers in parentheses in licate the number of first-place

Price is right

Mark Price, a four-time allstar, was traded this week to the Washington Bullets for a firstround draft pick in 1996.

Price will join Chris Webber, Juwan Howard and Rasheed Wallace as the Bullets have suddenly turned themselves into contenders.

Sports info is found on the Net at www.starwave.com

SportsFax Men's soccer continues streak

Jeanine Columbo

23rd in the nation. Ranked 18th improve their record to an impres- nals. sive 8-0 with a win over Messiah.

With both teams playing strong defensively, the score remained tied at zero at the end of regulation a corner kick with an assist from play. The teams went on to play senior Brian Keane. However, a two 15 minute overtime periods. Neither team was able to find the half allowed Kings an opportunity net in overtime, and the final score to tie the score with 38 seconds

Coach Lenny Armuth was has the ability to play a lot better. ers were headed for overtime. He thinks of the game as a "learning experience," because "with players missing, during most of the game there were only three seniors on the field and the rest of the players were sophomores and

The most noticeable absence on the field for the Rangers was that of senior co-captain Pete Pappalardo. He was not eligible to play in the game because of a red card he received during the team's prior game against improvement the team showed Fairleigh Dickinson University-

Armuth admitted that "it hurt [during the game] not having the leadership and experience in the mid-field that Pappalardo brings one played well; he is just a hard with a strong history of going to Armuth said.

Pappalardo returned to the Rangers, now ranked 17th in the nation, Last weekend, the men's soccer in time to play against Kings team faced one of their toughest Point-United States Merchant Maopponents of the season when they rine Academy Wednesday night. hosted Messiah College, ranked The Rangers last played Kings Point on their way to last year's nationally, the Rangers hoped to East Coast Athletic Conference fi-

With just over 10 minutes remaining in the first half, sophomore Darian Wilson scored off of defensive breakdown later in the remaining in the period.

Neither side was able to score "pleased with the team's perfor- during the second half, so for the mance," though he said the team second consecutive game the Rang-

The Rangers came out strong during the first period of overtime, wearing down the Kings defense. With only eight seconds remaining in the period, first-year student Marvin Lopez gave the Rangers the 2-1 lead. Keane got credited with the assist

The Ranger defense maintained the lead through the second period of overtime, and the team held on for a 2-1 victory.

Armuth was pleased with the from their game with Messiah. "They kept possession of the ball through most of the game, which was a problem in the game with Messiah," he said.

The Rangers travel next to face on their shots to get more accuto the team." Sophomore defender the University of Scranton, which racy to try to force the opposi-Eric Aaronian added that "every- Armuth describes as a "good team tion keeper to make saves," why we shouldn't win every

Marvin Lopez works at keeping the ball away from his defender.

NCAA tournament play."

In preparation for its upcoming game, the team is "working

The Rangers exhibit the confidence that comes from an 8-

"As long we come out to play every game there is no reason game," Aaronian said.

Erik

Derek

Hwang

Week 5 NFL picks: 'Giants won't win again'

first game of the year (don't get used to it), and Juliette picked not only one, but two games right. It was a hell of a week.

At any rate, the race for first and last place tightened with last week's picks. Here are the up-to-theminute standings. There is a fourway tie for first place. Ryan, Derek, Hwang and April are all at .500 with a record of 6-6. Juliette no longer owns the basement, but shares it with Erik. Both of them are at 4-8.

This week our first pick is New Orleans at home versus Philadelphia. New Orleans is favored by a Pittsburgh is giving San Diego well as a wet paper towel. Unfortu- out. Take Pittsburgh. 0-5. I am taking Philadelphia.

big way Monday night by Detroit. down. I hate to go with big spreads, but Here are this week's picks: San Fran hasn't lost two in a row since the discovery of fire. I'm going with San Francisco. It's going to be a long, long week for Giants fans.

Last week the Giants won their point. As much as I am a Saints fan, one-half of a point. Pittsburgh is their defense holds up about as beat-up, but I think they'll pull it nately, I see the Saints dropping to The Monday Night game features Cleveland and Buffalo. The Giants apparently gained a Cleveland is a seven and one-half lot of respect by beating New Or- point favorite. Cleveland crushed leans, since they are 14 and one- the Chiefs and seems to have things half point underdogs to San Frangoing its way. Take the Browns. cisco. San Francisco got upset in a even if they are giving a touch-

New Orleans -1 Philadelphia Juliette Hwang

April Derek

Hwang

Cleveland -7 1/2 Buffalo Juliette Ryan April Hwang Erik Derek

Pittsburgh -1/2 San Diego

Well, there you have it, this week's words of wisdom.

Running up scores and other bad things done latest news, I made some poor de- in essence making her position a column last week. cisions. I resorted to irresponsible full-time position journalism in a effort to make a At the end of October, she will While I am apologizing, I would

The facts about the cross country team in the first portion of my column turned out to be misinformation. Instead of researching the issue further, I jumped the gun in issue to apologize to Coach undermine her ability as a coach. I Keenan, the cross-country team and wish Keenan the best of luck in her the athletic department for making decision to go into real-estate law

Coach Keenan in fact was never the cross-country coach. but rather a part-time coach and anyone else affected by the What does this prove? Abso-days.

resign as business manager, but also like to report another correcwill retain all of the responsibilition. In last week's Ranger of the Getting sacked ties that were hers as cross country Week, Erin Hopwood was

Ryan J. Fraytic sity and the athletic department Sports Editor should consider hiring a full-time and I apologize for it. cross country coach. I think it would benefit the team now and in the here at Drew.

able improvements to the cross Football is the only college sport country team during her short ten- where teams are encouraged to run I am taking this space in this ture here, and I did not want to up the score in order to improve

a full-time cross-country coach, I apologize to Coach Keenan nents.

Last week, in an effort to get the also a part-time business manager, misinformation reported in my lutely nothing. Once the game is in inadvertantly listed as a first-year However, I do feel the Univer- student when in fact she is a senior. It was just a bad week overall,

Recently in college football a future and would elevate the sport new debate has started over whether or not teams should run up Coach Keenan has made remark- scores on much weaker opponents.

> their rankings. This just should not be. Two weeks ago the number one 77 points against inferior oppohand, coaches should play the second and third- stringers and give them experience.

When the coaches and sportswriters vote on team rankings each week, they should take into consideration the fact that Nebraska did not beat The Sacred Mother of Mary School for the Blind and Infirmed College by 100 points because they played their 46thstringers 15 minutes into the game and only won by 50.

Likewise, a team should not be looked upon favorably for running the score up and should not be rewarded for playing significantly

Getting the snot kicked out of you is no fun. It takes class for a coach to not run up the score, and and also her continued success as and number two teams each scored no team should be penalized for classy actions. They seem to be far and few between in sports these

X-country excels, men finish second

April Adams Assistant Sports Editor

The cross country team had another spectacular performance last Saturday, posting encourag-Saturday when they traveled to ing race times. Cedar Crest College for the Muhlenberg Invitational last Sat- ert Davis led the pack with a time placed second and fourth, respec- Chris Blewett at 28:01. Also fintively, with good times made by ishing in the top ten for the Rang- working hard to prepare for the

According to first-year student overall with a time of 28:43. Brad Sells, "As a team, we did team sport. "When you can see senior Juliette Gaffney said. junior Jay Zampini said.

Adding to Zampini's sentiments 20:39.

was Sells. "Within a couple of as a team," he said.

The team exhibited this quality overall.

For the men, sophomore Robof 27:48. Coming in second for ers was Sells, who came in sixth meet.

The women did not fare as well the opportunity to bond more, everyone's times improved since gether," he said. making cross country more of a we ran [the course] last year," weeks we'll all fall into our niches year student Alice Chu who ran gible to place as a team at four women. They will race for the course in 21:41 to place 13th

Holmdel for the New Jersey State Championships. For the men, Zampini returns after sitting out last week with shin splints. This The men's and women's teams Drew and third overall was senior week's practices have been particularly difficult, with everyone

"This is going to be one of the toughest courses yet," at the Invitational; they came in Zampini said. He remains con-After a few weeks of meets, fourth out of six teams. Still, the fident, however. "This is a meet team members said they have had team remains optimistic. "Almost where we'll pull it all to-

Coach Kimberly Keenan sees the meet as a good learning expethe other guys on the team, you Senior co-captain Lauren rience for the team. "It's a good have an incentive to catch up," Marasia came in first for the Rang- opportunity for Drew to see what ers and third overall with a time of other courses there are in New

Following Marasia was first- The women will not be eli- reduced today's roster to just today's meet. A minimum of individual places and times. Today the Rangers travel to team to compete, but injuries Invitational on Saturday, Oct. 7 at and scheduling conflicts have the Morris County Arboretum.

five runners is required for a The next meet will be the Drew

Cross country results

Men		Women	7
Robert Davis	27:48	Lauren Marasia	20:39
Chris Blewett	28:01	Alice Chu	21:43
Brad Sells	28:43	Juliette Gaffney	23:46
Erik Wolf	30:17	Lora Tuit	24:53
Jim Robbins	30:52	Kate Cyr	26:58
Amitau Sen	31:14	Bevin Kelly	29:33

Women's soccer improves to .500 with 2-0 week Hemmer. Delaware Valley "At the beginning of the sea- ally bad. It just showed a com- don't always have to rely on

Staff Writer

Following their triumphant victory over Haverford College game ended with Drew taking really tough teams," Eberhardt last week, the women's soccer home the win, 4-2. team went on to defeat both

Delaware Valley College and Mt. Saint Mary's College at home this week. This brings their season record up to 5-5. The Rangers got a strong start in the game against Delaware Valley. Senior Marsha Garcia gave the team an early lead, first half.

Junior Alyson Eberhardt The first half passed with neither soon followed, scoring off of a team scoring a goal. corner kick assisted by first-year student Christy Jo was scored at 33:38 in the secleft in the first half, Geraci Meredith Doll, assisted by scored another goal after a cor- sophomore Alissa Drasch. At ner kick, giving the Rangers a the end of regulation, the Rang-

Delaware Valley attempted Having won their last 3 gether." regulation time, first-year stu- Their participation in the dent Cara Ann McNeely scored Getty sburg tournament two up until the end." her first goal of the season, weeks ago was a tremendous assisted by sophomore Heather hurdle for the season.

scored once more with only 7 son, we were pretty prepared plete lack of concentration on [Doll] to get it in there for us." seconds remaining, but they and we were playing good soc- our part to give up a goal with were unable to recover. The cer, but we were playing some only seven seconds left." The Rangers continued this win-

The Acorn sports section is currently seeking writers. If you enjoy going to games

and are interested in writing, contact Ryan at x4846.

son. We saw that we could "The turning point of the season was the tournament, Geraci agreed.

"We were playing really said.

well, and we almost tied Stockton [State scoring her first goal of the seaSieve Garza
First-year student Nicole Klusewicz struggles to gain control of the ball.

College]. We were so exson less than five minutes into the ning streak on Monday when they cited, we felt like we'd won. We faced Mt. Saint Mary's College. decided to start over from there." Geraci said this week's games were "some of the best The only goal of the game soccer we've played for a whole game. Sometimes we Geraci. With only 42 seconds ond half by senior co-captain play well in spurts, but we were very consistent in these games. We were a lot more hungry for goals, and we seem to be geters had held the lead 1-0. ting more used to playing to-a comeback in the second half, games after a 4-game losing Eberhardt pointed to scoring late in the period. Then, streak, the women have man-McNeely's last-minute goal as with only 31 seconds left in aged to turn their streak around. "extremely important, because ware Valley's final goal as "re-

the game Saturday, with Doll "After the tournament, we were unable to play due to bronchikind of treating tis.

Men finished 2 of 5

"[Doll's inability to play] certainly affected us," Eberhardt said. "She's a strong force, always gives her all, and helps motivate the entire team. in the game. It showed that we

Women finished 4 of 6

"I think it definitely affected us," Geraci added. "But I also The team suffered a loss in think it showed that we have enough depth to find somebody even when she's not there."

This week, the Rangers will travel to Dickinson College and King's College.

"We just need to play good soccer. Dickinson should be the tougher game, but I think we But I think it was good because should come out with the win if nitely picked other people really stepped up we play our hardest," Eberhardt

Get carded and save.

Come to any Timberland® store from now until May 31, 1996 and show us your student ID. We'll not only let you in, we'll give you 15% off the price of everything in the place-boots and shoes, clothing and accessories.

> The Timberland store nearest you: Mall at Short Hills, 201-379-3993

Field hockey tallies two wins for week

Jamie Hayman Staff Writer

After having their winning streak snapped at six with a 2-0 loss to Trenton State College last week, the Ranger field hockey team returned to their winning ways this week posting back-to-back shutouts over Delaware Valley College and King's College.

Saturday, the team hosted Delaware Valley on the turf. The Rangers came out strong, putting the heat on their opponents from the beginning with nine shots on goal in the first half. However, Delaware Valley held tough and went into halftime with the score knotted at zero.

The game remained scoreless for the first eighteen minutes of the second half. With 27:10 remaining in the game, first-year student Monica Bradley took a pass from senior Alison Goeke to score her third goal of the season and give the Rangers a 1-0 lead.

Fifteen minutes later, junior Chandy Lynch added an insurance goal on a pass from Bradley. The goal was her sixth of the year. Sophomore goalie Andrea Kuzma turned away eleven shots for the shutout.

With the Rangers back to their winning ways, the team hosted King's College on the turf last night. The team's record stood at 7-1 going into the game, reflecting contributions and effort from many different players.

Drew came out firing with 24 first half shots. Fourteen minutes into the game Drew struck first blood. Sophomore Megan Anderson, who going into this game had one career point, scored the the first goal of her college career and gave the Rangers a 1-0 lead.

The team kept pouring it on in the second half. Twenty-two Scranton University.

minutes into the second half Anderson scored the her second goal of the game, giving the team a two goal cushion. With 7:46 remaining first-year student Andrea Hanley, who had yet to score a point in her Drew tenure, scored her first career goal to boost the lead to three. Thirty seconds later Lynch added her seventh goal of the season to make the final score 4-0. Kuzma stopped seventeen shots throughout the game for the shutout.

At the halfway point of the season the team's record stands at an impressive 8-1. While last night's game showed they are getting contributions from everyone, the team has been led by Goeke and Lynch. Each has scored seven goals this season. Goeke leads the team with sixteen points while Lynch is right behind with fifteen. Bradley has added seven points, while Anderson and first-year Kate Coghlan have five and four points respectively.

However, one of the strongest members of the team does not score goals, but stops them. Kuzma posted her sixth and seventh shutouts of the year this week, stopping a combined 28 shots in the two games. She has allowed four goals in 615 minutes of play this year. Her save percentage is well over 94 percent and her goals-against average is under a half a goal per game.

The most important aspect of this week's two wins is that they were the first two games of the league schedule. With their Mid Atlantic Conference record now standing at 2-0 they can optimistically look forward to the tough second half of the

The team plays next Monday at Montclair State. The next home game Saturday Oct. 7 at noon for a league game against Sophomore Megan Anderson exibits fierce, aggressive spirit as she competes for the ball inside the circle.

Women's tennis falters in first MAC game of season

Juliette Gaffney Co-Editor in Chief

The women Rangers were looking to turn around their .500 record in tennis around when they faced their first Middle Atlantic Conference opponent of the year, King's College.

King's came to Drew on Wednesday to face the team and battled them from the first serve to the end of the final match. Drew wanted to begin the conference play this season with a win, but it was not meant to be.

"King's and [University of] Scranton are our two big rivals," senior Caryn Crothwait said. "That is what made this such a heartbreaker.'

Top-seeded Crothwait gave the Rangers their first win of the day. In her first set it took a 7-5 tie breaker for her to top her opponent, but in the second set, it only took a score of 6-4 for Crothwait to knock off King's and give Drew its first mark in the win column.

Next up was second-seed first-year student Mindy Remeo who battered her King's foe in straight sets by a score of 6-2, 6-0.

final seed, junior Miran Yoon, that Drew saw the next win.

In the only three-set singles match of the day, Yoon recovered from a 5-7 first set deficit to trounce her rival 6-2, 6-4. With Yoon's win, the Rangers were tied with King's at three wins a piece. It was still anyone's game, and would have to be decided by the doubles matches.

The first game went to King's (6-4, 6-0), downing the Drew top doubles team of senior captain Michelle Moyer and Yoon.

The second seeded doubles team of Crothwait and Remeo topped King's in straight sets (6-2, 6-2). Once again, the score was tied, four wins for Drew, four wins for King's.

The last match pitted junior Erin Kragh and first-year student Santhi Yarlagadda, ranked fourth and fifth, respectively, against the third seeded King's doubles team.

Drew took the first set 6-2. King's was down, but they were not out, turning the second set around to win it 6-2. They then went on to take the third set, winning the tie breaker 7-1.

The final score for the day, record of 2-3.

Drew's Tuesday match against Albright College was postponed due to rain. It is yet to be determined whether this game will be played.

"The losses towards the beinning were not so hard to quer Cedar Crest College to-

It was not until the sixth and 5-4, left Drew with an overall take because they were not MAC," Crothwait said, "but now we are more focused."

In the next week, the Rangers will play four competitions, including Mid Atlantic Conference opponent Sranton.

The team prepares to con-

The other two home games this week will take place Monday against Caldwell College and Wednesday against Sranton. Thursday, the team travels down the road to St. Elizabeth for their fourth game in a marathon week.

Upcoming Ranger home games

Saturday, Sept. 30

Women's tennis vs. Cedar Crest @ 1 p.m. Women's Ultimate Frisbee tournament

Sunday, Oct. 1

Men's Ultimate Frisbee tournament

Monday, Oct. 2

Women's tennis vs. Caldwell @ 4 p.m.

Wednesday, Oct. 4

Women's tennis vs. Scranton@4 p.m.