

THE ACRON

the student newspaper nine out of ten professional bowlers prefer

LIKE ANYONE CARES WHAT ISSUE THIS IS

FESTERING IN THE DEEP, DARK PITS OF HELL

WE DON'T BELIEVE IN TIME

Gatemaster: 'Bow to me!'

Spam-head
Man in the Can

Students abandoned classes yesterday after Public Safety began towing nearly every car from campus. Director of Public Safety Tom Evans issued a warning over e-mail. "THIS IS THE MASTER OF THE GATES," the message read. "I AM NOW MASTER OF YOUR DESTINY."

This came on the heels of a new SGA parking policy which approved the removal of all unregistered cars on campus between 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. The policy worked without incident until yesterday, when Acron staff members witnessed the towing of several cars with valid registration stickers. No reason has been given for the actions, although an anonymous voice mail message warned The Acron that Evans had "gone granola."

Public Safety officers began towing cars from the Hoyt lot at 6 a.m. Within two hours, concerned students gathered and began asking the officers what violations were committed. The situation turned ugly when an officer brandished her walkie-talkie menacingly. Students formed a human barricade to defend three cars parked in the fire zone.

SGA President senior Matt Pacello convened an emergency Senate meeting last night to examine the most equitable solution to the delicate situation. After debating until 3 a.m., the Senate voted to confer on Pacello the title of "Despot for a Day."

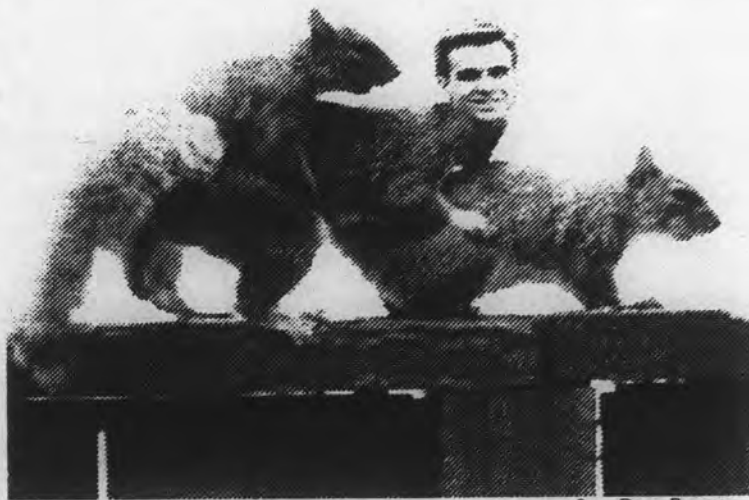

He promptly fired half the University faculty and staff, including former Dean of Student Life Denise Alleyne and Qasi, the former daka employee. "I never liked that guy," Pacello said, "he smiled too much." Former University President Tom Kean was allowed to remain on staff, although he was appointed "Vice President in Charge of Assisting the Despot."

"This is unconscionable," said senior John Siminizer, citing the recent rise in Snapple prices as another abuse of power. "This fiasco would be over if I was bearing my constitutionally-protected semi-automatic weapon—but I lent it to my girlfriend."

The conflict continued into late Thursday afternoon, when College of Liberal Arts students launched an offensive on the Brothers College administrative offices. Dean of the College of Liberal Arts Paolo Cucchi and Associate Dean of the College Barbara Salmore held the invaders at bay, hiding behind squadrons of sacrificial Graduate School students.

At press time, the campus remained quiet, but figures dashed in and out of the shadows, preparing for the next day's events. Public Safety squad cars raced over the paths on campus while Officer Gary Williams took the "undercover" jeep four-wheeling through the Rodney Frelinghuysen Arboretum.

SGA President-elect Pat Aylward is caught between a rock and a hard place following the revelation that he ... Well, see inside for details.

Kean abandons ship

Flow-Bee

Executive hair-sucker

In a series of stunning developments this week, University President Tom Kean retired and Republican presidential candidate Pat Buchanan was immediately appointed to take his place. At a news conference Tuesday, a tearful Kean said that, after six years on the job, the constant ass-kissing he has endured became too great. "I just didn't feel I could handle the stress anymore," he said.

Kean is rumored to be interested in several new careers, including the surprising revelation that he auditioned to be on the Fox drama Melrose Place. "The Governor was always interested in acting," said a high level Drew official, speaking on condition of anonymity. "Plus, his close ties with Andrew Shue make him a shoo-in, so to speak."

Buchanan was quick to act. "I miss the days when women could cook and men were free to hunt with assault weapons," he said. Buchanan immediately abolished the women's studies department and re-instituted mandatory home economics classes for all female students.

Although Buchanan declined comment on another rumor about a uniform change for Public Safety, a high-ranking Klansman, er ... staff member said, "The white sheets were only one possibility that was tossed around." In order to combat the increasing number of thefts on campus, Buchanan has suggested giving each incoming first-year student an AK-47 machine gun as part of his or her tuition. The Computer Aide Station responded enthusiastically to this idea. "We can't fix anyone's computer on campus anyway, so guns might be something we can handle," one staff member said. Daka also responded with gusto. "Now we don't even have to leave the building to kill the squirrels," an official said.

The Acron also learned through sheer coincidence that the Confederate flag will now fly in front of Mead Hall. "The Confederate flag symbolizes courage in the face of overwhelming odds, much like the courage Drew graduates must display in the job market," Buchanan said.

Student leaders were hesitant to respond to the change in University presidents. Outgoing SGA President Matt "The Chimney" Pacello only said, "I am the Great Cornholio. I need TP for my bunghole!" He then went to the Commons Concourse for a quick drag, starting a fire that caused the whole damned place to burn down. In a totally irrelevant survey, we learned that 90 percent of theatre majors were incapable of using the new cereal dispensers in the Commons.

Perhaps the most common reaction on campus to the presidential change, however, was, "I pay $27,000 a year, and I can't even get a decent parking space. Everything here sucks, including your piece-of-crap paper. Why did I even go here in the first place?"

Thieves pilfer Chief's pants

Ralph

The New Snapple Cocktail

The 1995-96 school year has seen a record rise in crime on campus. The nature of these crimes range from narcotics possession and sale (Health Services), to theft (Business Office and Computer Repair), to vandalism (whoever picked out the new carpeting and curtains in the University Center), to Deputy Chief of Staff to the President Jeff Cromarty's ties (Ed note: the case has since been dismissed on account of infectious insanity upon review of University President Tom Kean's own wardrobe). Yet despite the recent surge in crime, the Director of Public Safety formerly known as Tom Evans still calls Drew "one of the safest campuses you'll find anywhere."

A source close to the Chief reported that the rash of computer thefts over Spring Break has pushed the Chief over the edge into a state of delusional grandeur even greater than the one he's normally in. When asked to comment on these allegations during a recent interview with The Acron, the Master of the Gates replied, "I'm the commander of this ship!" He then muttered something under his breath about wanting to "get out of this God-forsaken submarine so I can strangle the Commie bastards with my own bare hands."

Evans seemed a bit frazzled throughout the interview and often stopped to rummage frantically through his office for things he "must have misplaced," including a Montblanc pen, several credit cards, a blow-up Margaret Thatcher doll, a campus phone, a laptop computer and his favorite bong. In an unrelated incident, representatives of the International Church of Christ have recently been vending these same items in residence halls, this time with the required permission of Dean of Student Life Denise Alleyne and Manager of Residential Programs Andrew Steiner.

As Evans sifted through his office it was pointed out to him that, from the waist down, he sported only "Kiss Me, I'm Irish" boxer shorts, black socks and shoes and a lacy red garter belt. "Yes," he replied uncomfortably, "we believe the pants may have been ... pilfered. But we're not prepared to offer an official comment at this time."

Madison Police was contacted regarding Evans' drafty buttocks. The officer interviewed only said that officers were "looking into it."

The question then posed was how the Drew campus can feel safe when these scoundrels can pilfer the pants off a pompous police protector. "Actually," Evans said, "the pants were pilfered from [Director of Student Activities and the U.C.] Kim Sweeney's office."

Following a song and dance routine in which Evans did the hokey-pokey and turned himself around, he turned to Drew's Riot Squad as proof that Public Safety can still run this campus effectively. He specifically cited the Theological students' march on Mead Hall in December 1994. Public Safety, adorned in full riot gear and armed with fire hoses, quelled this uprising, during which students assaulted a member of the administration with shouts of "다 는 항 모라. 피기는 개야. 원자" and "여기 두" and signs which read "흔든 드니."

Evans did, however, decline comment when asked about the new ball-point pen legislation. The new law, commonly known as the Bic Bill, will place heavy restrictions on obtaining black and blue ink ball point pens and require a mandatory 10-day waiting period while a background search is performed. Many members of the Drew community are concerned that such legislation may affect Public Safety's ability to break up parties and issue the proper amount of parking tickets. Evans would only say that he will see to it that his staff is properly trained in the use of other-color inks and possibly even felt-tips if the need for such drastic action ever arises.

I AM THE WALRUS

Evans assures Drew campus that all is well in the crime department.

SPREAD TO SEE ...

We've made enough of a mess already.

Figure out the page yourselves for once.

Satan takes over entertainment.

Page X, where  $X^2 + 2X + c = \sqrt{\text{Matt Pacello's head}}$

He's got big balls, she's got big balls.

And they're everywhere. You can't get away.

LEAD EDDIE

At one with nature

People constantly ask The Acron staff one question: why are there no letters to the editor lately? Well, other than the fact that the Hairy, Crazy Italian, III, has not written for us much, there is an important reason for the lack of letters. The reason is simple: Frūzen, the nectar of the gods.

Oh, God, that tasty sweetness, that subtle blend of solid and liquid. Is it ice? Is it water? Hey, damned if I know!

Once Frūzen was introduced to our unworthy campus, all problems were fixed, all wrongs were set right. People of Drew, we have nothing left to fear; Frūzen will make it all better. Just sit back and enjoy the tangy goodness that is Paradise itself, served to the people in a translucent grail of bliss.

After the introduction of this hedonist's draft, all that was bad was rendered good. Trees grew abundantly in a pollution-free climate, computers all had color screens and The Muppets returned to prime time. My friends, we are in the dawn of a new Golden Age; we are at harmony with the Tao and we have but Frūzen to thank. For the yin of the lemon, there is the yang of the cherry.

Which brings us to a point of sadness. The Acron staff was very upset to hear of the terrible news. Unless you have spent the last few weeks lying unconscious in a sewage ditch, you know what has happened. Frūzenism has split into two factions: one proclaiming the superiority of cherry Frūzen, the other heralding the graces of lemon.

My friends, we must not let Frūzen tear us apart. It is a gift from the heavens meant to bring humanity together. Please, let us not argue over which is the greater flavor; let each person enjoy Frūzen in his or her own way. Frūzen has no prejudices, why should we?

For the three men in Hoyt who nearly beat a man to death for drinking a cherry Frūzen, we say: let your biases go. We know your section of campus is a predominantly lemon region. However, you must let the cherry-lovers be. For the unidentified assailant in Welch who shot a student who went both ways with a lemon and cherry mix, we say: everyone, including the so-called bi-drinkers, has his or her rights. Let us live in peace, not war.

The Acron has heard the rumors that a cherry faction has planned to put a bomb in the lemon dispenser at the Snack Bar. We plead that the group be the first to call a cease-fire. It is time for the campus to heal. Think of the innocents who will be hurt; think of the non-Frūzen drinkers waiting in line with their Snapples who will be slaughtered when the bomb goes off. Think of the young children of the graduate students who will have their lives so viciously taken from them.

If we continue the violence, then we continue to defy the teachings of Frūzen. These attacks are not only tragic, not only illegal, but blasphemous as well. Let the Frūzen flow from the fountain taps, but let not the blood flow from the body of another Drew student.

The Acron

Frankly, we don't want you to know where we live

Grand Masters

Gnu Lover Chimney

Screws

Lazy Shit Theatre Major Lazier Shit The Eternal One

EnterSATANment

Cherubim The Snuggles Bear Serafin Happy Fluffy Bunny Boy Hellspawn John Lovitz

Developer Guzzlers

Supplier Rand McNally Assistant I'm Ringo, and I Play the Drums

The True Powers

Build Alters To The Farmer's Daughter Mickey-D, or so the Germans Would Have us Believe

Executive Spam-head

Man in the Can Johnny T

The Best Little Whore-House On Campus

S&M Master Dammit! Whipping Posts Body Piercer Brooklyn Brawler

Section 'O Balls

Head Spanker The One with Big Balls Assistant Wacker The Little Dribbler

Knife-wielding Maniac

He's No Copy Cat Ted Bundy (HE LIVES! AH!!!!!!)

Mafiosos

Cement Shoe-Makers Mugy Lefty Bruno

The Acron has no idea why you would be reading such tiny print. The above editorial was barely made coherent by an editor who was only mildly more sober than the lush who wrote it. (No, it wasn't Ryan.) All by-lined editorials, letters to the Editor and editorial cartoons represent solely the opinions of a Buddhist hermit who lives high on a mountain in the Tibetan Himalayas. Hey, if you can find him, go ahead and tell him what you thought about the issue.

Letters Policy

Letters to the Editor should be in the form of a consonant or vowel, but not both. This excludes the letter "y." I mean, is it a consonant? Is it a vowel? Why the hell doesn't the damn thing just make up its mind? Letters should be received before we simply stop giving two shits what you have to say. Please include a hard copy, a flaccid copy and a disk copy saved in WordPerfect 5.1 format because any version more recent and our computers will absolutely lose it. I'm not kidding.

Under extreme circumstances, The Acron will print letters anonymously, but, for legal reasons, the Co-Editors in Chief must retain the right to laugh at you.

Letters should be delivered to The Acron mailbox in the University Center where you must first pass a series of time-delayed traps and Katrina on a bad day. Then Kim Sweeney, flanked by three members of Medfest, will challenge you to a duel with bladed quarter staffs. Man, if you think this is a staged fight, you're in for a world a hurting.

There's a lot of stuff out there to help illiterate people get by (traffic signs, pedestrian crosswalks, etc.) To be fair, however, The Acron has decided to print this week's political cartoon exclusively for you literate ones among our readers. So, here it is:

OK, there's this goofy drawing of Bob Dole dressed all in black and a Republican elephant lying in bed wearing polka-dot pajamas. Dole is standing at the bedside of the elephant whose head is spinning around and around. Using religious hand gesutres, Dole is trying to exorcise the possessed elephant who keeps screaming praises for Pat Buchanan.

Funny stuff, huh?

ALPHABET SOUP

First-year takes a stand on Drew's unfair desiccation policy

To the Editor:

There is a great injustice that exists in this world which I feel must be brought to the attention of the non-specific Drew community. I feel that this atrocity must be put to an end. The issue I am talking about is this anomaly of justice: the estrogen-challenged members of our community are given the right to relieve their non-solid, digestively incapable material while in a gravitationally resistant position. Meanwhile, the testosterone-challenged members of our community must continue to relieve their non-solid material in a squat-sensitive manner. This is absolutely appalling in a community that claims to embrace equality among the various factions of the homo sapienly inclined.

I feel that the non-gender-specific figure of justice would weep if he/she heard of this travesty. In my population-based designation for a district, both the estrogen- and testosterone-challenged members of the community are welcome to relieve their non-solid, digestively incapable material in a gravitationally resistant position. While this has certainly caused some minor problems with textile moisture development, as well as an olfactorally alternative scent, these are but small inconveniences to pay for the costs of justice.

P. Correct

First-year unemployed learner

Walkie-talkie control legislation unfair and unconstitutional

To the Editor:

Congress has passed a new law which many people are unaware of, but which nonetheless delivers a tragic blow to the constitutional rights of many citizens, and creates a security problem here at Drew. The new law is the Walkie-Talkie Control Act.

This legislation highly restricts the number of walkie-talkies that will be sold on American soil. Not only will there be a seven-day waiting period to perform background checks on the customer, but there is also a provision that could potentially limit the number of walkie-talkies that an organization, such as Drew, can purchase. Basically, what this means is that some of the Public Safety officers might not have this valuable crime prevention tool by their sides. Those without walkie-talkies will be totally cut off from dispatch. Parties may go unreported. People will park anywhere they want. It will be total anarchy.

The Constitution gives every citizen the right to feign protection for a group of people. Furthermore, this law does nothing but leave the innocent unprotected. If criminals want walkie-talkies, they're going to get walkie-talkies. Then the law-abiding citizen is left unprotected.

The answer is not to ban walkie-talkies. The solution lies with training. After all, walkie-talkies don't kill people. The electronic radio signal that bombards your brain causing a malignant tumor—now that kills people. Meanwhile, it is the students who suffer.

So, the next time a car is parked illegally for days at a time, or a loud party rages on until three in the morning, remember, we have only the federal government to thank.

Sgt. Gary Williams

Public Safety Officer

Oh please, we barely care about headlines when it's a real issue

To the Editor:

It has been recently brought to my attention that my position with the University President and even my job have been put in jeopardy. It is of utmost importance that I make sure he is in total comfort. He is, after all, a man who pays careful attention to detail. His Corn Flakes must always be crispy in the morning, and the Papa Smurf doll on his desk must always face away from the window so as not to blind "the precious little eyes of my little blue man," in the words of the President himself.

Such tasks require nothing but the greatest of dedication and, more importantly, concentration. However, I have noticed that, as of late, another person is spending more and more time in or near the President's office. This has proved to be a great distraction to me. Thus, I must humbly ask that the editor of The Acron please remove his nose from the ass of our University President, as there does not appear to be enough room for the both of us. I hope that this does not cause any animosity between my office and The Acron, for I feel that we have enjoyed a congenial relationship in the past. Thank you.

Smithers

Right-hand man to the President himself

SGA agenda for the next meeting:

- I) Call to order/roll call.
- II) Technology Committee presents its findings on Drew's cable channels.
- III) Approval of the new members of several committees with vacant positions.
- IV) Pat Aylward abolishes the SGA and declares himself supreme ruler of the College of Liberal Arts.
- V) New/old business.
- VI) Announcements.
- VII) Adjournment.

Departing president's last words

As the departing SGA President, I would like to take this time to thank the students of Drew University for providing me the opportunity to be the liaison between the administration and the student body. It is with a melancholy sigh that I leave the University at the end of the semester. However, my conscience is not clear.

There has been something that has been troubling me for some time now, and I feel that I must confess it. Ladies and gentlemen of the administration, faculty, staff and student body, I have absolutely no idea what "consensus building" means. Now, I know I've written about it constantly in previous SGA Desks, but the term was just something I came up with to make it look like I was doing anything other than getting hammered on a startlingly consistent basis. Someone asked what I was doing as SGA President, and so I said: "Well, you see, I'm uh ... consensus building. Yeah, that's it!" I guess the idea caught on.

To tell you the truth, being SGA Prez is kind of a cushie job. I really didn't have much to do. Hell, I don't even do anything at the SGA meetings. Of course, if any of you ingrates decided to get up off your soft asses and actually come to a meeting you'd already know that ... oh, sorry. In any case, my point is, I had nothing to do, so I made something up to make myself look good.

I felt it was necessary to confess now, as the University began assembling both a consensus building committee and task force.

To the administrators who worked to create these organizations, I have but one message: Pick up a clue! God, I figured this "consensus building" crap would fool the students, but you people have masters degrees for Christ's sake! Wake up!

President Kean is sick of hearing all your crap about parking spaces. Go take a bus and leave him the hell alone.

Barney to be first BET Speaker / Concert Artist of 1996

Bob Dylan pre-empted for furry purple dinosaur

In an unexpected press conference held early Wednesday morning, Governor Christine Todd Whitman announced that the 1996

You Got Real
Purty Hair...

Lenny
George's Pal

New Jersey Forum lecture series unveiled February 30 would be scrapped in favor of a new revised version, authored by former U.S. President Ronald Reagan.

Barney the Dinosaur will be the first speaker of the year to appear at Drew under the new schedule, on Saturday, April 13. The Bob Dylan concert initially scheduled for that evening has been cancelled to accommodate the plush dinosaur.

"We regret the unfortunate schedule clash, but when somebody as big as Barney comes along, some sacrifices must be made," University President Tom Kean said after the plans to replace Dylan with Barney were made known to the University yesterday afternoon. "I'm sure Bob won't mind. We can probably just get him to play again some other day, or something."

Manager of Residential Programs Andrew Steiner, who oddly seems to have some kind of quoted opinion on every topic, remained unusually close-lipped on the subject of the schedule change. "I just want the students to be happy," he questioning and interrogation over a long period of time for a while.

Barney will doubtless prove a hit with the college crowd.

When asked about the reason for the schedule change, Ronald Reagan (new President of the Business and Education Together, or BET, Foundation) systematically blamed everything on Oliver North and then proceeded to recite every verse of the Cambodian national anthem in falsetto.

Though Dylan will no longer be singing, Jewel will still open for Barney on the night of April 13. All tickets that have been purchased to date can still be used for the Barney presentation, although due to Barney's obviously larger drawing power ticket prices have been raised $10. They are now $22 for Drew students and $30 for off-campus guests. Those who have already purchased tickets may pay the difference at the door or by dropping the money off (cash only, please, and write "For Myles, with love" on the envelope) in campus mailbox 560 before April 10.

To accommodate those who expected a full-fledged music concert that night, Barney has agreed to stage an impromptu concert after his speech. Highlights will include his world-famous "I Love You, You Love Me" song and a few Ozzy Osbourne covers.

While Barney is certainly the most notable individual of those on the new slate of Forum speakers, he will not be the only prestigious icon present in this year's series. Bozo the Clown, Joey Butafooco, Dumbo, Vladimir Lenin and 34 Elvis Presley impersonators will be just a few of the 753 speakers Reagan has scheduled for the series over the upcoming year. The dates at which each speaker will address the Drew community will be provided in a special 20-page Achron addendum to be distributed sometime next week.

Revised Events for the Month of Spring

Monday, April 1

Pie Throwing Contest

Spot a squirrel, blast him out of a tree with a Boston creme, win a prize!

Friday, April 5

Filling Space

Join us as we fill The Space with whipped cream and then eat our way inside! (non-dairy creamer will be provided for the lactose intolerant.)

Saturday, April 6

The real Jamfest

Grab your Wonder Bread, your Skippy and your butter knife, come down to Tilghman Field and smother yourself and your friends in yummy Smuckers' goodness!

Wednesday, April 10

Food Fight!!!

Head on down to the Commons, where Chief Evans will referee the greatest organized food fight in college history! Nail a professor with mashed potatoes and win your very own brand new cereal dispenser!

Friday, April 12

Multivegetable Awareness Day

- Panel of assorted high-vitamin nutritious treats to discuss importance of all veggies "just getting along" with one another.
- All-Campus Cards replaced by vegetable of choice and pasted on students' foreheads.
- Interactive sessions taught by rutabagas on how to "think like a vegetable."

And remember, not only is April Latino Heritage Month, but it's also National Sliced Salami Appreciation Month, so get out there on April 7 covered in Boar's Head and win a free can of processed Spam!

Top Ten ways to amuse

Satan

10. Castrate your pets with can openers.
9. In this year's presidential election, cast a write-in vote for Beelzebub, Lucifer or Mephistopheles.
8. Hold public executions in the Commons of squirrels deemed unworthy of being cute, furry and filled with germs (they will afterwards be served up by Daka as a light between-meals snack).
7. DIE.
666. Draw pentagrams on your father's Neil Diamond record collection.
5. Dress up as Death and hang out at K-Mart near the lawn care section.
4. Invert crucifixes and place them on your neighbor's lawn, door, roof, wife...
3. Spit voluminous amounts of blood in public — great at Bar Mitzvahs, weddings and theme parties!
2. Quote lines from The Exorcist while on a popular children's television show (or, even better, start your own — Mister Rogers recently sold out and is now hosting Mister Rogers' Satan-Infested Slum Town from Hell.)
1. Travel to distant lands, meet rabid satanic animals of evil intent and help them form a self-help group to cope with their overwhelming desires to suck the living souls out of every human being on the planet.

by Mistah Mojo Fox

Movies Oscar left in the dust

by The Art of Zem

Batman Goes Away

Michael Keaton and Val Kilmer both refused to participate in this fourth installment of the Batman series, during which the masked crusader just... goes away.

Don't Be a Menace to Fellow Chem Students While Mixing Your Acid Under the Hood

This comedy about Drew chemistry students was not funny. It just wasn't funny. But the title is, isn't it?

Indiana Jones and the First Time

Harrison Ford declined the lead, allowing wiry comic Jim Carrey to don hat and whip in a story about the first time the precocious archaeologist got laid.

My Left Cheek

Inspiring protagonist suffers from total body paralysis, with the exception of his left butt cheek. Through sheer determination and perseverance, he perfected the art of butt cheek window imprinting and went on make millions.

Free Willy III

(It's not about the whale.)

Goldenass

Stars Chris Farley attempting to be as suave as the famous 007. Farley opens the unusually short film with a botched bungee jump off the top of an empty concrete dam. Creator Ian Fleming's well is obviously starting to run a bit dry.

Landworld

This time around, Kevin Costner sports wheels for feet instead of gills behind his ears. Just by looking at the title, you can tell this was just as big a hit as its precursor.

Scent of a Pecker

Woody Woodpecker stars with Sharon Stone in this erotic thriller, during which the feisty bird pushes his beak in where it just doesn't belong.

The Little Spermaide

Young, beautiful sperm falls in love with a princely ovum "above the sea," but the saline environment causes her to disintegrate before finding the right canal to romantic bliss.

White Men Can't Hump

'Nuff said.

Jewmanji

Insulting typo slipped through the system — and the producers wonder why only the Skinheads went to see it.

Drew Administrator used as test case for new testosterone pill

Before pill

Now

In three years

Jock itch spreads through athletes

Betty Humpter
Missionary

An epidemic of sorts has been declared on campus, and it is an epidemic of the worst kind. That's right, jock itch. Athletes from all sports have been afflicted by this painful problem, and many do not see the problem being resolved any time soon.

Health Services lady Kathy Nottage has been trying to remedy the problem. "At this juncture in time, we can safely say that all of the athletes, except for senior Dan Pierce, have had their pregnancy results come back negative. Now, we must run strep tests on all of them, just to be safe. I would also like to emphasize the importance of gargling some salt water every now and again," Nottage said.

Athletic Director Connie Zotos, who has also seemed a little uncomfortable of late, commented on the special problems this presented. "The baseball players used to go an out or two without scratching themselves. Now it is every pitch, and I feel bad for those men they must be very raw after a game. I hate to think of what a double-header must do to them," Zotos said.

Senior Dave Yorke addressed the baseball team's special problem. "We have bought the appropriate medications and they are being applied. This is just one nasty strain of crotch-rotch that has taken hold and won't let go—literally," Yorke said. No one is quite sure how the outbreak started or when it will end. The men's tennis team has found playing difficult. "The shorts we wear just rub you the wrong way. I mean, how can you concentrate on playing tennis when the only thing you can do is play with yourself?" junior Jon Paley said.

Men's basketball coach Marc Coleman partially blamed the incident for costing the team a visit to the NCAA Division III tournament. "The poor guys were just so red and inflamed. How can they score with balls like that?" Coleman said.

Senior co-captain Dan Pierce echoed Coleman's comments, but was more concerned with his non-negative pregnancy test. "I was told it couldn't happen if I was standing up," Pierce said.

So far the swim team has had the fewest problems. "The chlorinated water provides much-needed relief from the pain both teams are experiencing," Coach Pat Mead said. "Unfortunately, I think Lauren Kenworthy might have spread the wealth, so to speak, at Nationals over Spring Break," he added.

The problem should soon be resolved, health authorities say. They advise taking nice, warm showers and bathing frequently. Don't scratch much, and if it oozes, God bless you. Oh, and by the way, don't forget to gargle that salt water.

Former student leads jail ball team to victory

Kizma Azkrak
Staff Rimmer

The mighty Madison Stealers defeated arch-rival Morristown Maulers in Public Jail League action yesterday. Leading the way for the Stealers was former Drew student, now convict, Sven DeSalli. He scored four runs on six hits and stole 13 bases. All have since been returned.

DeSalli, however, was benched in the sixth inning when he was caught in the act for the first time all season. "It was kind of embarrassing. I mean, I think they were taking a look at the signs they were giving to me. There are rules against stealing another team's signs, you know?"

In a nasty incident, DeSalli charged the mound in the fifth inning. He also charged a computer, six watches and a kilo of coke. Nobody was badly hurt in the incident, but it has left a bad taste in everyone's mouth. "You steal all of the time, you piss the other team off. The ball was headed straight for my head and it was intentional, no doubt about it," DeSalli said.

Defensively, Sven had one heck of a game. He had only one error charged to him all game. Unfortunately, he was charged with a felony and two misdemeanors. "I didn't mean to take those bases, and the roach clips in left field can in no way be traced to me," DeSalli said.

Early on, Morristown challenged the legality of DeSalli's bat. Cork was found on examination. The search was ruled illegal, though, and he was allowed to continue play.

Sophomore Joel Wallace, co-chair of Drew Spirit, was extremely proud of the occasion. "It was great to see the school rally behind Sven. It was just a shame that he couldn't wear green and blue," Wallace said.

Student Government Association Vice-President junior Pat Aylward attended the game, but was a bit late because he overslept. "The SGA always rallies around fellow students and their accomplishments. I was just glad to be part of the occasion, but getting my lazy ass up was tough. Oh, by the way, vote Aylward/Cerbo!" Aylward said. President pro tempore of the senate (P.P.O.T.S.) Brian Nell lashed out harshly against Aylward's tardiness. "As the cabinet representative of the Senate, I can not believe that lazy sack of shit was late to the game. It is a travesty that it happened," Nell said.

Master of the Gates Chief Evans also was at the game. "I love to support Drew sports. Why I even pulled the fire alarms in Hoyt to get people out to see the game," Evans said. Other members of Public Safety were busy with parking problems on campus.

Even University President Tom Kean got in on the action. "I love sports with all of my heart, but at times I find them very stressful," Kean said.

A final score of 11-10 made this the closest game in 27 years of P.J.L. action. It kept campus on edge. "I locked my door and kept my backpack close by and went out to support the team," an unidentified student said.

Some people were pissed that the coverage by the local media was not better, but hey, we can't keep everybody all safe and happy all of the time, can we?

HUGH G. WRECTION

A swimmer from an opposing team shows how happy he is to be swimming against Drew. Oars, however, are illegal.

Swim team prank costs men dearly

Les Adick
No more positions for him...

Certain members of the women's swim team pulled a prank on the men. Let us just say that there will be no little swimmers running around anytime soon. In similar fashion to the now-famous Lorena Bobbitt, seven women depenisized members of the men's team.

Some members have been held for questioning. In one of the only interviews given, an unidentified apprehended woman was quoted as saying "Have you ever had the shits for three straight weeks?"

Sophomore Casey O'Donnell forgave the women's team, albeit in a higher-pitched tone than normal. "Maybe this went a bit far, but we forgive them. The teams actually get along very well and love each other. Although, they've arranged it so the love won't quite be the same, if you know what I mean," O'Donnell said.

Dr. Sew Nu Wang was the surgeon performing a record of seven penis reattachments. "Let's just say Mr. Tim Lawlor's operation took a little bit longer than say, oh, Mr. O'Donnell's."

Rumor has it the men will appear on the Ricki Lake show sometime in the off-season. The show will be entitled "Men whose genitals have been removed by female counterparts on sports teams."

The women's team has been forced to forfeit a match. The men's team will miss three until things are healed. Some had requested that their organs be held on ice until the end of the season, noting that the loss would make them more hydrodynamic. "We could make it through the water more quickly than before. Coach advised us against the idea, though," one dismembered member said.

Flowers are being accepted at Morristown Memorial as well as sneakers with the Reebok pump. "We might as well get used to the type of device we are all going to have to live with the rest of our lives," said another member of the team.

The men's team (if you can still call them that) has agreed not to retaliate. "They win. I can't even stand up right now," one member said. With the pump, however, that problem will be alleviated.

Both teams are sorry about this incident. The University has probably swept this one under the rug. It's not like a New York radio station would ever read something like this from a local paper or something like that. Well, maybe they would.

Watch your favorite professors mud wrestle in the nude Tuesday at 9 p.m. in The Space. Sponsored by The Acron.

Upcoming Ranger home parties

Friday evening @ 9 p.m.

Bible study in the Hoyt triple

Saturday night @ 10 p.m.

Tea and Crumpets in McClintock 21

Sunday @ 8 a.m.

You're all in church, aren't you?

As always, New Jersey state law strictly prohibits the possession or consumption of alcoholic beverages by anyone under the age of 21. Every party above enforces this policy. At least on days not ending in "y."