Biographical/Historical Note

Julia Markus is a biographer, educator, scholar, and writer whose career spans over four decades. Educated at Boston College (BA '61, MA 62) and University of Maryland (PhD '76), Markus specialized in the nineteenth century poetry of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning, working for the Browning Institute, editing The Browning Institute Studies, contributing articles, and publishing edited volumes. Along with her scholarship on the Brownings Markus contributed to the late twentieth century fiction scene, winning a Houghton Mifflin Literary Award for her first commercially published novel Uncle. La Mora and Patron of the Arts preceded Uncle and were published by small presses. American Rose (1980), Friends Along the Way (1985), and A Change of Luck (1991) followed with critical acclaim.

Markus taught at Hofstra University, ultimately becoming Director of the Creative Writing Program, where she came to mentor many early stage writers. Through her position as a fiction writer and professor she established close relationships with other authors, as evident in her lifelong correspondences. She remained a close colleague and friend to William S Peterson (University of Maryland), Miram Levine (Framingham State University), and her agent Harriet Wasserman and her papers reflect both personal and professional collaborations.

Her 1995 publication of Dared and Done: The Marriage of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning shifted the trajectory of her oeuvre toward biography. Across and Untried Sea (2000), J Anthony Froude (2005), and Lady Byron and Her Daughters (2015) all received critical acclaim and saw Markus return to more traditional scholarship and writing. Dared and Done in particular gained notable public praise and resulted in considerable media coverage. Along with her fiction, biography, and scholarship Markus has written on art, culture, and travel.

Through her connections with the Byron Society in America, her papers were donated to Special Collections here at Drew University. The resulting Julia Markus papers represent a snapshot of the professional and personal life of a writer at the end of the twentieth century through the twenty-first century.

Scope and Content Note

The Julia Markus Papers contain the personal and professional papers of biographer, educator, scholar, and writer. The bulk of the materials in the collection relate to her eight major publications - Uncle (1978), American Rose (1980), Friends Along the Way (1985), A Change of Luck (1991), Dared and Done (1995), Across an Untried Sea (2000), J Anthony Froude (2005), and Lady Byron and Her Daughters (2015) - and reflect the research, drafting, proposal, production, printing, and reception of the individual works. Additional material relating to her scholarly work on the Brownings, her time at The Browning Institute, and forays into arts, culture, and travel writing are also included along with various unpublished projects. Personal and professional letters, along with photographs, news clippings, faxes, and other items are included in this collection.

Abstract

The Julia Markus Papers represent the professional and personal papers of a writer whose œuvre has spanned modern fiction, biography, and academic scholarship. Interspersed with writings on art, culture, and travel this collection highlights the breadth and depth of a career in writing and academia. With drafts and galleys, alongside contracts and proposals, the Julia Markus Papers further sheds light on the nature of publishing at the end of the twentieth century. The Julia Markus Papers also includes a large library of advance reader copies, signed and inscribed editions, and letters between professional and personal friends.

Arrangement Note

The Julia Markus Papers were donated to Drew University Special Collections over several stages and inventoried, arranged, and prepared for the finding aid between 2021-2024. Although most of the papers and files were organized and labeled, much was redundant and represented an organizational strata that was not conducive for archival management and use. Boxes and files were truncated and arranged in a manner to reflect the varied career stages of Julia Markus as a fiction and biography writer, educator, and scholar.

As such, the collection is broken into six series with further subdivisions based on the major constituent works and content. Biography, Scholarship & Public Writing, and Fiction represent the majority of the collection (21 boxes) with Papers including correspondences and personal papers making up an additional four boxes. Julia Markus' considerable library of advance reader copies, uncorrected proofs, and signed and inscribed editions of (mostly) modern fiction consist of a further five boxes, and two boxes contain her "Special Library" made up of books by her close friend William S Peterson and Decatur House Press, which she ran with her then-husband Frank DiFederico.

Items printed on legal size are arranged in Box 34 but noted in-line with the corresponding series/subdivisions. Oversized items are kept, individually, on a shelf with the collection and noted in-line with the corresponding series/subdivisions. The series and subdivisions are divided thus:
